Sec. Johnson Calls Firing Of Denfeld No 'Reprisal'

Qualification Lack Cited as Reason; Rep. Bates Charges Violation of Pledge

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Defense Secretary Johnson yesterday said Admiral Louis E. Denfeld was not removed as Chief of Naval Operations in "reprisal" for his testimony before the House Armed Services Committee.

Instead, Johnson indicated, Denfeld was fired on the grounds that he lacked qualifications for the job to which he recently had been reappointed after serving two years.

The Defense Secretary's denial was in reply to an angry telegram from Representative Bates (R., Mass.) charging that Denfeld's dismissal was a "violation" of Johnson's "pledge of no reprisals."

Changes in Assignments'

Johnson told Bates he had promised the Armed Services Committee there would be no reprisals on account of testimony. Then he quoted from a memorandum to the Secretaries of Army, Navy and air, dated October 24, in which he warned against "reprisals." But the quoted paragraph went on to say:

"This is not to say, of course, that there will not be some changes in assignments within the Department of Defense. Such changes will occur continuously, whenever any individuals show themselves to lack the qualifications for jobs to which they have been assigned, and as other individuals show themselves to possess the necessary qualifications."

Secretary of the Navy Matthews last night denied reports he plans to resign his post.

He told The Washington Post he had "not even thought of resigning."

"I'll stay as long as I can be of service and the President wants me," Matthews said.

When Admiral Denfeld arrived at his office yesterday morning he found some 250 Navy enlisted men waiting to express their loyalty and affection. He told them that despite his ouster "no service and no individual can stop the Navy."

Matthews, Denfeld Confer

An aide, Capt. Walter Karig, later said that "numerous" officials had called during the day and offered to resign from the service, "to turn in their suits." In every case, he said, Denfeld advised them to stay in and work for the Navy.

Denfeld was called in during the morning by Navy Secretary Matthews to discuss "possible new duties." A Defense Department press release said Denfeld "asked time to consider developments affecting a new duty assignment" and was assured that Matthews would "do anything possible to

Video Option Included in Transit Radio Pact; Broadcast Fracas Muted as Lawyers Move In

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Capital Transit officials, caught now in the current controversy over radio in streetcars and buses, already have turned serious thought to television for the same vehicles.

This was disclosed yesterday as transportation representatives turned over to the District Public Utilities Commission their contract with Washington Transit Radio, Inc., for setting up the existing radio service.

The contract carries an option, giving the radio firm the first right during the contract to meet the terms of any bona fide proposal submitted to Capital Transit for television service to be started after the end of the radio contract.

No Immediate Plan

There is no present thought of making television installations in streetcars and buses in the immediate future, E. C. Giddings, vice president of Capital Transit, said last night.

He explained the option was put into the radio contract against the time when television might be developed to the point where it can be installed in transit vehicles. He said he understands this is not now feasible, but "the day may come when it is."

On the fracas over transit radio, yesterday's hearing produced a sharp drop in emotional temperatures and decibels as lawyers took over the show.

In contrast to the tempestuous first session of Thursday were the tempers of the participants, and the tone of the proceedings. Attendance dropped from 300 the first day to about 50 yesterday and cheers and jeers were lacking.

PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan, who had permitted a field day of questions from the floor in the opening session, limited yesterday's quizzing to lawyers. He told citizens they could present questions through Peoples Counsel John O'Dea.

The second five-hour session featured presentation of testimony by witnesses for the transit and

Senate Race Clear Test of Welfare State

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

New York, Oct. 28.—"High plane" campaigning went out of fashion after 1948 but it remained for New York to set an all-time low ceiling.

Two eminent "elder statesmen," whose gentlemanly qualities have never been questioned, are brawling like ward politicians in the gutters of this State.

At stake is more than the Senate seat of a retired liberal Democrat, Robert F. Wagner. This street fight is a deliberately planned test of the "welfare state" course of this Administration and the decentralized Government theories of rockbed Republicans.

Kind They Wanted

It is the kind of "clear-cut" test most old-time Republicans wanted in the last presidential campaign and never got.

Locked in the "any hold goes" exhibition are:

Seventy-one-year-old Herbert H. Lehman, investment broker in private life but Franklin Roosevelt's heir to 10 "progressive" years as Governor of New York and later the director general of UNRRA.

Sixty-one-year-old Senator John Foster Dulles, lawyer, GOP foreign affairs specialist who helped Democrats and Republicans alike build a bipartisan foreign policy, but a newcomer to rough-and-tumble domestic politics.

Between men of such caliber observers had looked for a truly high-level campaign, with debate of basic issues on an intellectual plane. But both men stepped out of character. The result has become an angry, epithet-slinging melee, involving delicate and "hidden issues."

Shouts of "bigot" and "lie" have stormed into the debate. One

175 Reported Slain in Riots In Colombia

Bogota, Colombia, Oct. 28 (U.P.)—A total of 175 persons tonight were reported killed in the past 24 hours in political riots throughout Colombia. This would bring to nearly 500 the death toll for the past few weeks.

Authoritative sources reported that 150 persons, including women and children, died in the town of Ceilan, which was set afire by Conservatives from the surrounding Bugalagrande area. Most of the inhabitants in Ceilan were Liberals. Twenty-five others were killed in fighting around Villanueva, also in Valley Department.

A high official of the Colombia Federation of Workers declared that an immediate general strike was being considered.

Indications were the strike would be called in support of Nation-wide demands that both the Liberals and Conservatives take prompt and effective measures to check the spreading unrest.

President Mario Ospina Perez, Liberal Presidential Candidate Dario Echandia and Conservative Presidential Candidate Laureano Gomez wrestled with the crisis after a bipartisan congressional committee on political pacification reached an impasse.

Ospina and Echandia strongly favor abandoning the hotly contested November 27 presidential election and setting up a bipartisan junta to govern with strong powers until 1954.

But Gomez, right-wing Conservative leader, balked at this solution.

Political unrest has been on the increase since April 9, 1948, when Jorge Eliecer Gaitan, Liberal leader idolized by the masses, was assassinated. The agitation became intensified recently when the Liberal-controlled Congress voted over a presidential veto to advance presidential elections to November 27 from June 5, 1950, so they could be held while Congress still is in session.

Van Horn Says Welfare Fund Was Dissipated

The United Mine Workers multi-million-dollar welfare fund was "dissipated" by John L. Lewis and Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), their fellow trust officer, Ezra Van Horn, told a Federal court here yesterday.

Van Horn made that charge in asking the court to free him from any liability in a suit asking an accounting of the funds.

The suit was filed against all three trustees by George Livengood, a Pennsylvania miner, after the pension payments were halted September 16. Lewis and Bridges ordered the halt over the dissenting vote of Van Horn, who on the same day turned in his resignation to the mine owners he represents on the board.

Both Lewis, the UMW representative, and Bridges, the "neutral" trustee, previously had filed answers to the suit. They made general denials of Livengood's charges that Lewis had suspended the welfare payments as a "political weapon" in an improper attempt to use the fund as lever for extracting concessions from the operators in negotiations for a new contract.

Van Horn told the court he "continuously voted against the improper expenditures" from the 100-million-dollar-a-year welfare fund.

At the time the payments were suspended, Bridges reported that the fund had dwindled from 30 million dollars on July 1 to 14 million dollars on September 1.

Van Horn complained that for all practical purposes his fellow trustees denied him any part in administering the fund. He said Lewis had "complete and unrestricted charge" of the money and refused his requests for specific information about its disbursement.

He joined Livengood's suit in asking the court to order Lewis and Bridges to cooperate in rendering a "just, true detailed accounting of the fund since its inception." He also requested that his fellow trustees be required to restore to the fund any sums "which may be found as a result of said audit to have been unlawfully disbursed."

Van Horn further asked the court to require Lewis and Bridges to pay whatever sum is assessed against him should there be a judgment in the Livengood case.

All 48 Die In Air Crash In Azores

(Other Story, Page 13)

Ponta Delgada, The Azores, Oct. 28.—An Air France Constellation airliner bound from Paris to New York crashed in flames against an Azores mountain 90 miles north of its normal course early today and all 48 persons were killed.

They included the former world middleweight boxing champion, Marcel Cerdan, and 11 Americans.

Advices reaching here said rescue parties found all 37 passengers and 11 crewmen dead about the wreckage near the summit of the 3500-foot Algarvia peak of Sao Miguel, largest island of the Azores group. The bodies were charred and unrecognizable.

The plane, in command of the veteran Capt. Jean de la Noue, 37, dropped out of radio contact with ground bases after sending a message at 2:50 a. m. G. M. T., (9:50 p. m. EST yesterday):

"Having accomplished first part of trip normally, ready to land at 2:55 on Santa Maria Airdrome, Azores, weather being clear."

Fog, Rain Cut Visibility

Eight hours later the wreckage was sighted on Sao Miguel, at the southeast side of the rugged, Portuguese-administered archipelago in the eastern Atlantic.

Fog and rain hampered visibility. It was a steep climb to the site of the crash for medical aid men, civilians and soldiers. Eight planes and two ships were sent to Sao Miguel to help.

The company said that since the start of its trans-Atlantic service July 1, 1946, it had made 1972 flights without an accident. Captain de la Noue had flown the ocean 88 times and had logged 6700 hours of flying time.

Cerdan was flying to New York with his manager, Jo Lungman, and his trainer, Paul Genser, for a title fight at Madison Square Garden December 2 with Jake Lamotta. He lost the world middleweight championship to Lamotta in Detroit June 18. He has been a national hero to the French and his native Morocco.

Violinist, Brother Aboard

Also aboard was Miss Ginette Neveu, 28, noted French violinist who was to give concerts in 21 North American cities next month. Her brother and piano accompanist died with her. Miss Neveu was described as "a fantastic success" in the United States. She last played in Washington, D. C., in November, 1948.

Several business persons were among the Americans on the Air France passenger list. The Americans were identified as:

Kay Kamen, 56, of New York, owner of Kay Kamen, Ltd., world licensing representative for Walt Disney toy characters.

Mrs. Kate Kamen, his wife, about 42, a University of Nebraska graduate long active in the advertising field.

Philip Sales, 509 West 112th st., New York.

Mrs. Margarita Sales, his wife.

John Abbott, Butte, Mont., businessman who was flying home from Syria with Hanna Abbott, whom the Syrian Consulate in New York presumed to be his bride.

Bronx Importer on List

Raoul Silbernagel, 59, of the Bronx, president of the importing firm of Selsi Co., Inc., who was returning from a business trip to Paris.

Edward L. Supine, 39, of Brooklyn, a lace importer returning from a visit to Calais, France.

Strikes Cause 12 Pct. Drop In Production

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

"Largely as a result of the steel strike," the Nation's industrial production will drop this month by almost 12 percent from September levels, the Federal Reserve Board forecast yesterday.

It said industrial production will fall to about 152 percent of prewar in October, as compared to 172 percent in September, 170 in August.

Thus it appeared that the strikes, or particularly the steel stoppage, has reversed the rising trend in industrial activity that began in mid-summer after the first half-year's recession.

The board's monthly review indicated a general rise in most of the indications—employment, construction, distribution—until the middle of September, when the coal strike began. There followed a sharp decline in freight car loadings, employment, department store sales and, of course, minerals and steel production.

The Federal Reserve Board's forecast came only a day after President Truman declared at a news conference that a national emergency, as a result of the strikes, is still a long way off.

ITU Contract Strategy Held T-H Violation

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The AFL International Typographical Union yesterday was found to have violated the Taft-Hartley Act by bargaining strategy that insisted on closed-shop conditions in the newspaper publishing industry. The act specifically bans the closed shop.

The ruling was handed down in a unanimous decision of the National Labor Relations Board.

The decision was a technical victory for the union-shop newspaper publishers, but Gerard Reilly, counsel for the Inland Press Association, described the ruling as "disappointing" because it failed to deal with many issues in the long-standing dispute between the ITU and the publishers.

2 Cases Involved

The five-man NLRB panel actually issued decisions involving two specific cases. The first case involved the American Newspaper Publishers Association, representing 860 member newspapers, and the ITU. The second involved the Chicago Newspaper Publishers Association, Chicago Typographical Union No. 16, and the parent ITU.

The board ordered both the international and local unions to stop forcing employers to discriminate against non-union employes in violation of the Taft-Hartley Act and to stop threatening or directing strike action to force this kind of discrimination.

The five-man panel characterized the ITU's "bargaining strategy" as being "deliberately designed . . . to effect the exclusion of non-union men" from typographical jobs in the newspapers."

In line with the "bargaining strategy," the board held, the ITU locals around the country refused to sign new work contracts with the employers, but instead set up uniform "conditions of work," which were the "only" conditions under which ITU members would remain on the job.

In the fall of 1947, when employers filed an unfair practice complaint against the union, the ITU locals modified their strategy by signing contracts known as P-6A

200,000 Here Share In Salary Increases

Is Step Forward, Truman Asserts; Postal Employes Get $120 Boost

By Jerry Kluttz

The President late yesterday signed into law bills to raise the salaries and to provide other benefits for an estimated 1,390,000 classified, postal, and legislative employes.

More than 200,000 Government workers here are covered by the new laws which will increase their salaries upward of 30 million dollars a year.

The new laws will go into effect the first payday after their enactment. The effective date will vary as Government paydays are on a staggered schedule. However, the classified bill will become effective at once for most classified people here. Because of the lag in paydays, it will be three weeks before the increases show up in employe paychecks.

Major Step Forward

In signing the classified bill, the President issued a statement in which he said "This act is a major step forward toward better personnel administration and more effective management in the executive branch." The full text of the President's statement appears below. Mr. Truman made no statement in signing the postal or the supplemental appropriation bill which provides pay boost for legislative employes.

Pay raises for the 885,000 classified employes would average $140.50 annually. They would vary from $7.20 to $290.50 a year. The salary ceiling was lifted from $10,330 to $14,000 a year.

Regular postal employes will get a flat pay boost of $120 a year, and

Fire, Police Pay Hike Resolution Is Signed

President Truman yesterday signed House Joint Resolution 302, authorizing payment to retired policemen and firemen a share of this year's $440 municipal pay increase retroactively for the 12-month period that ended last June 30.

The original pay bill granted city employes the $330 increase retroactively for the same period. It also permitted the retired policemen and firemen to receive an increase from July 1, 1949, forward, but District officials, with the backing of a Comptroller General's ruling, found they could not pay the retroactive increase to the retired policemen and firemen without the newly signed law.

The men will receive the same percentage of the $330 increase as they have been receiving of their active duty pay.

Boy, 3, Rescued After 14-ft. Fall Into Old Well

Austin, Texas, Oct. 28 (U.P.)—Three-year-old Bobby Gow was freed late today from an 8-inch casing of an abandoned irrigation well into which he had plunged.

The boy, described as "small for his age," was taken to a hospital where he was reported in good condition.

He had been wedged 14 feet down for 3 hours.

Firemen had dropped a line with a loop on the end to his outstretched right arm. The loop clung around Bobby's wrist, and he was held as rescuers worked with power shovels and a well-digger. Oxygen was pumped into the casing.

The boy's father, James Gow, talked to him and shone a flashlight down into the blackness as the boy sobbed. When a huge crater had been dug, rescuers cut into the pipe and released Bobby.

Gow, a pressman, said 8-year-old Jimmy Gow and a sister, 12-year-old Peggy, told him:

"Daddy, Bobby fell down the well."

3 Routes Tied Up 58 Minutes

Freeway Blamed as Traffic Snarls at Washington Circle

The District Highway Department released figures yesterday showing so heavy a run of automomiles over the new Whitehurst Freeway that rush-hour traffic often congests Washington Circle.

The jam was so bad last night between 5:15 and 6:15 that Capital Transit reported traffic on three routes through the circle was at a standstill for 58 minutes.

A combination of a heavy evening downpour, Government workers hurrying home and the weekend crowd moving in and out of the city all added up to what police said was the worst congestion since the Freeway opened.

For almost 90 minutes, traffic snailed along a few feet at a time. Cars were reported backed up as far as the 1600 block of Lee hwy. on the Virginia side of the Key Bridge, and for at least 20 blocks in most directions from the Circle.

A series of minor auto collisions contributed to the confusion.

Traffic was moving normally by 7 p. m., police said.

The Highway Department, in a report made earlier in the day, said traffic conditions on M st. have been relieved by the Freeway.

Officials said conditions at the Circle at that time had not reached an alarming state, but admitted the situation gave new interest to talk of a K st. underpass.

1. The Freeway, which provides a shortcut between K st. at Rock Creek pkwy. and Key Bridge, has averaged 20,530 cars since its opening October 8. But traffic on M st., formerly the only connection between Key Bridge and downtown, has dropped only 12,708. This means an increase of 7822 cars daily in the vicinity of

Three Still at Large

Escaped Killer, Two Others Are Captured in Delaware

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 28 (AP).—A 20-year-old murderer and two others of the eight heavily armed convicts who fled from prison Wednesday were taken into custody without a struggle late today.

Danny Norris, Wilmington youth serving a life term for the slaying of a policeman, and Victor Bryson, 20, Minquadale, Del., were captured by Delaware State Police.

A few hours later Edward Ernst, 25, Wilmington, walked into a State police station outside Wilmington and surrendered.

Bryson was serving three years for burglary and Ernst four years for robbery.

Three of the men who escaped the New Castle (Del.) County Workhouse still are at large. John Henry Minor, 28, Bear Cleve, Fla., and Jesse W. Palmer, 23, Tuscumbia, Ala., were captured last night by Maryland State police.

In Baltimore a gunman who said he was one of the eight escapees held up a tavernkeeper and escaped with $52.50.

'Convict' Seen in Woods Turns Out to Be Runner

Oxford, Pa., Oct. 28 (AP).—Police seeking the escaped New Castle (Del.) County Workhouse convicts leaped into action today when they received reports of a man running through some woods.

They surrounded the woods and began closing in.

In a short time they had their man "cornered," but quickly released him.

Farm Equipment Unit Merges With the UE

Chicago, Oct. 28. (AP)—The CIO United Farm Equipment Workers of America (FE) announced today that the union has merged with the CIO United Electrical Workers (UE).

FE officials said 84 percent of FE members voting were in favor of joining the larger union.

Both unions are left wing units of the CIO. They are threatened with expulsion from the CIO at the CIO convention in Cleveland next week.

Right wing CIO leaders say the unions are under Communist influence.

The FE international executive board statement said the FE locals automatically have been chartered by the UE, and the FE has become the "Farm Equipment and Metal Workers Council of UE.

A year ago the CIO ordered the FE to merge with the right wing United Auto Workers, or to dissolve. The order was not obeyed.

The FE claims 55,000 members, including 40,000 in International Harvester Co. plants.

The number of votes cast and how many were for and against were not made public.

Textile Workers Give $250,000 to Strike Fund

Cleveland, Oct. 28 (AP).—The CIO Textile Workers Union has donated $250,000 to support the four-week-old strike of the Nation's steelworkers.

This was learned today as arrangements were whipped into shape for next week's CIO convention.

The contribution boosted the Steelworkers' war chest from outside sources to $350,000. The CIO United Auto Workers executive board appropriated $100,000 forthe fund earlier this week.

The textile workers, headed by right-wing President Emil Rieve, also were reported preparing to pass the hat among the union's 350,000 members. The goal of this drive would be another $250,000.

Three important convention committees meanwhile were getting things ready for Monday's convention start.

The resolutions committee, under the firm leadership of CIO United Auto Workers President Walter Reuther, strengthened a foreign policy statement this afternoon after earlier left-wing opposition to a milder one.

The text of the resolution was not made public. But it presumably reaffirmed the CIO's support of the Marshall Plan and the Atlantic Pact, which left-wingers have opposed.

Reuther recessed the committee, however, without acting on the big question: What to do about an ultimatum of left-wing United Electrical Workers.

The UE convention voted recently to withhold per capita taxes to the CIO until alleged "raids" by right-wing unions on its membership have been stopped.

This hot issue is expected to lead off the expulsion of first UE and then of two other unions—the Farm Equipment Workers and the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers. Up to nine other left-wing affiliates also may be tossed out before the convention is over.

Quorum Lack Delays Probe In Store Tieup

A Congressional hearing into the four-month strike of AFL retail clerks and butchers against the River Terrace Super Market was postponed indefinitely yesterday for lack of a subcommittee quorum.

Representative Burke (D., Ohio), who was to have presided at the scheduled hearing, announced that the other four members of the management-labor relations subcommittee had been called out of the city and that because of other committee investigatiors the subcommittee could not meet again before December 1.

Burke asked the unions and the management of the market, at 3439 Benning rd., ne., to submit statements for committee study. At Burke's suggestion, the disputants agreed to exchange statements with each other.

The strike began May 13, but the unions ordered their members back when the company agreed to recognize the two locals as the collective bargaining agents for the 70 employes.

On July 1, the unions again called a walkout, charging the company's bargaining was being conducted in bad faith, a violation of the Taft-Hartley Act. The Baltimore office of the National Labor Relations Board is investigating the charges.

The management contends the unions no longer represent the company's employes and has asked the NLRB for a decertification election.

6 Officials Are Named As Directors of CCC

President Truman yesterday gave recess apointments to six Department of Agriculture officials as members of the board of directors of the Commodity Credit Corporation.

They are: Albert J. Loveland of Iowa; Knox T. Hutchinson of Tennessee; William B. Crawley of Alabama; Ralph S. Trigg of New Mexico; Frank K. Woolley of Indiana, and Elmer F. Kruse of Ohio.

The CCC's principal job is to finance the Government's farm price support program.

'I'm in Box,' Ching Told By Truman

By Robert S. Allen

President Truman was very frank in explaining his reluctance to intercede in the steel and coal strikes in a talk with Federal Conciliator Cyrus Ching.

Ching had gone to the President with a gloomy report. He stated he had made no progress in either dispute, and bluntly recommended White House intercession. The President shook his head.

"I'd like to," he said, "but I'm in a box. If I use the Taft-Hartley injunction powers, the Republicans will immediately make political hay of that. They will raise a hue and cry that that proves the law is all right. On the other hand, the unions will be sore. They will accuse me of not believing the law is as vicious as I have said it is.

"You've got to try some more, Cyrus. I want you to work day and night at this. These strikes cannot be permitted to continue any longer. Do your best to effect a settlement of the steel strike within the framework of the fact-finding board's recommendations. I'm in a spot, and I'm depending on you."

Ching wearily promised to renew his efforts.

11 U. S. Reds File Notice of Appeal for Bail

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—The 11 convicted Communist Party leaders today filed notice with the United States attorney's office that they will seek bail from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The court is expected to hear arguments on the matter Tuesday. A decision might be delayed for days or weeks.

The Communist leaders previously had filed notice that they would appeal their convictions to the same court.

All 11 are risking extra days in jail by remaining in New York City during the appeal.

They have the choice of staying in the Federal House of Detention here or of being transferred to a regular Federal prison.

Time spent in the prison would count against their prison terms if they lost the appeal from the convictions. But time in the detention house will not count.

Strikes Hurt Production

there came discussion yesterday of the possibility of distributing surplus food stocks to needy strikers, under provisions of the new farm bill, now awaiting presidential signature to become law.

Representative Madden (D., Ind.) told the Associated Press he has received appeals from steelworkers in Gary, Ind., for such aid and had advised the township trustees of that city and of East Chicago to apply immediately to the Federal Government.

If the new bill becomes law, the Commodity Credit Corp. will have the right to distribute to various groups, including public welfare agencies such as city or State relief organizations, surplus agricultural commodities which are in danger of deterioriating.

But at the Agriculture Department, it was indicated the process would not be a simple one. The CCC might first be obligated to solicit applications for the supplies from groups with top priorities — Federal agencies which wished to use the goods for barter in strategic stockpile programs, cities with school lunch programs and other public welfare groups.

In addition, it appeared that available goods consist mostly of dried eggs and dried skim milk. It is questionable whether strikers can or will use them. Further, the commodities are in large containers and would have to be repackaged for distribution.

Finally, there is a legal question as to whether the dried milk and eggs are actually "deteriorating" at such a pace that they can be given away under the law.

However, an Agriculture official indicated that "if people are really hungry, we can cut through red-tape in a big hurry."

Meanwhile, there were almost no developments yesterday in either negotiations or mediation to end the strikes. Federal Conciliator Cyrus Ching continued a series of talks with officials of United States Steel Corp. in New York, but he did not meet with the steelworkers' leader, Philip Murray.

Negotiations for settlement of the coal strike were at a standstill.

There was no evidence to indicate what the Government's next move toward settling the strike might be. There were guesses that President Truman might issue an appeal to both sides. But for the time being, as he made clear on Thursday, he will not invoke the emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act, nor seek to reconvene the fact-finding board which functioned in the steel situation.

Insurance Claims Rise

Effects of the strike began to reveal themselves in sharper form yesterday.

The Labor Department reported that the total of new unemployment insurance claims rose last week to its highest level since mid-July. Some 326,000 initial claims were filed, 44,800 more than the previous week. Continued, as distinct from new claims of jobless persons totaled 1,921,800, a rise during the week of 210,500.

Robert C. Goodwin, Employment Security director, said most States reported that the effects of the two big strikes have not yet reached "significant proportions." But he warned that if they last another two or three weeks, "serious shortages" will cause a "significant increase" in secondary unemployment.

The Welfare Director of Ohio's Mahoning County, including the great steel center of Youngstown, estimated about 55,000 people of the area are out of work. Almost all businesses except pawnshops are at a standstill, he declared. He foresaw a "desperate" relief situation if the strikes last another three or four weeks.

From Pittsburgh, the sceretary of the National Association of Purchasing Agents, George Renard, said 60 per cent of American industry will be directly damaged if the strikes continue into November. A quarter of the Nation's industry has already slowed down, he said.

Greenbelt Style Show

St. Hugh's Parish of Greenbelt, Md., will hold its third annual fashion show and dance tonight at 8:30 in the Center School auditorium, according to Mrs. Grace Thomas, general chairman.

contracts, but with a 60-day cancellation clause. This maneuver, the board said, merely meant that "reprisal action against an employer for hiring nonunion employes might be postponed for 60 days."

Having ruled against P-6A contracts, a majority of the board found it unnecessary to pass upon the legality of various individual clauses in the contract—such as those dealing with struck work, jurisdiction, limited liability, competency of composing room employes, etc.

One board member, James Reynolds, jr., while concurring in the ruling on the P-6A contracts, objected to what he called "evasion" by the board in dodging the issues raised by the various clauses of the contract.

"What the majority approach accomplishes, so far as the parties are concerned" . . . Reynolds contended, "is to deprive them of their present right to our judgment on important subjects litigated here at a tremendous cost to both. But more, this approach does a disservice to the public at least to the extent that it leaves problems unsettled which are demonstrably pregnant with the possibilities of industrial strife."

The board held unanimously that the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act which forbid "featherbedding" practices by unions do not apply to the ITU'S insistence on reproducing type composition already set up etlsewhere for use in the newspaper.

The board also unanimously dismissed those portions of the complaints that allege the unions and officers restrained or coerced employes in the exercise of the right guaranteed in the Taft-Hartley Act.

Against the union, the board also ruled the union must cease and desist from restraining employers in their selection of foremen.

In the Chicago newspaper case, the panel unanimously directed the typographical local to bargain in good faith with the publishers association, and by a vote of three to two, similarly directed its order at the international union. This latter decision raised the fear among some union officials that the case may be used as a precedent in holding a parent union liable for the acts of its locals.

In March, 1948, the ITU and its top officers were enjoined by court injunction from engaging in bargaining policies alleged to violate the Taft-Hartley Act. In August of that year, U. S. District Judge Luther M. Swygert, at Indianapolis, held the union in contempt for disobeying the injunction. The judge was upheld in the appeals court, and in November he lifted the contempt charge when the union conformed to his decree. The injunction is still in effect, but will probably be lifted as a result of the NLRB decision.

Arms Aid Measure Signed By Truman

By The Associated Press

President Truman put his OK yesterday on a $1,314,010,000 outlay to help build up a global defense against communism.

He took that action in signing the foreign arms appropriation bill which Congress voted just before it adjourned. The measure contains a billion dollars for European members of the Atlantic alliance, with the remainder earmarked for military aid to Greece, Turkey, Iran, the Philippines, Korea and the China area.

Before the bulk of the Atlantic Pact defense allotment can be released, however, Mr. Truman must approve the master strategy plan now being drafted for use against any Communist threat in Europe. Final agreement on that mutual aid program is expected by December 1.

The arms bill also contained an extra 62 million dollars for United States military construction in Alaska and Okinawa—two of this country's strong points guarding approaches to the Pacific coast.

There is also 30 million dollars for economic aid to Korea; $7,250,000 for assistance to crowded school districts in defense areas; six million dollars in cash and 24 million dollars in contract authority for construction of Air Force experimental wind tunnels; $5,500,000 to pay the government of Finland for Finnish ships seized in American ports at the start of the war, and 62 million dollars for military construction in Alaska and Okinawa.

The arms aid funds are earmarked this way:

For North Atlantic Pact nations, 500 million dollars in cash and 500 million dollars in contract authority.

For Greece and Turkey: $211,370,000 in cash.

For Iran, Korea and the Philippines, $27,640,000.

For the China area, 75 million dollars.

At Swiss Request

Spy Contact Cited in U. S. Aide's Recall

Bern, Switzerland, Oct. 28 (AP).—The Swiss Federal Council (cabinet) disclosed today that Maj. Bidwell Moore, assistant to the United States military attache in Bern, was recalled to the United States last August at the request of the Swiss government.

Maj. Moore, the council said, was found to have been in contact with Willie Gerber, a Swiss citizen now charged with having been a spy for the Axis powers from 1931 to 1939, and for another unnamed state since then.

A mechanic at the Swiss military establishment at Thun, Gerber is accused of having given secret military information concerning Swiss military positions and arms manufacture to the unidentified power for 34,000 Swiss francs (about $8000).

The council's announcement was made after Leon Nicole, Communist leader, asked whether the American Military Attache and his assistant "were involved in the espionage affair at Thun."

The council replied:

"It is true that Gerber was in contact with the assistant to the American Military Attache, who in this way, without the knowledge of the military attache or the Minister of the United States in Bern, took up a chain of espionage which had existed during the war."

Czechs Snub Founders on Anniversary

Prague, Oct. 28 (AP).—Czechoslovaks celebrated today the thirty-first anniversary of the founding of the republic.

But portraits of the nation's two founders, former Presidents Thomas G. Masaryk and Eduard Benes, were noticeably absent from the decorations that covered Prague's streets and buildings.

Pictures displayed were those of Soviet Prime Minister Stalin and Czechoslovakia's Communist President Klement Gottwald. Flags were those of the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia.

Workers went to their jobs as usual as the government decreed they should "celebrate by work." Holidays for the occasion were put off until Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Tuesday is also All-Saints Day, an important holiday in this predominantly Roman Catholic country.

Pictures of the two founders will even be removed from the country's postage stamps as of next Tuesday.

The Czech foreign ministry promised American diplomatic officials in Prague they would be permitted to see Samuel Meryn, a clerk in the office of the American military attache whom Czech police have held incommunicado since October 21 on charges of syping. The meeting will be Saturday.

British Protest On McCloy Held Informal

Frankfurt, Germany, Oct. 28 (U.P.)—United States High Commissioner John J. McCloy tonight denied the British had protested his statement calling for an end of the "purposeless dismantling" in Germany.

He said he had been assured of this in a telephone conversation with United States Ambassador to Britain Lewis Douglas.

The British Foreign Office and the American Embassy said in London yesterday the British orally took exception to McCloy's remarks, made recently in an interview.

Informed sources in London said tonight the British had raised the subject with United States Minister Julius C. Holmes, but that McCloy was correct in that it was not a formal protest.

AP Report Misquoted Navy Officer

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 28 (AP).—Comdr. John S. McCain, jr., was misquoted by the Associated Press this week in a dispatch reporting submarine-launched missiles could carry an atom bomb.

The dispatch dealt with a Navy announcement of plans to launch missiles from two submarines off Hawaii, November 7.

The Associated Press reporter, confronted with Commander McCain's denial, today, conceded he misquoted him. The reporter said:

"When Commander McCain finished answering questions concerning the plan to launch missiles from two submarines, he was asked if they would contain an atom bomb war head. I thought McCain answered affirmatively. I must concede I misquoted him."

"The fact is," Commander McCain said yesterday in his denial of the AP report, "I don't know anything about the atom bomb. In my naval experience, I've never had anything to do with atomic experiments."

Commander McCain is in charge of submarine guided missile development. What he said was: "The submarine, with guided missiles, has become a siege bombardment weapon."

No Get-Tough Plan in Mind, Hoffman Says

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Paul C. Hoffman, Economic Cooperation Administrator, today said he was not going to Europe with any "get-tough policy or any ideas of cracking down" on Marshall Plan nations.

He was interviewed just before he departed on an Air France plane for Paris.

It had been reported in Washington that Hoffman intended to caution the recipients of ECA help that there might be no third appropriation for European recovery unless they made good their pledges of mutual assistance by removing trade barriers and payments difficulties.

Hoffman said today he believed he could get better results without threats. He commented that European nations must speed up their own efforts toward a unification of their economy to make a single market of the 250 million people in the Marshall Plan area.

But he added that the nations "have made amazing progress."

Hoffman will meet in Paris with the Marshall Plan nation ministers responsible for the ECA program in their countries. He plans to return to New York November 3.

First U. S. Woman Ambassador Takes Oath for Denmark Post

America's first woman Ambassador, Mrs. Eugenie Anderson of Red Wing, Minn., took the oath as envoy to Denmark yesterday while her tall, sad-eyed artist husband looked on.

Her voice was clear and her manner self-assured as she repeated the oath, looking straight at Raymond Muir. The State Department's assistant chief of protocol, who administered it to her. The ceremony took place in Secretary Acheson's office.

"We're proud to have you with us," said Acheson as he handed her the rolled-up Ambassador's commission with President Truman's signature on it.

"I'm proud to represent our country, our people, our President and our great democracy," she answered. "And I'm proud and happy to be going to another great democracy."

She looked chic and efficient in a black crepe dress with an amber necklace and a shoulder corsage of two big gardenias. She wore a black velvet hat and a black veil tied under her chin.

After the ceremony, Secretary Acheson led her into an outer office to reenact it for photographers. Her husband, John P. Anderson, watched modestly from the back of the room, almost lost among the onlookers, until photographers asked him to pose with the new Ambassador.

The little group at the ceremony reflected last year's political struggle in Minnesota, when Mrs. Anderson, as local leader of Americans for Democratic Action, helped swing the State for President Truman. Senator Hubert Humphrey and other ADA officials were there, together with Mrs. India Edwards, women's chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Husband Anderson's sisters, Mrs. R. E. Hedin and Mrs. F. G. Chesley of Red Wing, watched the swearing-in, but the Anderson children, Johanna, 14, and Hans, 12, stayed at home on the family's 400-acre farm.

Mrs. Anderson plans to leave with the children about the middle of next month after three weeks of being briefed at the State Department. She has said she intends to enter the children in the regular Danish public schools.

Her husband plans to follow the family later, and to continue his painting career in Copenhagen.

Romulo Feels Door Not Shut On A-Control

Lake Success, Oct. 28 (AP).—U. N. Assembly President Carlos P. Romulo tonight said the door is not closed to agreement on a plan to control atomic energy.

He said the reason for his belief in the face of the continuing East-West stalemate was in President Truman's speech at the laying of the U. N. cornerstone in New York last Monday.

Leisurely Lunches Rob U. N. of Working Time

Lake Success, Oct. 28 (NYHT). At a three-minute General Committee meeting, U. N. Assembly President Carlos P. Romulo announced today that a speedup was necessary and reported that failure to start committee meetings on time had in five weeks robbed the Assembly of 44 hours and 47 minutes of working time.

He hinted to delegates to start their breakfasts earlier and cut out leisurely luncheons.

Typical was today's performance of the 59-member Trusteeship Committee. It met at 3 p. m. and adjourned 20 minutes later because not a single delegate was prepared to speak in debate.

Romulo said Mr. Truman had declared the United States would continue to support the United Nations plan for atomic control "unless or until a better and more effective plan is put forward."

The Assembly President said that phrase "is significant because it does mean that the door is not closed to a possible agreement on a 'better and more effective plan.' I do not despair that such a plan will yet be discovered, discussed and approved."

The 59-nation Political Committee kept up a heated debate on the Balkans case.

Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet Foreign Minister, attacked the report of the U. N. Special Committee on the Balkans. He said it was based on testimony taken from witnesses rounded up by Greek police. His comments were milder this year. In 1948 he called the Balkans' report a "pile of garbage."

Elsewhere in the U. N.:

1. Economy-minded delegates in the 59-nation Financial Committee overturned, 21 to 17, a decision of the Economic and Social Council to hold its winter session in Geneva, which would have cost the U. N. an extra $93,360. The meeting is expected to be at Lake Success.

2. A special 21-nation subcommittee completed recommendations on disposal of Italy's prewar African colonies. It agreed: That Libya be given independence by January 1, 1952; that a five-nation commission go to Eritrea and report back next year on the situation there; that Italian Somaliland be granted independence by 1959 and that an Italian-U. N. trusteeship administer the territory in the next 10 years.

3. The Political Committee, which so far has completed action only on the Korean issue, and now is bogged down on the Greek problem, was relieved of three items—Indonesia, Palestine and the Security Council report. These were passed over to the faster-moving Special Political Committee.

China Pulls Funds From British Banks

Success Expected

Hague Talks On Indonesia Nearing End

The Hague, Oct. 28 (NYHT). The conference among representatives of The Netherlands and her Indonesian colonies will conclude Wednesday with a plenary session, it was announced today.

Presumably full agreement will be made public at that time—an agreement that will transfer sovereignty over the islands to their 75 million inhabitants.

Although certain questions remain, it was clear today no one expected anything but success.

It is believed the Dutch have guaranteed to withdraw their 80,000 troops as quickly as shipping permits.

It was learned Surabaya naval base will remain in Dutch hands, although the Dutch commander will be answerable to the Indonesian minister of defense. This represents a concession to British and American pressure.

The disposition of New Guinea is the only major matter yet to be tackled in its final phases. The conference may turn this over to the United Nations, since it has no immediate bearing on Indonesian sovereignty.

No Reprisal, Johnson Says

make the remaining period of his service a fitting climax to his past distinguished career."

Karig later pointed out that only three jobs now are filled by admirals of Denfeld's rank: commanders of the Atlantic and Pacific Fleets, and the commander of the Mediterranean and Eastern Atlantic Forces.

It was his "personal opinion," Karig said, that Denfeld would retire from the Navy rather than accept a job with rank subordinate to that he now holds. He added he didn't know what posts had been offered Denfeld by Matthews.

Made "to Walk the Plank"

Premonitions of a storm which appears sure to break on Capitol Hill when Congress in January came from many sources.

Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee before which Denfeld gave the testimony which led to his ouster, said he had been made to "walk the plank." Vinson declared Denfeld's ouster was a "reprisal" for warning that "the Navy is not being consulted as to its functions, that the Navy's roles and missions are being altered, that the naval air arm is being forced into a state of weakness and that the Navy is not accepted in the full partnership in the National defense structure."

He promised his committee would take up the case when Congress reconvened and that it would be thrashed out on the floor of the House.

Two members of Congress demanded that Secretary Matthews also be called on to resign. Representative Bates was one. The other was Senator Knowland (R., Calif.), who said it was "imperative" that Matthews quit so "a new top team can function properly."

'Can't Even Row a Boat'

"Matthews is absolutely unfit to hold the office," said Bates. "His naval experience is nil and he can't even row a boat."

Representative Sikes (D., Fla.) said removal of Denfeld could end in "supine surrender of the Nation's military security." Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (R., Mass.) declared the move had achieved "what the enemy could not do by gunfire, torpedoes and kamikazes."

From Representative Rivers (D., S. C.) came a demand for an early meeting of the House Armed Services Committee to go into the case.

Amid all the uproar, Admiral Denfeld was taking things calmly, his aide said. He left his office early yesterday and today will attend the Navy-Notre Dame game at Baltimore. There he will "sit in a box next to the Secretary of the Navy" and will "cheer for the Navy as he always has."

Adm. Sherman Refuses To Comment on Ouster

Beirut, Lebanon, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—Vice Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, commander of the Sixth Task Fleet, arrived today aboard the cruiser Des Moines and refused to comment on the ouster of Admiral Louis E. Denfeld as Chief of U. S. Naval Operations. He has been mentioned as a possible successor to Denfeld.

"No comment, no press conference," Sherman said.

Hongkong, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—Chinese Nationalist government agencies rushed today to withdraw their accounts from British banks to prevent their being frozen in the face of reports Britain might recognize the Communist regime in China in a few weeks.

The manager of a Chinese government bank here indicated the government banks had received what they believed to be "accurate information from London" that British recognition was probable within two months at the most, and possible within 30 days.

Ranking British military and civilian officials here were examining all phases of Chinese Communist recognition.

Colonial Undersecretary David Rees-Williams arrived from London and went into conference with Chief of the Imperial General Staff Field Marshal Sir William Slim and British Ambassador to China Sir Ralph Stevenson.

Rees-Williams and Stevenson planned to depart for Singapore to hear views of other commonwealth representatives before returning to London for final reshaping of British policy concerning the Communist regime.

Chinese Nationalist sources said government agencies were withdrawing their accounts from banks and from other British cities, including London.

The Nationalists' military picture steadily worsened.

One report said the Communists were slowly squeezing government troops on Kwangchowan peninsula.

Chinese press dispatches gave new details to Communist reports of wiping out of four government armies near Yeungkong, 120 miles southeast of Canton.

Nationalists Put Ban On Military News

Chungking, Oct. 28 (AP). — The Chinese Nationalists today forbade publication of any military news not issued through official channels.

The defense ministry threatened unspecified punishment.

Managers Urged To Battle Reds With Advertising

Searcy, Ark., Oct. 28 (AP) — A group of industrial managers was told today that advertising can be a useful weapon in combating communism.

Suggesting use of advertising in "selling Americanism to Americans" was Ken Wells, director of the joint committee of the Association of National Advertisers and the American Association of Advertising Agencies.

Wells spoke at the last session of Harding College's Freedom Forum, a five-day seminar to teach the principles underlying the American way of life and to encourage development of economic education programs.

Kendrick Begins 2d Tour of Duty At Walter Reed

Lieut. Col. Douglas B. Kendrick yesterday began his second tour of duty at Walter Reed General Hospital, this time as assistant chief of surgery.

Col. Kendrick

His former assignment here was from 1937 through 1944, interrupted by a year of experimental surgery at the Mayo Clinic in 1938. On his return he headed the hospital's blood and plasma program until assigned to the Tenth Army at Okinawa in 1944.

A native of Georgia, Kendrick received his medical degree in 1931 from Emory University, Atlanta, and served as a surgical resident there for three years before joining the Army Medical Corps.

He lives with his wife at 1017 Elm ave., Takoma Park, Md.

Priest Gets Jail Term

Montreal, Oct. 28 (AP).—The Rev. Joseph A. Taillefer, Roman Catholic priest, who pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to possess and distribute and to selling narcotics, was sentenced today to two years in penitentiary and fined $3000, or an additional year.

Delay Refused in Trial Of Bridges and 2 Aides

San Francisco, Oct. 28 (AP). — Federal Judge George B. Harris today denied a motion to postpone the November 14 criminal trial of Harry Bridges and two of his aides.

Bridges is accused of perjury, in denying at his naturalization proceedings that he was a Communist. Two of his aides—Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson—are to be tried with him on conspiracy charges arising from the same contention.

Israel Gives U. N. Unit A Virtual Ultimatum

Lake Success, Oct. 28 (NYHT).—Israel today handed a virtual ultimatum to the United Nations Palestine Conciliation Commission implicitly threatening to break with the slow-moving commission unless Arabs and Jews could be brought face to face in direct negotiations on boundaries and, subsequently, on a peace settlement.

The commission is composed of the United States, France and Turkey.

Pending direct negotiations on formal frontiers between Israel on one hand, and Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon on the other, Israel would continue to hold by military occupation all the area it now controls.

A series of armistice agreements were negotiated at Rhodes by Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, acting U. N. Palestine mediator.

Suicide Pilot Dies By Gun

SAMUEL WATKINS, 23, of Farmville, Va., stole a small plane in Clearwater, Fla., dived it wildly for two hours over the terrorized town, then landed and shot himself to death. Police withheld the name of his girl friend, whom he telephoned and said he would take his life. His body will be sent to his home for burial

Ex-Deputy Now Admits Link to KKK

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 28 (AP).—Coleman A. (Brownie) Lollar today admitted for the first time he is a former Ku Klux Klansman. But he said he is not a flogger and never had been one.

The 35-year-old former special deputy entered a blanket denial to a charge of flogging while masked.

His trial is the first of 18 arising from a wave of night-riding last spring.

Mrs. Hugh McDanal, 42-year-old grandmother, identified Lollar as one of her attackers the night of June 10.

Lollar testified he had never seen Mrs. McDanal before and had never been in her home.

He said he went to a baseball game the night of the raid. Three of his neighbors testified they were with him.

Iraq Denies Persecution Of Jews

Baghdad, Iraq, Oct. 28 (AP).—An Iraqi government spokesman said today that Tel Aviv broadcasts charging Jews are being persecuted in Iraq are "totally unfounded."

(An Israeli foreign office spokesman said in Tel Aviv Sunday Israel had asked the United States and Britain to intervene in Baghdad to halt what he called persecution of Jews. He said Jews were being arrested, tortured, and their property seized.)

The government spokesman said there were less than 40 Jews arrested recently under due process of law. He said investigations showed those arrested were guilty of "illegal actions."

The Baghdad press cautioned Iraqi Jews not to "drift with the Zionist propaganda or act provocatively according to the instructions of the Tel Aviv propaganda."

Columbia U. to Probe Public Opinion Polls

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Shades of last year's presidential election upset!

The Rockefeller Foundation has given Columbia University $7000 to investigate the reliability of public opinion polls.

The university Bureau of Applied Social Research will conduct the project.

Beatty Death Suicide

London, Oct. 28 (U.P.)—A coroner returned a verdict of suicide today in the death of the Hon. Peter Beatty, 39, wealthy Britisher who plunged from a sixth floor window of the fashionable Ritz Hotel when he learned he was going blind.

West Germany Demands More Concessions

Bonn, Germany, Oct. 28 (AP).—The West German government has demanded more Allied concessions to counter the appeal of Soviet promises to the new East German satellite, it was disclosed today.

Konrad Adenauer, West German chancellor, was reported by authoritative sources to have told the Allied High Commission that Western Germans may be tempted by Russia's hints of a separate peace treaty with East Germany and the consequent promise of the withdrawal of Red army troops.

Other moves that might appeal to the German people, Adenauer was reported to have said, were the appointment of an East German foreign minister and the formation of a 'people's police" force controlled by Germans.

It was announced Germany will participate as an equal member in the organization for European Economic Cooperation.

Dr. Franz Bluecher, West Germany's vice chancellor, will leave Saturday to attend the OEEC meeting in Paris October 31.

Mahoney's Governorship Ball Rolling

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 28 (AP).—George P. Mahoney, former racing commission chairman, appeared today to be a sure candidate for the gubernatorial nomination in the Democratic primary next spring.

All that is missing is his formal declaration. And after a closed meeting of Democratic leaders of western Maryland here last night, he left no doubt as to his intentions.

"I can't conceive of any Marylander not accepting the highest honor the citizens of the State have to offer," Mahoney said.

Malta Trip for Elizabeth

London, Oct. 28 (U.P.)—Buckingham Palace announced tonight that Princess Elizabeth will fly to Malta on November 20 to join her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, who is on naval duty there.

Millionaire Drops Offer to Endow School

Natchez, Miss., Oct. 28 (AP).—Millionaire George W. Armstrong tonight announced he has withdrawn his offer of a 50-million-dollar endowment to Jefferson Military College.

Armstrong

"I have concluded to withdraw my offer to endow the college and to give my estate to the Judge Armstrong Foundation now under attack by the Truman New Deal Administration," he declared.

The 84-year-old Texas manufacturer and Mississippi land baron is known as "the Judge" since his days in Texas as a county judge.

His announcement was in a letter to Elliot Trimble, public relations counsel for the college.

It came as a surprise. The college board of trustees was scheduled to meet here at 9 a. m. Saturday to take formal action on Armstrong's offer.

Armstrong indicated he withdrew his offer to the 147-year-old prep school in nearby Washington after a statement by trustees yesterday saying there is no desire or intention to alter or change the college charter and that "students of all denominations may and shall be admitted to equal advantages of a liberal education."

The judge said the trustees' statement signed by Stanley N. Murphy, Gerard H. Brandon and Joseph E. Brown "repudiates" one of the conditions under which he had agreed to endow the college.

The condition called for exclusion of persons of African and Asiatic descent.

Armstrong denied he was opposed to the Jewish and Negro races as such, but added "I am opposed to racial mongrelization."

He denied also he had made an offer to give five million dollars to Southern Methodist University if trustees would bar Jewish students and discharge Umphrey Lee as president.

"I made no such offer," he declared, "and there was no such rejection."

Earlier tonight, a trustee of Jefferson College declared "there isn't enough money in the world to make us go through with the philosophy of education based on religious bias or anti-Semitic feeling."

Truman Signs Bill For Rural Phone Expansion Loans

President Truman yesterday signed a bill authorizing a loan program to expand rural telephone facilities and said it will fill a long-felt need and "strengthen our private enterprise system."

The measure provides for loans on the same principle now used by the electrification administration, which will administer the new law. Congress already has provided $25,000,000 to start the program.

"The need of our farm people for adequate telephone service at reasonable rates is second only to their need for dependable, low-cost electricity," Mr. Truman said in a statement.

Net of Pepco Mounts 17% In September

By S. Oliver Goodman

Net income of Potomac Electric Power Co. totaled $417,318 in September, an increase of 17.37 percent over the same 1948 period.

Last month's revenues of $2,817,293 mounted 4.79 percent, while operating costs of $2,328,803 (including provision for taxes) advanced 2.54 percent.

A company spokesman noted that the first of two 80,000-kilowatt generating units at the new Potomac River Station in Alexandria, Va., has been placed in service. The second unit of the same generating capacity is scheduled for completion during 1950.

Expenditures for the new generating station through September 30, and for the installation of other facilities during the nine months of 1949 have totaled about $25,300,000," an official said yesterday. He added that this represents an increase in plant investment of almost 20 percent since January 1.

Pepco's net income for the nine months to September 30 amounted to $3,439,037, an increase of 23.98 percent over the like 1948 period. Kilowatt hour sales were up 4.63 percent and operating revenues increased 13.95 percent. Operating costs, including taxes, advanced 10.23 percent.

IMPROVEMENT: Capital Transit Co. yesterday reported September net income of $29,503, as compared with a deficit of $36,406 in the same 1948 period. Operating revenues for the month gained 5.7 per cent, while operating costs and other charges were up 2.6 percent. For the first nine months, CTC showed net income of $527,801, as compared with $254,521 in the corresponding 1948 period. The upturn in income was due to a substantial fare increase since last year. Revenue passengers decreased 10.7 percent in the nine-month period.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Charles L. Huston, jr., has been elected president of the Lukens Steel Co. Coatesville, Pa., succeeding Robert W. Wolcott who was named board chairman . . . Dr. John H. Cover of the University of Maryland has been elected secretary-treasurer of the Associated University Bureaus, which includes directors of 45 university bureaus of business and economic research . . . William E. Haimphreys, president of Jacobs Transfer, Inc., of Washington, has been elected second vice president of the American Trucking Association . . . Hugh H. Cuthrell of Brooklyn is the new president of the American Trucking Association . . . Victor Emanuel is resigning as president and director of Standard Power & Light Corp. due to pressure of his duties as chairman and president of Avco Manufacturing Corp.

MERGER: An agreement whereby Virginia Electric & Power Co. will absorb the properties and business of the East Coast Electric Co. and assume its liabilities has been signed by directors of the two companies. Terms provide that shareholders of East Coast Electric will receive one share of Vepco common stock for each share of East Coast Electric common, plus a special cash dividend equal to the unrestricted earned surplus at the effective date of the acquisition. The agreement is still subject to approval of the holders of at least 80 percent of the outstanding East Coast Electric common stock.

INNOVATION: First for a Washington savings and loan institution is the night depository installed recently on the outside of the First Federal Savings & Loan Association, 610 13th st. nw. Conceived mainly for after-hour business, the depository is being used by some persons to save time during regular hours. A number of local banks have had such equipment for sometime.

APPLIANCES: Sales of television sets continued as the bright spot in the electric appliance field during September, according to the Electric Institute of Washington. Last month's sales of TV sets in Washington and two nearby Maryland counties totaled 3738, as compared with 2498 in the same 1948 month. Video sales for the first nine months totaled 23,229, against 11,747 in the same 1948 period.

EARNINGS: Chrysler Corp. reported net income of $97,651,453 or $11.22 a common share for the first nine months this year, compared with $59,887,601 or $6.88 a share in the same 1948 period. Other earnings statements:

Edwards' Selection To School Post Urged

District Board of Public Welfare yesterday recommended the appointment of John M. Edwards, 142 Upsal st. se., as business manager of the District Training School for Feeble Minded near Laurel.

The board at a meeting yesterday in Municipal Center asked the Commissioners to appoint Edwards, a supervisor in the General Accounting Office, to the $5232 a year position, to succeed James Owens, who resigned.

Edwards, 40, has been with the GAO since 1943. He was one of seven applicants for the position.

The Welfare Board also asked the Commissioners to approve erection of single-story, cottage-type buildings at the Children's Center to be built at Laurel in the next few years as the new home for several children's agencies now located in and around Washington.

The buildings would be paired off so that one man could supervise them at night. Each unit would accommodate from 25 to 30 children and the first construction is expected to house 265 youngsters from the Industrial Home School for White Children on Wisconsin ave. nw.

The board heard a report that employment of five guards last July at the District Training School for Boys has resulted in a sharp reduction in escapes there. In September nine fled and 13 were returned, including several who left the institution in previous months.

To Chest Drive

D. C. Rabbis To Ask Jews To Contribute

A letter from the Washington Board of Rabbis, calling on all Jews to contribute to the Community Chest Red Feather Campaign, will be read at Sabbath services in Washington synagogues today.

"Through the united efforts of all groups and creeds, including every local Jewish congregation, our beloved city must assure support for the fallen, healing for the sick, care for the aged, provision for the needy, prevention of disease and misery and other necessary measures to promote human welfare," the letter reads.

"The members (of the board) as spiritual leaders in Israel, urge every Jew to give freely and fully. Let every man give according to the capacity of his hand and the benevolence of his heart," the letter urges.

Window Displays Help

Step by step and day by day, Chest volunteers are reaching every individual in Greater Washington, through business, church and home in an effort to go over the top in this year's drive.

The campaign publicity committee, at its final meeting yesterday, reported that more than 1500 Red Feather car cards and 200 dash signs are on display in trolley cars and buses. Department stores and other retail establishments have Red Feather window displays.

Radio stations are helping with announcements and special programs, while the Red Feather symbol dances on television screens at least every half hour.

Report Meeting Monday

Hope runs high there will be good news when campaign leaders meet Monday at the Washington Hotel for the first general report luncheon.

The advance gifts unit learned yesterday it has reached 33 percent of its unpublished goal. Its gifts will be reported later through other units.

Andrews Air Force Base reported it has collected $2200 of its $3900 goal.

Building Line Fight Pushed By Residents

A group of 50 residents in the vicinity of 11th and Lamont sts. nw. determined to maintain the residential character of their area may force the removal of a newly constructed store on the corner.

The owner, Louis Burman of Burman Properties, Inc., said he stands to lose at least $50,000 through the determination of the neighborhood. He said he has not yet given up hope yet of negotiating a settlement with the residents although his legal fight which went to the Supreme Court has failed.

Burman erected a string of six stores—five on 11th st. and a sixth on the corner of 11th and Lamont. Lamont is included in an 1881 covenant covering some 30 full blocks from Florida ave. north to Park rd. and from 11th to 14th sts., which requires all building on the land to be 30 feet from the sidewalk.

The stores are right up to the sidewalk, a situation true of 14 of the 23 corners in the area, Burman declared. Razing the store back 30 feet will require removal, he said, since it would leave only a 100 square feet of space.

Burman said he consulted with the District inspection department and the corporation counsel's office before taking the steps to erect the building. "I am a victim of circumstances beyond my control and I cannot understand why these people are interested in my corner and not in the others."

John C. Poole and Dudley G. Skinker, attorneys at 1719 I st. nw., have an answer for this. They were employed by area residents, headed by Dr. Roscoe L. McKinney of 1118 Lamont st. nw., a professor at Howard University Medical School, to oppose the building.

They said property owners elsewhere in the covenanted tract have forfeited their rgiht of protest against building in violation of the 30-foot restriction by failing to do so promptly, but "these people are interested in their own neighborhood and asked for an injunction as soon as they saw what was going on."

"It is not just a matter of Burman's building alone. If the covenant is waived here it would open the door for everyone else. Such buildings would mushroom. These people have fought this as a matter of principle," Poole explained.

District Court ruled against the Burman firm in March 1948 and the appelate court upheld this position last May. Earlier this month the Supreme Court refused to review the case.

Crosby Glad to Sing In Prague Anytime

Hollywood, Oct. 28 (AP).—Bing Crosby will be glad to sing anytime in Prague, where he was criticized last night as a "greedy American money-seeker who sacrifices his art for gold"—but first he wants a flak suit for protection.

Refusing to take a Czech official's barbs seriously, Crosby today commented:

"I'll be gald to play Loew's Prague anytime. And I'll split with that commentator 80-20—he's on the short end, of course. Where can I get a flak suit?"

SHE LOVES IT! Bette Davis smilingly accepts David Brian's beastly attentions in the Warner's new melodrama, "Beyond the Forest." Joseph Cotten's also in the picture

D. C. Express Halted Short Of Rail Break

Philadelphia, Oct. 28 (AP).—Some 300 passengers on a Washington-to-New York express today were saved from a possible disaster by an unidentified man's keen eyesight.

Here's what happened:

The Speaker, Pennsylvania Railroad express, had just pulled out of Philadelphia en route to New York.

Unknown to the engineer, six miles ahead lay 10 inches of broken track.

At about that time, the unknown hero walked up to Patrolman Thomas Henon and asked why a section of rail looked as if it had taken "a terrific banging."

Henon promptly signalled his police radio room. Police notified the railroad. The train was flagged down two miles from the danger spot.

Bette Parades Wickedest Roles

By Richard L. Coe

BETTE DAVIS, in the Warner's "Beyond the Forest," is as frustrated as a lockjawed pigeon.

Everything thwarts Bette. She has everything from acute attacks of servant trouble to an illegal operation. Ever since the Warner advertised her as "A Midnight Girl in a 9 o'clock Town," I've been biting my nails for a look. Unfortunately, her writer, Lenore Coffee, and her director, King Vidor, have clearly gone out of their minds and the result is a caricature of every wicked role Bette's ever played. Let no one ever again caricature Bette; she's done it herself more dazzlingly than even Dean Murphy.

The story boils down to a hoked-up Wisconsin Emma Bovary, with Joseph Cotten playing her incredibly long-suffering husband. Bette's bored, bored, bored. Husband Cotton comes in from a night vigil with an eight-times mother:

"I've just saved a woman's life," says Joe.

"Saved it for what?" sneers Bette. "There's only one person in this town who does anybody any good. That's the undertaker."

"I'm going to bed," sighs Husband.

"That's big news. Where else could you go?"

While Cotten is being noble, Bette's making a play for a self-made billionaire — David Brian — who comes down from his Chicago pinnacle to rough it in the Wisconsin woods and with Bette. First he wants her. Then he doesn't want her. He's going to marry a sweet young thing. Then he finds that Chicago deb isn't a sweet young thing. He wants Bette. He'll marry her. She's going to have Doctor's baby. The idea would bore David, though he allows, "We're two of a kind, Rosa Moline." David's caretaker spills the beans. Bette kills him. Tells the court it was an accident.

This is by no means the end of the story. Before Husband's eyes, Bette throws herself off a mountainside; an operation relieves her of her child. Finally just when it looks as though Bette's going to Chicago, Chicago, Chicago, everyone connected with "Beyond the Forest" throws in the sponge and Bette's allowed a delirious trek, done up like one of Charles Addams' New Yorker ladies, down to watch the train pull through the station. Only here does Restraint rear its surprised head.

Max Is Busy

Of all Bette's troubles, her Indian servant problem is the most amusing. This pint-sized redskin is the end of impossible slaveys. She saucily sneers at Mistress Bette, never wears her uniform, lets dust from the lumber mill pile up all over the house and evidently is the straw which breaks Bette's sturdy little back. When Bette decks herself out for the last time in her black, tight-fitting dress, Jenny hauls out Bette's best fur coat.

"You wear that yourself," spits Bette. "No more dead cat for me—MINK!"

Not only do you get all this, but there's Max Steiner's lush background music to lull you along. You know Max. He's all-out in this one.

"Rosa Moline" is a hot lass indeed, but you never once believe she exists, any more than you do that husbands of hers or her vacillating boy friend. Just a stack of cards, a stack of cards.

CONNIE B. GAY'S hillbillies and folk tunes, having conquered the concert halls, now move on to fresh worlds . . . The hill ballads will be a twice-nightly feature beginning next Wednesday in the Raleigh's swank Pall Mall Room

"BEYOND THE FOREST." Warner Brothers release produced by Henry Blanke. Screen play by Lenore Coffee from a novel by Stuart Engstrand. Photographed by Robert Burks. Music by Max Steiner. Directed by King Vidor. At the Warner.

. . . Shoes will be worn . . . Fashion Editor Peggy Preston will be seeing the ultimate gomments making the square dances to lustiest calls and the Raleigh's smart Colonel Schiffeler will be hearing new sounds in that hostelry so beloved of our musical visitors.

SWEDEN'S Aftontidnigen correspondent, Else Strom, corrects a recent item to the effect that Mauritz Stiller won a Nobel prize for "The Atonement of Gosta Berling" . . . This hogwash I must blame on UP's erroneous files . . . Mrs. Strom points out that Selma Lagerlof, who wrote this book "and many, many others, once got the Nobel prize" . . . Now if Mrs. Strom will explain why she wasn't at the phone Wednesday and whatever happened to Pinky, all will be clear!

PURCHASERS of tickets to the canceled Charles Laughton readings may get their refunds immediately at the Hayes Concert Bureau, 1107 G st.

HALLOWEEN isn't till Monday, but the theaters are celebrating today . . . To the Warner and Lust theater parties already announced for the Calvert, Kennedy, Sheridan, Silver, Tivoli, Uptown and MacArthur this morning and the Beverly, Penn, Colony, Seco, Takoma Kaywood, Cameo, Cheverly and Hyattsville this afternoon, add celebrations at the K-B theaters this afternoon . . . That is: the Apex, Atlas, Naylor, Senator and Princess.

Radio In Transit

The lively hearings before the District Public Utilities Commission on the subject of radio in transit afford an opportunity for airing all the arguments for and against travel to the accompaniment of music and vocalized advertising. But, as one of the witnesses said, the issue is not one to be decided by majority rule. As a matter of fact, to determine whether a majority of Washington residents favor or oppose these radio divertissements, it would be necessary to take a city-wide poll. And even if that were done, the PUC would still have a problem on its hands. For it has to consider the desirability of this innovation from several viewpoints: public convenience, comfort and safety.

If only a small minority of bus and trolley riders are annoyed or made nervous by radio broadcasts, it seems to The Washington Post that there is a strong argument against needlessly subjecting them to intrusive vocalism. The safety factor is another compelling consideration that the PUC must take into account. So long as soft music is played, the danger from accident is doubtless negligible. But subdued tinkles may soon give place to jazz tunes and raucous brass bands. In fact, there are indications that the change is already at hand, as some harassed patrons of trolleys and buses can testify.

So while we believe that it is desirable to encourage citizens to express their opinions, the right answer to the question posed will not be found by trying to decide what a majority of Washingtonians want. The question is, rather, whether those who object to compulsory listening to radio programs are entitled to protection and whether public safety may eventually be jeopardized by the distracting influence of loud music on susceptible drivers of public conveyances.

New Start In France

France's middle-of-the-road coalition government has been saved by the Assembly's acceptance of a ministry headed by the Catholic Republican leader Georges Bidault by an overwhelming majority. Thus a cabinet crisis lasting three weeks has been solved. Most of the familiar faces of the Queuille cabinet reappear, except that of the Socialist, Daniel Mayer, who precipitated the crisis by encouraging the agitation for wage increases which, in the opinion of Premier Queuille, would start a new spiral of inflation in France.

Mayer, who was Socialist Minister of Labor, had put his Socialist colleagues on the horns of a fresh dilemma, though their political life in the coalition is one dilemma after another. The fix they were in this time was that if they supported Mayer to a point beyond compromise they would risk their necks in new elections; if they didn't, then their weakened position as a working class party would be further jeopardized. The fear of elections was, evidently, decisive, and it looks as if the Bidault ministry has got Socialist acquiesence in holding the inflation line, though there will probably be compromises in behalf of the worst-paid workers in public enterprises.

The complexities of French politics are becoming so ramified that the onlooker abroad has been getting more and more puzzled by the maneuverings. The practice is to call upon the party responsible for a breakup to form a new government. Accordingly Jules Moch, as one of the strong men of the Socialist Party, was first approached, but his effort was fruitless. The Radical Socialist Rene Mayer, whose services have been notable in the fields of transport and finance, was then given a chance, but likewise failed. If M. Bidault had been unsuccessful, all three members of the coalition would have had to confess a complete stalemate, and there would have been a setback to French recovery and European collaboration while elections were being fought.

How long M. Bidault will last is a question that is now being asked. French cabinets are notoriously short-lived, but M. Bidault, hero of the resistance movement in wartime, is both adept and experienced, and he has the same advantage of Marshall aid that enabled his Radical predecessor, M. Queuille, to stay 13 months at the helm. What will impress the outsider is that M. Bidault is a good European. Indeed, he has the leading claim to parentage of the Council of Europe, and added proof that there is no reaction in this respect is retention at the Quai d'Orsay of Robert Schuman, who is a statesman of front rank.

Aside from the fiscal problem, courage in handling which may be stimulated by the example in Britain, Bidault's immediate worry is the problem of Germany in the light of the emergence of two Germanys. Bidault and Schuman belong to the French analogy of the Christian Democratic Party in Germany under Chancellor Adenauer. This is a good augury in itself. It has been said that a misunderstanding has grown up between Schuman and Adenauer, but no supporting evidence is known to the French, so that we may look to an exploration of a new initiative to bring West Germany in a more intimate relation with Europe. In more than one sense collapse of the coalition government at this time would have been a tragedy.

Unification's Sinews

General Eisenhower spoke a truism on unification when he observed that we have been expecting perfection too quickly. Certainly, the House Armed Services Committee investigation revealed a lot of ferment back of the facade and raised many questions that cannot be answered simply, either by law or by someone running to Congress. But it is sophomoric to contend, as some persons have done, that the explosive quality of the hearings has harmed unification. No problem was ever really solved by refusing to recognize it. If a cure is to be effected, then it is imperative to get at the cause of the malady.

It is impossible at this point to draw together all the strings left dangling in the House hearings. For example, it is unfortunate that the Air Force, Army and Defense Department had only one week together in which to rebut the charges made at considerable length by the Navy. Perhaps the adjournment of Congress made this curtailment inevitable. But, as a result, many of the answers were less specific than might be desired. The hearings closed on a sort of "You can't"-"We can too" basis.

But if some of the lessons must await more study when Congress reconvenes, a start can be made now to correct a good many of the difficulties which the hearings disclosed. To the extent that these difficulties are rooted in ignorance, misinformation and personality differences, cross-education within the services is the solvent. The first place for such exposure is the service academies, where teaching ought to be in terms of one over-all service, with emphasis on similarities rather than differences.

Old dogs also will have to learn new tricks. It is almost incredible to learn from General Bradley that no Navy pilot has flown the B-36. Nor had the Chief of Staff of the Air Force, General Vandenberg, been aboard an aircraft carrier at sea until last month. These are such obvious instances of insularity that they ought to lead Secretary Johnson to institute a program of deliberate transfers between the services. Good results have been obtained wherever thinking beyond the horizons of a single service has been encouraged, as in the Joint Staff and the unified service schools.

Two other important goals can be realized even without definite recommendations from Congress. The Joint Weapons Evaluation Board ought to take a cue from the congressional hearings and speed its decision on the worth of the B-36 in light of doubts cast upon it. Second and more important, there ought to be a study by a civilian board of strategic bombing and the whole complex of strategy as it relates to national objectives. The logical body to sponsor such a study is the National Security Council, which should have defined these objectives long before now.

Senator X

In an editorial on October 18 we charged that a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, whom we identified only as Senator X, had done a serious injustice and injury to Gen. Omar N. Bradley by divulging to the press answers given by the General in executive session to questions put to him by Senator X. These questions, we asserted, had been contrived to elicit from General Bradley sensational estimates of potential Russian military strength which he would by no means have been willing to disclose publicly. The effect was to represent General Bradley as a reckless scaremonger. We urged the Senate to investigate this breach of confidence and call the responsible Senator to account.

Two days after this deplorable leak occurred, the Appropriations Committee heard General Bradley in a public session. The following excerpts from the printed hearings may help the Senate if it cares to determine the identify of Senator X:

Senator Knowland. The second thing I would like to mention, Mr. Chairman, merely by way of passing, is that we had a meeting Friday or Saturday which was an executive meeting; and I was rather shocked to read in the papers some of the information which I felt had been more or less executive in character . . . I would certainly express the hope that nothing which the general or any other witness felt would adversely affect the national defense of the country would be discussed outside of the committee room.

General Bradley. I might say, Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, that I was very, very disturbed. I thought I was testifying in an executive session. A lot of the discussion was off the record.

Senator Hill. Do you want this on the record?

General Bradley. It might as well be on the record.

* * * *

Senator Wherry. One question I asked was this: Was not the maximum strength at the end of the Second World War 502 Russian divisions?

General Bradley. I do not remember how the question was put. I remember that you used the figure "502."

Senator Wherry. That was the number of Russian divisions at the end of the Second World War; is that not right?

General Bradley. I do not know; I do not remember the exact strength, sir.

Senator Wherry. I have used those figures before. But I agree with you that, if you want to go off the record, the information should be secret.

Trade Gap

It is self-evident that this country cannot sell more goods and services to other nations than it buys from them unless enough dollars are given away to cover the export excess. That is precisely what we have been doing over a long period of years. A special ECA report just released points out that since 1914 the United States has built up a so-called "favorable" trade balance of 101 billion dollars, offset in large part by Government grants of 49 billion dollars and Government loans amounting to 19 billion dollars, most of which are uncollectible. In other words, American taxpayers have in effect subsidized countries importing our goods to the tune of approximately 68 billion dollars since 1914.

The ECA report states that several courses are open to the United States: It can (1) continue this unsound subsidy policy, (2) let exports decline until they balance imports, (3) lend or invest in foreign countries amounts equal to the export excess or (4) close the gap between exports and imports by buying more from other countries and "insofar as feasible" expanding our foreign investment.

The report emphasizes the importance of stimulating imports to the United States from ECA countries. However, the problem is a larger one: namely, how to stimulate a general revival of trade that will enable non-Europeans as well as European countries, directly or indirectly, to earn more dollars for purchasing American goods. That is where we come into the picture. For unless the United States is willing to import more goods, foreign buyers will be unable to obtain dollars enough to bridge the huge gap between our exports and our imports, and will be forced to cut their purchasing. Hence the report stresses the need for further lowering of United States tariff barriers and reforms of hampering customs procedures. The ECA experts think that it would be practicable to increase our buying of goods and services from Europe by at least two billion dollars without harming our own producers. Expanded imports would also help to build up our stockpiles of essential raw materials and raise living standards here as well as abroad.

The economic arguments for import expansion are so compelling that most Americans are prepared to indorse them in principle. The trouble starts with efforts to apply them in practice. A section of Congress is already aroused by the concessions granted under reciprocal trade pacts. The effects of devaluation have not yet been seen in the import of goods, and there may be more confusion from Congress when this occurs. There is also grumbling about the trade restrictions, import quotas and discriminatory trade practices of deficit trading countries that have been forced to cut down their imports. Critics ask what we are getting in exchange for the concessions we have made or are being importuned to grant.

We may thus be quite sure that any substantial increase in imports of goods that compete with domestic products will bring a swarm of lobbyists to Washington when Congress reassembles to demand protection against invaders of their markets. The chief hope of defeating this anticipated onslaught lies in stressing the fact that our own export trade, as well as that of other nations, will shrink and all of us will be the poorer, if the United States refuses to heed the ECA's warning that we must buy more abroad in order to sell more abroad and avert a breakdown of world trade.

Minimum Wage

Although the new minimum wage law removes from coverage some workers included under the provisions of the old law, it substitutes real protection against substandard wages for the obsolete 40-cent figure set when living costs were much lower. It also provides for more effective enforcement of the law by authorizing the wage-hour administrator to bring suit on behalf of a worker for unpaid back wages. And by defining what is meant by regular rate of pay, it will enable employers and employes to determine the types of payment that should be taken into account in determining what is the regular rate of pay as a basis for computation of overtime payments.

Uncertainty regarding the applicability of the wage-hour law to retail and service establishments is removed by a provision specifically exempting from coverage establishments more than 50 percent of whose sales are intrastate. Similar provisions apply to laundries and concerns that clean or repair clothing. As a further defense against administrative rulings that have tended to break down distinctions between interstate and intrastate commerce and have led to unexpected claims for back pay, the law provides that coverage shall be extended only to workers whose jobs are "directly essential" to production in interstate commerce. Heretofore the limiting word has been "necessary" and it has been so loosely interpreted as to arouse widespread complaint of Federal invasion of the rights of the States over intrastate commerce.

Whether the revised language will resolve uncertainties of interpretation of course remains to be seen. But it will undoubtedly discourage the trend toward undue expansion of coverage by administrative rulings. Any legislation of this kind necessarily confers large discretionary powers on the administrative agency that enforces it. However, those powers are at least more clearly defined than formerly and the changes in the law will, we believe, insure better enforcement based on a sounder foundation.

"East And West"

I have watched with increasing regret the drift in your editorial policy which resulted October 25 in your recommendation of "some kind of recognition" of the Communist regime in China and depreciation of the "dead policy of fighting rearguard actions in behalf of hopeless causes" in eastern Asia.

What is it you desire? Do you really want the United States to recognize the regime of Mao Tze-tung, who boasts loudly of his anti-Americanism and his boot-licking devotion to Moscow? Do you really advocate a withdrawal from any eastern Asian positions that are still holding out against Communist domination? (The only one I can identify is the Republic of Korea, which is courageously holding a line against further Communist advance, and which has recently received (1) a 48-6 vote of confidence by the United Nations; and (2) a severe blow in congressional failure to vote on the proposed 150-million-dollar aid bill.)

What you call a "hopeless cause" is only hopeless to those who give up hope. As far back as 1946 I talked with a high American State Department official who expressed his personal opinion that the United States should withdraw from Korea and let Russia take it. As he said, "We shall have to stand against Russia some time and some place, but now is not the time, and this is not the place." This man is still in the State Department, in a place of even greater importance than he held then. With such views held by the men who make and direct our policy, is it any wonder our position in Asia has suffered so much?

The other evening I heard a notable Korean, Mr. Kim Dong Sung, tell an audience of Kiwanians, "We Orientals cannot understand why the United States, which did so much to win the war, is leaving the postwar decisions in Asia so largely to Russia." What he said seems, from any view of the Asian map, to make very solid sense. Isn't it time we stopped retreating, as your editorial seems to suggest we should keep on doing, and take a firm stand for protection of the democratic way of life? If we do not stand now, where shall we have to stand later? How can we improve our position by abandoning it?

Radio Regimentation

It has obviously not occurred to J. D. Johnston (letter published October 26), that among those who oppose transit radio are many who do enjoy good music, but whose taste and sense of fitness scarcely associate good music with the street traffic noises with which transit radio competes. There is a time and a place for everything.

But this sort of "reasoning" ignores the crux of the matter, which is simply this: if a publicly regulated monopoly whose transit service one must accept, or not get to work, is free to impose radio broadcasting upon even a minority of its nonvoluntary (but paying) passengers, who do not wish to be solicited to buy, or told what to think, or the time of day, then Washington's transit riders are being treated as if they were not individuals, but mass men or herded animals. If they accept radio regimentation they deserve no more pity than the herd-masses of Nazi Germany who willingly permitted public address systems everywhere to howl them into the abyss of intellectual impotence.

Is it not your thoughtful correspondent, J. D. Johnston, who has said that transit music puts the majority of commuters into a better mood? Let him reflect, if he can, the exact parallel between himself, being lulled into a better mood and the contented cow in the sterilized electric barn who gives more milk when subjected to radio "music." Are transit riders people or just a herd?

"Not a Bit of Sense"

Your issue of October 21 reports President Truman as telling a group of industrialists that there is "not a bit of sense in the world" in the current coal and steel strikes. His remark was aimed at them, not at the strikers, because of their unyielding attitude toward the strikers' demands.

In another column he is reported as bent on demanding more taxes at the next session of Congress. His ideas for promotion of a "welfare state" appear to be, not to help the undermost to help themselves by lightening their tax loads, but to pile them up by taking over more and more of the profits of industry for distribution in subsidies and other hand-outs galore to all who can't make ends meet because of the general inflation due to that kind of taxation.

The way things are going, there is a fast growing impression that the benumbed state of "not a bit of sense in the world" is by no means limited to its industrialists or their hired help.

"Trick Or Treat"

Another year has rolled around and the nightmare of having to put up with the "trick or treat" idea again fills me with dread. For at the last two days of this month we householders have to put up with multitudes of the "young fry" disturbing us late into the night. They come with large bags to fill with a lot of fruit, candy, cake or anything they can beg, and some of them come to our door more than once in one evening!

It is quite amusing that the lady who wrote in your issue of October 25 that she thinks they are just innocent "tots," when many of the ones we see are half-grown boys and girls, whom we do not know. They don't always "beg," they really demand treats, and our doorbell rings until we are quite nervous. We cannot read, and we dare not leave home, lest our clean windows and door screens be smeared with chalk or soap.

When our children were small they used to get lots of fun dressing up and playing ghost, but I never heard of them demanding treats. These doting mothers who want us to entertain their youngsters should get together and arrange little parties with cider and gingerbread, or whatever their younghopefuls like, and I am sure no one would object.

Defense Separatism

The recent squabble in the armed forces is a direct result of the evils of the separate services.

It would appear that the individualistic feeling on the part of the separate services, Army, Navy and Air Force, should be eliminated and this could be accomplished with the abolition of the traditional names to be replaced by Defense SAL (sea, air, land) with the same uniforms. Their only duty is to defend the country and any other purpose served is treasonable.

BARNETT GRIER.

Reactions To Denfeld's Ouster

Admiral Denfeld has been removed after Congress was given the assurance from Secretary Matthews that there was to be no retaliation. It is difficult to realize that such a thing could actually happen in our land of the free.

The real issue of all the controversy never has been the B-36 or unification, but simply the old prerogative of free speech.

Some of the red-blooded men of the Navy seemed to feel it was their privilege to present to their public their honest hopes and fears regarding vital facts concerning the safeguarding of our Nation. The acceptance or rejection of their statements was the public's privilege—but reprisals are too terrifying in their implication to be tolerated by American citizens.

MARGUERITE M. HAMILTON.
Washington.

As I recall, the Vinson committee's study of unification was intended to have an admirable purpose; the clarification of issues and, thereby, the strengthening of our country's defense.

Navy officers called to testify were asked to speak the truth as they saw it. They did.

Now it appears that "to speak the truth as they saw it" meant to agree with every move of Secretary Louis A. Johnson or to be—shall we say—eliminated.

A single remark of Gen. Omar N. Bradley, his reference to dissenting admirals as "fancy Dans," seemed to me far more poisonous to the spirit of unification than the entire Denfeld testimony. Is there a headline: "Bradley Ouster Talk Mounting?"

As one who doesn't give a whit who rules the Pentagon—the Navy, the Air Force, the Army, or the Boy Scouts—so long as America is prepared to win a war if it has to fight it, I protest the ousting of a man who put his honest convictions above safe political strategy.

MARY E. COULSON.
Arlington.

The most disturbing aspect of the unification discord, in my opinion, is the attitude of the press toward the outspoken admirals. In its broad implications this attitude is more alarming even than the totalitarianism being displayed by the Secretary of Defense and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, or the helplessness of the Navy leaders to arouse a sleeping public to its danger.

When a few brave patriots have the courage and the lack of self-interest to speak up against authoritarianism in high places, in the sincere belief that they owe something more to their country than a selfish desire for advancement, they deserve better from that country's press than the condemnation and ridicule to which they are being subjected.

Betting Odds On Tomorrow

By Malvina Lindsay

Short Term Hopes

"I GUESS I might as well give up," said the gloomy citizen, "and start looking for a remote island—one pleasant and fruitful, of course."

"What's the matter?" asked the determined optimist. "Have the steel and coal strikes, and the new appropriations for 'fantastic weapons' gotten you down?"

"Partly. And what I see when I look closer homeward—this 'me-me' business."

"You mean what Dr. Nourse, the President's economic adviser, said when he resigned?"

"Exactly! Government, labor, business, defense services, political parties all grabbing like 5-year-olds for their own advantages in the face of national peril."

"After all, Dr. Nourse did say, 'I still pin my faith on the educational process'."

"It's too slow. Besides, the grabbers are well enough educated. You can't change human nature by—"

"Stop! That's been copyrighted by Congress! Besides, no one's expecting to reform people in a hurry—rather inform 'em, I'd say."

"So they can grab more effectively?"

"No. I mean getting the mass of people better informed so they'll look after their own and their country's interests better."

THE GLOOMY citizen shook his head. "'Education for citizenship'—a fine phrase. Maybe in another century."

"No, we'll see results quicker. Think of all the grown-ups who're going to school! That's one of the greatest things about this country. We have millions of adults crowding into all the courses colleges, junior colleges, even high schools, will give them. About three million past school age are taking courses in the public schools, no one knows how many in the endowed colleges. A million and a half are subscribers to correspondence courses. The Office of Education estimates about 40 million in all are interested in continuing their education."

"Yes and for what? So they can get ahead, make more money."

"Yes, lots are trying to increase their earning capacity. That's natural. But reports show many are going to school after work merely to improve their general knowledge. It's surprising how many grayheads you'll find in night courses in economics, political science, sociology. What does this mean? Why, that our so-called aging population may be more of an asset than we realize. It'll have time to think and to inform itself before it goes to the ballot box.

"Yes, and we may get another; 'Me-me' group.

"MAYBE . . . but I have a hunch that lots of people will eventually be educated out of political stupidity if not selfishness. As they get informed in the broader sense of the word, they'll be able to see beyond their noses, see that they're going to be losers in the long run if their actions don't benefit their country, or even the world."

"Just the same," insisted the gloomy citizen, "knowledge alone won't buck the 'me-me' force."

"You're right. Our only ultimate escape from bombs, germs, 'me-me-ism' is through man's spirit—changing human nature if you please. But I insist a few short term measures hold hope. Let's leave the older school boys and girls and look at the kids. Think what's we're beginning to do at long last in educating them emotionally."

"But that's not going to root out the 'me-me'."

"No, but a lot of this striving for place Dr. Nourse found so frustrating is based on childishness. We all have it in varying degrees. But if we could be caught early enough, trained to work with others and not blow our tops when things don't go exactly our way, we'd have a lot more harmony."

"Making people grow up is a big order."

"Anyway, we've finally awakened to the fact that in many ways we're grown-up brats. That's something. See how brattishness flares in the U. N., in our own Government, in Congress, in strike negotiations, in disputes of the services. If we could get a lot more real instead of pseudo-grownups into the world, I'd put some good bets on tomorrow."

"We--ll," said the gloomy citizen, "I may postpone looking for my island—for a few more days."

Mental Ills

Much is heard these days concerning the segregation of germs, of serums that are said to counteract disease, while dogs are daily dissected in attempts to banish human ailments. But deadly mental germs that infest the minds of men are generally ignored by hosts of medical practioners. Frequently, physicians fight ill effects, without uprooting unholy causes. Hatred and fear are mental poisons, and worry alone carries armies of men and women to early graves.

When the mind is cleared of its debris, we will have a cleaner, finer and far healthier world. Serums will not destroy sin or correct the maladjustments of life, which are so very much in evidence.

Swedish Welfare

By Marquis Childs

Health Insurance Experience

STOCKHOLM, Sweden.—The stream of students, professors, Congressmen and just plain citizens who come here to look into Sweden's elaborate system of social reform are almost all impressed by at least one fact. That is the lengthy experimentation and study that have preceded most of the reforms making up the Swedish welfare program.

The government recently pushed through a compulsory health insurance system which will go into effect in 1951. But this step was taken against a background of voluntary health insurance and state-supported medicine that goes back 300 years.

Voluntary insurance societies, supported by government subsidies, had developed so that they include more than 60 percent of the population in a single government-sponsored system. This was not, however, considered adequate, since it did not cover the lower-income groups.

What the new law has done is to expand the voluntary system to cover the whole population. About $5 a year will be added to each taxpayer's tax bill for health insurance and this will meet about a third of the cost. The balance will come out of general tax revenue.

WHILE there was strong opposition to making the system compulsory, especially from the doctors, the decision was not taken entirely on party lines. Even some conservatives recognized that a drastic step was necessary to raise the level of medical care. The number of doctors in proportion to the population is considerably lower here than it is in America.

For many years children in all Swedish schools have received free medical examinations and a large measure of free medical care. This has been true both in the city and the country.

Hospital care has long been subsidized by municipalities, counties, and to some extent by the central government. At Stockholm's handsome new 1200-bed hospital the patient pays about 80 cents a day and this covers medicines, X-ray, everything. The actual cost is $5.60 a day and the difference is made up by the public subsidy.

Likewise in Norway a voluntary health insurance plan in force since 1911 has gradually evolved to cover an ever greater number of persons. Now it is to be extended to cover the whole population. In Norway the individual pays six elevenths of the cost of the scheme, the employer two elevenths, the municipality one eleventh and the central government two elevenths.

The contrast with the United States doesn't need much pointing up. Because of the persistent and prolonged opposition to voluntary health insurance, we have had very little experience in this field. That means it would be all the more difficult in America, with its wide differences of geography and custom, to impose a uniform compulsory system.

IN SCANDINAVIA they have learned through experimentation something that the British are discovering in the most costly fashion. To give drugs entirely free under a health insurance system is to risk bankrupting the system. They tried it in Norway and the cost skyrocketed.

Similarly, experience here has indicated that you are asking too much of human nature if you make the service of the doctor entirely free. Experience has shown that if the individual pays half of the cost of the first visit to a doctor and perhaps a fraction of the cost of the second and third visits, there will be fewer abuses.

In Norway they have tried hard to preserve the doctor-patient relationship within the impersonality of an insurance scheme. Thus the patient selects his own physician and pays the doctor the fee. He is later reimbursed by the insurance system.

Reforms here in this northern welfare zone often seem radical, but they can almost always be traced to carefully calculated social policy. Every mother in Sweden is paid $50 a year for every child under 16 years of age. Most mothers and children are given vacation allowances by the state. Such laws have their origin in the fact that before the war Sweden's birth rate was declining so rapidly there would soon be too few people to carry on in a country of this size.

Most of the opposition is on the score of cost, and that is particularly true, as in America, of the compulsory health insurance plan. The powerful employers' organization charged that the government had failed to make anything like an accurate calculation of the cost of the scheme. But here they can at least come closer to knowing the cost, since for so long they have been experimenting with ways and means for curing the ills that beset human society.

has been accused of encouraging the support of Communists, the other of suggesting a "bloody revolution."

Both men were obviously pushed into making the race. The Truman Administration picked Lehman as a tested vote-getter. Dulles ran as a favor to Governor Dewey. But the rough house debate is their own doing.

Behind Lehman are not only the national, State and city Democratic organizations, but the combined AFL-CIO forces, united behind a candidate as they never have been before in this State. For this is a "trial run" for labor, too. In New York, labor is closing ranks in precisely the same phalanx it may form in Ohio next year.

The first "United Labor Committee" of its kind has been formed and has already distributed some 3½ million circulars. The joint labor effort produced a monster rally for the entire Democratic ticket in Madison Square Garden Thursday night and contributed to the biggest-yet reception for Lehman in tipsy Buffalo the night before.

This is by far the strongest factor for Lehman. AFL-CIO forces are out for repeal of the Taft-Hartly Act and Lehman has promised to work in the Senate "with my whole heart and soul" for repeal.

Behind Dulles primarily is the still strong State organization of Governor Dewey, who at times seems to be running vicariously in this campaign. Governor Dewey is stumping the State for Dulles as furiously as the candidate himself. Lehman likes to refer to "my two opponents." Dulles has no organized labor support but his GOP predecessors have usually been able to bring down a large up-State majority without it. Thus Dulles has been pounding up-State roads in his bus while Lehman mainly concentrates his drive in and around the city.

A new political factor, of undetermined strength, has recently entered the contest on Dulles' side. Doctors and dentists, fearful that the "welfare state" may embrace "socialized medicine," are openly active for Dulles all over the State.

In his cooler moments, former Governor Lehman, campaigning as if he were 20 years younger, insists the stakes boil down to:

"Liberalism versus reaction. The issue is whether we are going to turn back the clock and supinely yield to demands of reactionary Republican leaders, that we give up the fight for human rights and human liberty."

In his milder speeches, Senator Dulles, criss-crossing 3000 miles of the State by bus, says he is the one who is conducting the fight for "human freedom."

Said Dulles: 'The Republican Party should give the American people a clear-cut chance to reject the political philosophy of servitude and to go forward, creatively and dynamically, in the other way."

Dulles led off with an attack on "statism" but lately has shunned use of the term. Instead, he spells out what he means by an "all powerful State." Almost never does he use the term "welfare state," which Republicans regard as free Democratic advertising.

Lehman grabs at the "welfare state" issue, says he is proud that for ten years as Governor of New York he headed one.

So it is that this special election has jumped the gun by more than a year on what was billed to be the first straight-out test of the "fair deal"—Senator Robert A. Taft's campaign for reelection in Ohio.

A strictly State contest has burgeoned out into a national "trial run." Observers are watching it not only for some clews to the outcome of the 1950 congressional elections, but for an inkling on what the winds might blow in the 1952 presidential year.

Complicating the Senate contest, but explaining much of the furor, are New York City's splinter parties and the equally confusing mayoralty campaign.

Running for reelection as Mayor on the Democratic ticket with Lehman is Mayor William O'Dwyer. Supporting Lehman, but not O'Dwyer, is New York's Liberal Party, led by David Dubinsky's International Ladies' Garment Workers. In the mayoralty race, the Republican and Liberal parties have nominated a "fusion" candidate, Newbold Morris. Morris hasn't said whether he will support Lehman or Dulles.

Most befuddled factor in the race is the left-wing-dominated American Labor Party, striving again for a balance-of-power position in the State. The ALP nominated its head man, Representative Vito Marcantonio, for Mayor, but did not put up a candidate for Senator. Marcantonio, reputedly, has instructed the "core" of his three to four hundred thousand strong party to "bullet vote," namely to vote only for ALP candidates, cutting both Lehman and Dulles.

Dulles wouldn't pick up an ALP vote in any case, but if the going gets really close Lehman may find need of ALP votes to win. How many he will get, despite the "bullet voting," will be an important election influence.

Registration of voters, stirred up by the unexpected heat of the campaign, has climbed to 6,366,322 for the State as a whole, a new record for an off year.

In heavily Democratic New York City, the total stood at 2,774,308, a gain of 411,560 over 1947 and 572,150 over 1945.

In the balance of the State, where Republicans have the margin, registrations totaled 3,592,014. This was 275,129 higher than in 1947 and an increase of 627,620 over 1945.

Democrats claim a registration break in their favor, but the upstate versus city turnouts on election day (November 8) will tell the story.

Veteran observers here figure it this way: Lehman will win comfortably if New York City gives him a majority of 700,000 or more. But if Lehman gets only 600,000 edge in the city, the outcome may be close, with Lehman possibly winning by a squeak. If Lehman gets substantially less than 6,000 in the city, the Republican upstate margin is almost certain to wipe it out for a Dulles win.

The Gallup Poll

Voters Leaning More to Idea Of Woman as U. S. President

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 28.—A woman for President of the United States?

American voters are getting to like that idea better and better.

Twelve years ago they turned thumbs down on it with a resounding NO in an institute survey. Today the cause of women's rights has advanced to the point where opinion is evenly divided on the idea of a woman for President.

The idea of a woman in the White House was put before the Nation's voters by the institute in interviews with a balanced cross-section in all States. Here are the results and a comparison with a similar survey in 1937:

"If the party whose candidate you most often support nominated a woman for President of the United States, would you vote for her if she seemed qualified for the job?"

	Today	1937
Yes	48%	33%
No	48	63
No opinion	4	4

MEN	Today	1937
Yes	45%	27%
No	50	69
No	5	4

WOMEN	Today	1937
Yes	51%	40%
No	46	57
No opinion	3	3

Women play an increasingly important role in nominating conventions, and there has been some discussion about the possibility of one being nominated for Vice President in 1952.

The survey vote on this idea s as follows:

"Would you vote for a woman for vice president of the United States if she seemed qualified for the job?"

Yes	53%
No	43
No opinion	4

Brain Surgery On Criminal Successful

Miami, Fla., Oct. 28 (U.P.) — A youthful criminal stirred to semi-consciousness in a hospital bed today and won the first hand in his gamble to become a new man.

His healthy body successfully survived a delicate brain operation performed yesterday.

Charles Hinkley, 25, a "black sheep" of his family, staked his life against a career of thievery, bad checks and jails. He gambled that he would become a new and better personality and that society would give him another chance.

"Just Like a Baby"

Hinkley woke to a new world this morning. His doctor said he reacted "just like a baby" at first. Later his movements, speech and expressed thoughts were "nearly normal" with only occasional relapses.

Hinkley lay on the operating table for 2½ hours while surgeons bored two holes through his skull and cut the prefrontal lobe from the rest of his brain.

The operation was made to untangle the emotional twists which have moved the youth to crime. The second step—to reeducate him into a moral person capable of useful life—is his biggest trial.

Within 90 days he will be legally competent to face society. He is wanted in five States on check passing charges and could be sent to prison for life under the Florida habitual criminal law.

Docile After Operation Now

Hinkley almost completely lacks emotion and initiative, doctors said. He may even ask permission to do such simple things as smoke a cigarette or take a drink of water.

Attorneys, with a psychiatrist's report on Hinkley's new personality, will go before Criminal Court Judge Ben C. Willard to request another chance for the youth.

They want to place him with a good family — his own parents are dead—get him a job and give psychologists at least six months to continue his moral retraining.

Hinkley may get his chance. Judge Willard wished him luck when he granted his request to risk the operation.

Inspectors Fail To Find Polio Attack Clews

District health inspectors yesterday searched for polio potentialities in an apartment development area at 2600 Southern ave. se., and found nothing amiss.

The survey was similar to one made Tuesday by Prince Georges County health and sanitation engineers.

Sole indication that polio may be lurking there, the investigators said, is the tenant casualty list since mid-September. It includes two adult deaths, one child now hospitalized, one baby with paralysis of the right leg, and two child recoveries—all attributed to polio attacks.

Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, acting District health officer, ordered the new inspection, with cooperation of the county authorities, on the plea of relatives of James W. Carter, jr., 30, who died Wednesday night at Gallinger Hospital.

Making yesterday's survey were E. M. Dulin, assistant director of the District's bureau of public health engineering; J. W. Fitzpatrick, Public Health Service sanitary engineer and rodent control expert, on loan to the District; R. P. Rizi, District sanitary engineer; R. S. Wilson, the bureau's chief inspector, and Montgomery Morrow, Prince Georges County sanitation chief.

Morrow also reported that laboratory reports of water samples taken Tuesday by the county inspectors were received yesterday. These findings, too, were negative, he said. The District inspectors took additional water samples for analysis from kitchen taps in apartments within the District.

Both Morrow and Dulin indorsed a general statement that "few places are as clean or as well kept as this development."

First polio death at the year-old development was that of Lorne Birch, 27, an attorney, of 2615 Southern ave., who died October 11 at Gallinger Hospital of bulbar polio.

Yesterday Prince Georges County health officers announced that the county toll so far this year reached 51 new cases of polio. Latest two cases recorded for the county, they said, include that of an 8-month-old girl of the 4700 block of Homer ave., Suitland, who was taken to Children's Hospital Tuesday.

The second case, they said, was previously recorded in the District but later found to be a county resident. The victim was identified as a 30-year-old Army lieutenant whose home address in the 4200 block of Wheeler rd. se., is just beyond the District line.

Montgomery County officials yesterday came up with their thirty-first case of the year, a 24-year-old man of the 700 block of Dartmouth ave., Silver Spring. The victim was stricken on September 3 in Raleigh, N. C., but, health department officials explained, rules specify that cases will be carried in the home county of the patient. He has since been released from the hospital, they added.

New 'Spray' May Replace Hypo-Needle

The Army hypodermic needle, which soldiers describe as square-ended and propellor-tipped, may be on its way out.

It may be replaced by hypospray injectors, which painlessly blast inoculants under the skin to accomplish the same purpose—immunization.

At least, the Army has tried out the new injection instruments on inductees at Camp Pickett, Va., and found their use "entirely feasible and virtually painless," it was reported yesterday.

Dr. H. C. Batson, chief of the biologic products department, Army Medical Center, here, made the report before the laboratory section, American Public Health Association, in annual convention in New York.

Stripped of medical verbiage, his findings showed that hypospray injections caused far less initial pain than conventional needle injections, that more soldiers got sore arms from the new method, and that fewer got the severe reactions which often follow typhoid inoculations.

As to immunizing value, he reported the new injections were as good and even slightly better, than the needle and syringe technique.

Dr. Batson said his tests were made only on typhoid vaccines, and not through the entire range of immunizing agents to which the soldier is subject.

Introduced Here in '47

The medical weapon was first introduced to the world at the 1947 annual scientific assembly of the District Medical Society. Dr. Edward B. Tuohy, professor of anesthesiology at Georgetown University School of Medicine, demonstrated its use in an unscheduled performance at the closing session.

The hypospray, which looks much like a standard, two-cell flashlight, is a cylinder of stainless steel containing a special air-gun. A screw-type compressor at one end builds up air pressure inside up to 125 pounds to the square inch.

At the "bulb" end is a clamp to hold the metapules, or metal capsules containing the liquid to be injected. The gun is "shot" by pressing a pushbutton, releasing the air to blast the medicine through a tiny hole at the end of the metapule.

Highway officials guess the increase is coming from the Canal rd.-Foxhall rd. area, or from Memorial Bridge. Surveys are being made to determine the source and whether the increase can be expected to be permanent.

2. Traffic on K st. west of 24th st. has increased an average of 13,780 cars a day since the freeway opened. The figures jumped from 4332 to 18,112.

3. Traffic on Pennsylvania ave. west of 24th st. has slumped an average of 4688—from 18,381 to 13,693.

4. Traffic at Washington Circle has jumped 9092 daily. Morning rush-hour east-bound traffic at the circle has increased from 978 to 1643.

Pay Increases for 1,390,000 Signed Into Law by Truman

the 5000 legislative employes will get a 5 per cent pay boost.

In addition to the pay raise, the classified law will merge the 31 different CAF, P, and SP grades into a single General Schedule (GS) of 18 grades. A separate schedule of 10 grades is provided for the 100,000 workers in the (CPC) Crafts, Protective and Custodial Service. Pay boosts for CPC employes will average a $125 a year.

The classified bill also provides three longevity promotions over the maximums of the first 10 GS grades and all CPC grades. To be eligible for a longevity raise, an employe must have been at the maximum of his grade for at least three years and meet other requirements.

Automatic in-grade promotions will be speeded up under the new law as they will be given every 52 weeks to employes in the first 10 GS grades and every 78 weeks for employes in grades GS-11 through 17.

Each agency is required under the bill to set up a committee to make rewards to employes who do outstanding work.

The classified law directs the Civil Service Commission to make recommendations before February 1 on how the efficiency rating system can be streamlined and the commission is given a year to recommend a pay differential for employes in dangerous work.

Between 20,000 and 25,000 additional employes are brought in under the classified pay system by the act such as employes of Federal Housing, Reconstruction Finance, Displaced Persons Commission, Export-Import Bank and others. The 3,800 employes in the clerical-mechanical service of the Bureau of Engraving & Printing are the only sizable group taken out of the classified service. The wages of these employes will be fixed by the Treasury wage board.

Under the new postal pay act, fourth class postmasters will get a 5 percent wage boost and hourly employes will get 2½ cents an hour increase. The two lower grades are wiped out for regular employes which has the effect of boosting the starting salary to $2,870 for clerks and carriers. However, substitutes and temporaries must serve at least a year, unless they are promoted to regulars in the meantime, before they can be promoted to Grade 3.

Thre longevity grades of $100 each are provided in the bill and they will be given postal employes after 13, 18, and 25 years of service.

The three pay measures will cost an estimated $240,000,000 a year.

Meantime, the Atomic Energy Commission, one of the few agencies exempt from the act, informed its employes yesterday that their salaries would be raised in line with the new law. Several other exempted agencies are expected to take similar action.

The text of the President's statemnet in signing the classified bill is as follows:

"I have today signed H. R. 5931, the Classification Act of 1949. This act completely revises and brings up to date the salary structure for nearly half the civilian jobs of the Government—that is, nearly all of the jobs in the executive branch except those in the postal service and those paid on an hourly basis which are covered by other legislation.

"This legislation makes a number of significant improvements in the pay structure of the Government. It greatly simplifies the salary system by reducing the number of pay grades from 41 to 28, and at the same time, corrects inequities among the different grades which were created by piecemeal legislation over a period of years. It authorizes longevity step-increases above the maximum scheduled grade rate for employes with long, faithful and efficient service.

"The Act also adds three new grades at the top of the pay schedule, which will permit a limited number of the top career positions to be paid up to a maximum of $14,000. As a result of this action, it will be possible to increase the salaries of some top career positions whose incumbents have been paid the same salary as many of their subordinates. It will also make it possible for the Government to compete more effectively with higher-paying private employment for the services of outstanding people, and to offer a greater incentive to able young men and women considering whether to enter public service as a career.

"The new Classification Act also improves Federal personnel administration by decentralizing to the departments and agencies the responsibility for fixing the pay rate for each position, except those in the top three grades. This will eliminate one source of delay in appointing qualified personnel. At the same time, it will increase the responsibility of the departments and agencies for meeting their own position classification problems. These responsibilities must be carefully exercised. The Civil Service Commission, in carrying out its responsibilities for maintaining the consistency of salaries on a Government-wide basis, must also exercise its authority for prescribing standards and reviewing and inspecting the operations and decisions under the act to assure that its provisions are judiciously administered by all alike.

"The management improvement provisions of the act further assure economy and efficiency by requiring the department and agency heads to review their operations on a systematic and continuing basis. This provision recognizes the importance of improving the management of Government operations which was emphasized so strongly by the Hoover Commission and which is the purpose of the program provided for by a recent Executive order establishing the Advisory Committee on Management Improvement. Furthermore, it provides for the reward of those persons or groups of persons who have done an exceptional job in promoting economy and efficiency in the Government's work.

"This act is a major step forward toward better personnel administration and more effective management in the executive branch."

Service Will Mark Reformation Start

Washington Protestants will participate in a Reformation Day "Festival of Faith" at 8 p. m. Sunday in Constitution Hall.

The event will mark the 432d anniversary of the day on which Martin Luther posted his 95 theses on the door of Wittenberg Cathedral in Germany to launch the movement which became the Protestant Reformation.

Speaker at the festival, fourth to be held here, will be the Rev. Dr. Edwin T. Dahlberg, pastor of First Baptist Church, Syracuse, N. Y. The service will be sponsored by the Washington Federation of Churches.

Young people from the city's churches will join in the procession of the choir and clergymen, carrying the flags of the member-nations of the United Nations.

Dr. Dahlberg, author of "Youth and the Homes of Tomorrow," and "Which Way for a Christian?" is a member of the central committee of the World Council of Churches. He is also chairman of the department of evangelism of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

The Baptist clergyman has served two terms as president of the Northern Baptist Convention, is on the executive committee of the Baptist World Alliance, and the Board of Trustees of the Colgate-Rochester Divinity School.

The choir of the Washington-Lee High School, Alexandria, will sing at the festival.

St. Thomas to Hold All Saints Festival

An All Saints' Festival will take place at St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, 18th st. between P and Q sts. nw., at 11 a. m. Sunday.

The rector of the church, the Rev. Harold Bend Sedgwick, will preach, and special prayers, hymns and anthems will be offered. On All Saints' Day, Tuesday, there will be services at the church at 8 and 11 a. m.

Utah Centennial Chorus to Return To Capital Today

The Utah Centennial Chorus, a group of 12 young men devoting full time to the missionary work of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, will return to its Washington headquarters today.

Since it was formed last summer, the chorus has been making appearances in cities along the Eastern seaboard. Beginning on Wednesday, concerts will be given on Wednesday and Saturday nights at 8 o'clock in the Washington Chapel of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 16th st. and Columbia rd. nw.

During the next few months the chorus will give concerts under the direction of Conductor Chester Hill before church and civil groups in Washington and nearby Maryland and Virginia.

First Two Copies of 'World Bible' Given to Truman, Congress Librarian Luther Evans

LIBRARY COPY—A. Colish (left), Chicago printer who set the type, and B. D. Zevin (center), president of the World Publishing Co., of Cleveland and New York, present a copy of the Bruce Rogers World Bible to Luther Evans, Librarian of Congress. The new Bible contains more than 1100 pages and sells for $150 a copy

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

The first two copies of the new "World Bible" designed by Bruce Rogers were presented to President Truman to Librarian of Congress Luther Evans yesterday.

The first presentation occurred in a forenoon ceremony at the White House; the second in an afternoon ceremony at the Library, near the Gutenberg Bible, and was attended by several hundred persons.

The presentations were made by B. D. Zevin, president of World Publishing Co., of Cleveland, publisher of the new Bible. A Colish, printer of the book, was also present, but Rogers, 79, was unable to attend.

Rogers, dean of American book designers and internationally famous, is the only living book designer whose device—the thistle—is on the bronze doors of the Library of Congress rare book room.

Work of Lifetime

The new Bible crowns the work of a lifetime—during which Rogers has designed some 500 books and publications.

Describing this new Bible, he has said it is decorated with "headings to the 66 books, initial letters, and a bordered titlepage made up from type ornaments or flowers. These, together with the type selected, are intended to give a slightly oriental flavor to the volume, indicative of the Syriac and Hebrew sources of the text on which the King James translators based their classic version."

The type is the first use of a type face called Goudy Bible, modified from the late Frederic Goudy's Newstyle.

The "World Bible," which does not include the "Apocrypha," but contains "The Translators to the Readers" from the King James Bible. It contains about 1000 pages. The leaves are 13¼ x 18½ inches.

Rogers Second Bible

This is the second bible in the great tradition that Rogers has designed. In 1935 the Oxford University Press published the "Oxford Lectern Bible," on which Rogers had begun work in 1929. In this Bible he used a modification of his own, then new, Centaur type after considering for a time the Goudy Newstyle typeface.

The Oxford Bible is about 1250 pages. The leaves are 12 x 16 inches, to conform to the standard dimensions of the folio Bibles used on the brass lecterns of most English churches.

Because Rogers was not too happy about the required page size, several copies were printed with larger margins. One of these was presented to the Library of Congress—where it is now on exhibit with other Bibles—and the World Bible just given to the national library also has special features in the form of drawings in Rogers' own hand.

Comparison between the Oxford Lectern Bible and the World Bible are inevitable, and the new work seems to some a little delicate for the subject. Be that as it may, the World Bible is a most handsome work, and one more evidence of the truth of the late D. B. Updike's appraisal of Rogers: "The most exquisitely sensitive designer of books that his country, or perhaps any country, possesses."

Msgr. Cartwright To Officiate at Cornerstone Rite

The Right Rev. Msgr. John K. Cartwright, rector of St. Matthew's Cathedral, will lay the cornerstone for Our Lady of Mercy Chapel, 4617 R. st., Kenilworth, Md., at 3 p. m. Sunday.

Also participating in the service will be the Rev. Timothy N. MacCarthy, pastor of St. Margaret's Church, Seat Pleasant, Md., of which Our Lady of Mercy Chapel is a mission and the Rev. Michael J. Farrell, assistant pastor.

The new chapel is expected to be completed by Christmas Eve this year. Seating 200 persons, it it of modern design and is constructed of brick and slag block.

Articles to be placed in the cornerstone will include copies of local newspapers, an edition of the Catholic Review, archdiocesan newspaper; the names of church and Government officials, and a list of parishoners of the chapel and of St. Margaret's Church.

Church Plans Dedication Observance

Reformation Day Sunday will mark the beginning of a four-week dedication observance at Christ Congregational Church, 9525 Colesville rd., Silver Spring, Md.

The Rev. John F. McClelland, minister of the church, pointed out that the month-long dedication of the new building is because "we feel that the mission of the church is too broad for a single dedication service to appropriately keynote our aspirations."

In its successive services, the church will emphasize the church's task in religious education lay responsibility, community action, world service and personal religion.

Opening the series Sunday at 11 a. m. will be Mr. McClelland, who will speak on "Positive Protestants."

The service November 6 will be dedicated to the world mission of the church and the speaker will be Miss Ruth Isabelle Seabury, education secretary of the Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. In the evening there will be a special family service.

Laymen's Sunday will be observed November 13, when Dr. Richard D. Weigle, president of St. John's College, Annapolis, will speak. That evening there will be a forum on social action, with the Rev. Ray Gibbons, national director of the Congregational Christian Council for Social Action, as the speaker and the Rev. Thomas B. Keehn, who is with the council's Washington office, as moderator.

Keys to the church will be presented to the board of trustees at a midweek service November 16, when the speakers will be the Rev. Stanley U. North, city director of the Board of Home Missions of the denomination, and the Rev. Joseph H. Stein, superintendent of the Middle Atlantic Confernce of Congregational Christian Churches.

Dr. Douglas Horton, minister of the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches, will preach November 20 when Denomination Day is observed. On November 27 new members of the church will be received at a fifth-anniversary service of communion.

Sunday CHURCH EVENTS

A reredos to match the altar of Grace Episcopal Church, 402 9th st. sw., will be blessed at a festival service at 11 a.m. The day will also mark the anniversary of the rector, the Rev. Meade Bolton MacBryde, who has been at the church since 1917. Guest preacher will be the Rev. Henry H. Clement.

Labels in religion will be discussed by the Rev. Gilbert A. Phillips at 11 a. m. at the Unitarian Church of Arlington, Va., 4451 First pl. South.

Dr. Robert N. DuBose of the department of higher education of the Association of American Colleges, will preach at 9:30 and 11 a. m. at Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church, New Mexico and Nebraska aves. nw. The Rev. Dr. Edward Gardiner Latch, pastor of the church, will be preaching Sunday at the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y.

A Lutheran service in the Finnish language will be conducted at 3 p. m. at Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle. Guest minister for the service will be the Rev. Ahti Auronen, secretary of the reconstruction committee of the Church of Finland.

The Rev. Dr. Edward L. R. Elson, pastor of National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N sts. nw., will conduct the weekly Columbia Broadcasting System Church of the Air over station WTOP at 11 a. m. Dr. Elson will speak on "The Reformation Lives."

Dr. Edwin T. Dahlberg, pastor of First Baptist Church, Syracuse, N. Y., will preach at 11 a. m. at Chevy Chase Baptist Church, 5671 Western ave. nw. The service will be broadcast over Station WBCC.

Labels in religion will be discussed by the Rev. Gilbert A. Phillips at 11 a. m. at the Unitarian Church of Arlington, Va., 4451 First pl., South.

Gospel Held Crying Need in So. America

By Adventists

Famine Fund Drive Due to Open Today

Greater Washington Seventh-day Adventist churches will begin the denomination's annual drive for funds for famine relief in Europe today.

In announcing plans for observance of the day, Elder Howard J. Detwiler, president of the Potomac Conference, declared that "six years of grim destruction cannot be undone in three, four, or even eight years."

"Many war-damaged countries," he declared, "will need our help for a long time to come."

Adventist churches in North America have given $2,845,000 in three previous famine relief offerings, according to Elder Detwiler. In addition, they have spent more than seven million dollars to rebuild churches, schools and hospitals damaged during the war.

He said church leaders responsible for distribution of relief supplies in Germany have recently voted to increase the amount of food and clothing shipped to Eastern Germany, where, according to church workers, conditions are particularly bad.

South America yesterday was pictured as "one of the most promising fields for evangelical work" at the final session of the American Council of Christian Churches' eighth annual convention at Grace Baptist Church, 9th st. and South Carolina ave. se.

Dr. W. O. H. Garman, president of the council, declared that "people in these areas are cursed by their inordinate lust, baseless pagan superstitions, ignorance, criminal and violent inclinations, and the apathy and despair that accompany malnutrition and poverty."

Called Crying Need

"A greatly expanded work of evangelization is the crying need of the hour," he asserted, adding that South Americans "need the moral uplift, emancipation from ignorance, superstition and sin, and spiritual regeneration that accompanies the preaching of the gospel."

In a resolution passed at the morning business session, the council scored as a "great tragedy" a missionary conference to be held in December in Bankok, Thailand.

The conference, sponsored by the World Council of Churches and the International Missionary Council, was deplored as "an effort to sweep into the orbit of the World Council all the churches of the Far East."

Totalitarian Control Seen

The World Council and the International Missionary Council were charged by the American Council with announcing "a program of totalitarian control over the entire Protestant Missionary work of the world."

Officers elected at the convention were: "The Rev. W.O.H. Garman, Wilkinsburg, Pa., president; the Rev. Robert T. Ketcham, Chicago, vice president; the Rev. Carl McIntire, Collingswood, N. J., secretary, all re-elected, and the Rev. Jesse Anderson, Stamford, Conn., treasurer.

Reformation Anniversary Services Listed

Special services Sunday in Protestant churches will mark Reformation Day, the anniversary of the beginning of the Protestant Reformation.

Many of the churches will have no Sunday evening service tomorrow in order to make it possible for their members to attend the Protestant Festival of Faith at 8 p. m. at Constitution Hall.

In observance of the day, the Rev. Dr. John W. Rustin will preach on "We Proclaim Our Faith" at 9 and 11:15 a. m. Sunday at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 900 Massachusetts ave. nw. He will begin his fourteenth year as pastor of the church next week.

At 11 a. m. at the Westmoreland Congressional Church, Westmoreland cir. nw., the Rev. Philip Gordon Scott will speak on "A Good Protestant."

The Rev. Dr. Henry W. Snyder will preach on "Upon This Rock" at 11 a. m. at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Connecticut ave. and Everett sts. nw.

Epiphany to Hear Bishop Yashiro

The Right Rev. Michael Hinsuke, Yashiro, presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church in Japan, will preach at 11 a. m. Sunday at the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G. st., nw.

Bishop Yashiro has been visiting the United States after attending the meeting of the General Convention of the Episcopal Church which was recently held in San Francisco.

At 8 p. m. the Right Rev. William M. M. Thomas, who retired two weeks ago as Bishop of the Missionary District of Southern Brazil, will preach. Born and brought up in Southern Maryland, Bishop Thomas spent the last 45 years in Brazil.

Dr. White to Speak

The Rev. Dr. K. Owen White, pastor of Metropolitan Baptist Church, 6th and A sts. ne., will return to his pulpit Sunday at 8:15 and 11 a. m. to speak on "What About the Lord's Return?" Dr. White has been conducting revival services at the First Baptist Church in Tifton, Ga.

Murial Lester To Speak Sunday At Cathedral

Miss Murial Lester, world traveler and social service leader will preach at 11 a. m. Sunday at the Washington Cathedral, Wisconsin and Massachuettes aves. nw.

Miss Lester also spoke from the cathedral pulpit in January, 1948. A native of England, she is known as the founder of Kingsley Hall, London, England, Settlement house. She has traveled in India and was acquainted with the late Mohandas K. Gandi.

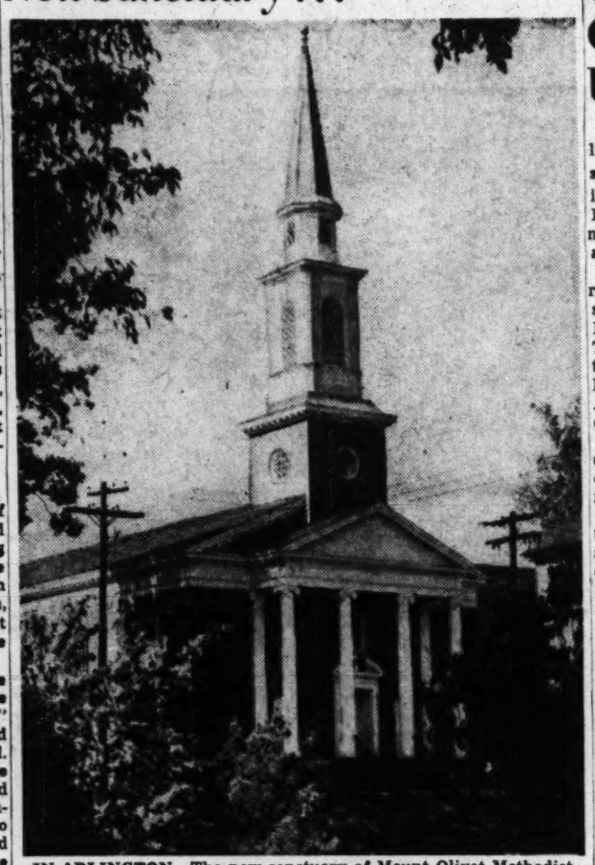
Beginning at 10 a. m. Sunday, the Resurrection Chapel at the cathedral will be used each week for services of St. John the Baptist Russian Orthodox Church.

Holy Communion service at 7:30 a. m. will be celebrated in St. John's Chapel and at 9:30 a. m. in Bethlehem Chapel. At 4 p. m. the cathedral choir of men and boys will present the Requiem by Gabriiel Faure at the monthly all-musical service.

Dr. Bordeaux to Preach

Dr. William Harllee Bordeaux, executive secretary of the American Council of Christian Churches, which yesterday concluded its eighth convention here, will preach at 11 a. m. Sunday at the Knox Orthodox Presbyterian Church, Granville dr. and Sutherland rd., Silver Spring.

New Sanctuary . . .



IN ARLINGTON—The new sanctuary of Mount Olivet Methodist Church, North 16th st. and Glebe rd., Arlington, which will be consecrated Sunday. The sanctuary is the fourth to be erected on the site by the Arlington congregation

The new sanctuary of Mount Olivet Methodist Church, North 16th st. at Glebe rd., Arlington, will be officially opened on Sunday.

Consecration services for the structure will be at 11 a. m., and there will be a special service marking the opening at 3 p. m.

Bishop Straughn Presides

Bishop James H. Straughn, formerly of the Pittsburgh area of the Methodist Church, will consecrate the new building. Bishop Straughn was president of the general conference of the Methodist Protestant Church before the Methodist union in 1939. Originally, Mount Olivet Church belonged to the Methodist Protestant denomination.

He will be assisted at the service by the Rev. Dr. J. Callaway Robertson, superintendent of the Alexandria district of the church, and the Rev. A. G. Lynch, minister of Mount Olivet since 1941.

At the afternoon service the speaker will be the Rev. Dr. Leonard B. Smith, minister of Christ-Edmonson Avenue Methodist Church, Baltimore.

Fourth in 95 Years

The new sanctuary is the fourth in the 95-year history of the congregation. Organized in 1854, the first building was occupied in 1860 but destroyed during the Civil War.

It is the parent of Walker's Chapel and Cherrydale Methodist Churches. A second church was erected in 1870 and a third building constructed toward the close of the nineteenth century.

The new building is late Georgian in style and will seat about 500 persons. In addition, there is a social hall, church office, stage, and kitchen. Eventually, an educational unit will be erected on the space now occupied by the old church building.

New Parish House To Be Dedicated

Special events have been planned for Sunday, when the new parish house of Bethel Lutheran Church, Manassas, Va., will be dedicated.

At 11 a. m. the Rev. Rudolph Ludwig of Kommarock, Va., a former pastor, will speak. Immediately following the service, women of the congregation will serve luncheon. The service of dedication will be at 3 p. m. when the Rev. R. Homer Anderson, superintendent of the Lutheran Synod of Virginia, will speak.

Catholic Way Of Life Called Un-American

The Roman Catholic system of life which is dictated to a large segment of the American people is fundamentally un-American, Paul Blanshard, author and former State Department official, told an Alexandria audience last night.

He spoke at a "religious liberty rally attended by about 100 persons at the Washington Street Methodist Church, Alexandria. The rally was sponsored jointly by the Alexandria Ministerial Alliance and Protestants and other Americans United for Separation of Church and State.

"Lay Catholics," Blanshard declared, "are held captive by the clergy in the web of a medieval institution."

The speaker, who said he wished to rule out personal bias and scandal mongering against Catholic individuals, said Catholic mothers in at least 11 dioceses are told by their priests they cannot have a confessional if they send their children to a "neutral school" when a Catholic school is available.

With two such competing school systems, the Roman Catholic Church is attempting to establish a specially privileged position for its own schools, he charged.

Blanshard also referred to the marriage laws of the Catholic Church and the ban on the use of contraceptives as other examples of "medieval dictation."

He charged that the church promotes "very narrow" sexual training which comes down from the middle ages through generations of celibate priests.

There is danger that the Catholic policy in general will split the Nation down the middle. However, he said, the reason this is not happening is that a large number of Catholic people are not obeying their priests.

"Catholic Americans are beginning to wake up. Everything I have described about the Catholic policies on education, marriage, birth control, and medical policy is probably opposed by most Catholics.

Most of them do not want to pay their priests for taxation. Most women want birth control, and many do not send their children to church schools."

Episcopalian Mission Set Nov. 13-21

Plans for an Episcopal mission in Washington November 13 through 21 were outlined to more than 300 diocesan representatives at a meeting at St. Alban's Church, Massachusetts and Wisconsin aves. nw. last night.

Bryan Green of Birmingham, England, who will conduct the week-long mission at the Washington Cathedral, spoke at the gathering. (Although he is an ordained clergyman, he prefers to be called Bryan Green without the prefix Mr. or the Rev.)

Success of the mission, he declared, will depend not upon the missioner, but upon "God's own presence in our midst."

He said that the purpose of the mission is direct conversion of those to whom Jesus Christ has not been revealed rather than "to give the faithful an extraordinarily nice series of sermons."

The mission will be aimed particularly at those on the "fringe" of the church, and those "just outside of it," he said.

Services will begin at 8 p. m. and will be preceded by a half hour service of community singing. The entire cathedral, including small chapels, and nearby St. Alban's Church, will be wired for sound so that the services may be heard by the anticipated crowds. The English missioner conducted a similar mission in New York last winter.

Jesuits Oust Priest Denying Salvation Outside Church

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 28 .— The Rev. Leonard J. Feeney, S. J., central figure of a six-month-old public dispute with the Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, was dismissed tonight from the Jesuit order.

Father Feeney announced the dismissal and said it was "for disobedience." But he said he did not intend to give up his views or his work.

The noted Jesuit author, poet and lecturer—deprived of his priestly functions by Archbishop Cushing since January 1—summoned reporters to St. Benedict's Center to tell the latest developments in his argument with the hierarchy over his stand that there can be no salvation outside the Catholic Church.

He said that at 6 p. m. he received a registered letter from the Rev. John J. McEleney, S. J., New England Provincial of the Society of Jesus.

Father Feeney said the letter, in Latin, concluded with this sentence:

"By reason of a letter received October 21, 1949, written by the Very Rev. Jean Baptiste Janssens, General of the Society of Jesus (at Rome) your dismissal from the Society of Jesus has been approved."

The Catholic Chancery had no comment. Early in the dispute Father Feeney had appealed to Rome.

In July the Supreme Sacred Congregation of the Holy Office in Rome declared the view there is no salvation outside the Catholic Church was "far from being genuine Catholic teaching."

In April Boston College, a Jesuit institution, dismissed three professors — members of Father Feeney's classes at St. Benedict's Center—for spreading "erroneous" doctrine. When Father Feeney indorsed the professors' stand, Archbishop Cushing disclosed the priest had been deprived of his priestly faculties since January 1.

Irish Win Today Would Be No. 33 Without Loss

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Baltimore, Oct. 28. — Navy's young, green football team takes the field against Notre Dame tomorrow tabbed as a mere foil for the powerful Irish, who are bent on achieving a modern record for consecutive games without defeat.

Favored over the Midshipmen by at least four touchdowns, Notre Dame could click off its thirty-third game without defeat and surpass the record fashioned by Army's defeatless teams from 1944-47.

Despite the lop-sided outlook, Babe Ruth Stadium will be filled to capacity with 62,413 fans.

Notre Dame Coach Frank Leahy, bedded down by an influenza attack at his South Bend, Ind., home most of the week, will not join his team until a few hours before the 2 o'clock kick-off. His plane will land in Baltimore at 11 a. m., and he will travel directly to the stadium.

Earlier in the week, however, Leahy warned his football players of an upset, with characteristic caution. "Gentlemen," he told them before a practice session, "upsets happen in football. I want you to think how you would feel in your dressing room AFTER a Navy victory."

Field May Be Slow or Wet

Assistant Coach Bernie Crimmins, who was at the helm of the Irish in Leahy's absence, today canceled out a scheduled practice in the stadium. He restricted the squad's practice to blackboard drills in the afternoon and at night.

It looks as if the game will be played on a sloppy field. A steady rain began late today and was expected to continue through most of the night. The weather bureau said there may be scattered showers during the game itself, but it could foresee no downpour.

No Leahy team has been beaten since 1943. Notre Dame hasn't lost a game since 1945, when it was beaten by Great Lakes, in an era when Leahy was in the service. The Irish were tied once last season.

Navy Coach George Sauer, admitting that his thrice-beaten Middies faced the toughest task of the season, nevertheless did not rule out the possibility of an upset. "If I didn't think we had a chance to win the game, I wouldn't show up with my team," said Sauer.

Sauer is operating with a Navy squad that is heavily on the sophomore side, in contrast to the seasoned veterans of Leahy. The Middies have regained some offensive punch with the return of Bill Powers, out last week with an ankle injury in the 28-7 rout by Penn. He will start at right halfback.

Vic Vine at left half, Dave Bannerman at fullback and Bob Zastrow at quarterback will round out the Navy backfield. Vine is replacing Frank Hauff who re-injured his ankle in the Penn game.

There was a hint, too, that Sauer no longer is wedded to Zastrow as his first-string quarterback despite the early-season success of the sophomore passer and signal caller. Mike Sorrentino out-performed him against Penn, and may see heavy duty today.

The Irish will be presenting a Baltimore-born quarterback for the home folks in Bob Williams, slick-operating general of its T-formation who came of age as Frank Tripucka's replacement in the second half against Navy last season. The Irish won that game, 41-7.

30,000 to See Fordham Play Hoyas Today

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

New York, Oct. 28.—Upset-conscious Georgetown — it's pulled enough of them — warily approaches tomorrow's 2 p. m. clash with Fordham at the Polo Grounds.

Slight favorites for a change, the Hoyas have been listening all week to foreboding tales of the resurgent Rams. Fordham has the Georgetown coaching staff worried.

Interest in the unbeaten Maroon is high here and a victory over Georgetown is a must if Fordham hopes to convince New Yorkers it's on its way back.

With good weather, more than 30,000 are expected to turn out for the twenty-first renewal of the Jesuit series that began with a 6-6 tie in 1890.

Georgetown, too, is high over its surprise team that was slated to lose four of its first five games and nimbly transposed those figures. More than 1000 tickets were sold on the Hoya campus and a loud student-alumni delegation from Washington will be on hand.

Fordham's opener with Yale was canceled because of polio and they proceeded to thump Kings Point and Scranton. It was last week's game with Syracuse that electrified New York. Ed Danowski's charges squeezed the Orange, 47-21, after holding a 47-7 edge.

It was Fordham's most important triumph and the three-game winning streak it has is the longest since the Jimmy Crowley era.

Dapper Dick Doheny is the boy Georgetown's strong pass defenders have to watch. Against Syracuse, he completed 10 of 15 for three touchdowns and 136 yards.

Georgetown has scored three touchdowns on only two occasions. Feeling is the Hoyas will need three tomorrow. It's up to passer Frank Mattingly and runner Billy Conn.

Rain Spoils Homecoming

Weatherman Jolts Postponement Plan

Two hours before game time, Max Farrington, George Washington athletic director, was all set to postpone GW's homecoming football game with Lafayette until today. The weatherman, however, gave him no encouragement, predicting rain again today with the result that Farrington abandoned the postponement idea.

"You can bet your bottom dollar on one thing," Farrington mused. "We'll certainly invite the weatherman to be our guest at next year's homecoming. I know he won't want to get wet."

Farrington's disappointment over the nasty weather was mild compared to that of the 22 winsome misses who are candidates for George Washington's homecoming queen. All dressed up with some place to go, the young ladies very regretfully bowed to the elements, forsaking the new evening gowns they had purchased for the occasion. They wore chic sports clothes instead.

22 Queens Forced To Shun Finery

George Washington yell section weren't for Andy Davis and Al Dugoff. There were more than a few for Center Talbot Dredge and Wingback Charlie Jones. The two wowed the students at a homecoming pep rally yesterday, Jones with his singing and Dredge with his accompaniment on the accordion. They've been called on for a repeat performance at this afternoon's gathering of the old grads at the student union.

If Dr. William Mann, curator of the Rock Creek Park Zoo, checks up a leopard or so short this morning he can find it on the GW campus. Fifteen campus organizations, each stressing the Lafayette leopards motif, staged a colorful mummers' parade at half time.

Sigma Nu, dragging a fallen leopard around the gridiron, was awarded the top prize. Place money went to Zeta Tau Alpha with Pi Phi third. Other organizations with floats in the parade were Delta Gamma, Delta Tau Delta, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Tau Kappa Epsilon, Independent Students Association, Zeta Tau Alpha, Delta Zeta, Alpha Delta Pi, Sigma Chi, Kappa Delta and Kappa Alpha.

Although trailing 7-0 as the last quarter opened, the Leopards from Lafayette still had plenty of fight left. The Leopards changed spots, shifting from a running game to passing game. They went 73 yards in eight plays, tied the score and further dampened the spirits of the rain-soaked GW homecoming celebrants.

Al DuGoff, a pharmacy student, turned out to be just what the doctor ordered for the Colonials. The Washington senior skirted his left end, saw daylight and then streaked 80 yards through mud, rain and the whole Lafayette team to put the G-streeters back in front—to stay.

Corum Gets Winn's Job

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 28 (AP).—Bill Corum, New York sports columnist and radio sportscaster, was chosen today as president of the American Turf Association and Churchill Downs.

He succeeds Col. Matt J. Winn who filled the job for so many years before his death on October 6. One of Corum's duties will be the planning and supervision of the internationally famous Kentucky Derby.

Corum will continue writing his column except for a two-month period in April and May when he will be on leave from his newspaper to direct the famous horse race.

The official announcement said Corum's salary has not been determined and many other details must be ironed out.

G. B. (Brownie) Leach, Downs publicist, said no change in personnel is planned.

Martene Windsor Corum, the new Downs president's legal name, is 54 and a native of Speed, Mo. He served as a major in World War I.

Griff Would Buy Priddy

Clark Griffith evinced interest yesterday in the announcement by the St. Louis Browns that they would accept bids for Second Baseman Gerry Priddy and Third Baseman Bob Dillinger.

"I'd buy either or both," said the Washington club owner, "if the Browns don't ask too much playing talent along with the cash. I dont' have the players to trade.'

It was the first declaration by Griffith that he would re-hire Priddy, whom he sold to the Browns in a fit of anger at the end of the 1947 season after the second baseman was charged with revolting against the managerial authority of Ossie Bluege.

Priddy went to the Browns for $25,000 at that time. Last winter, the Tigers bid $175,000 for him.

Capot Beats Coaltown by 12 Lengths In 'Special'

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Md., Oct. 28—Greentree Stable's Capot made a farce out of thirteenth running of the famous Pimlico Special here today.

The son of Menow, with Jockey Ted Atkinson supplying the know-how, coasted into the finish line 12 lengths in front of Calumet Farm's Coaltown before 14,000—the majority shocked—fans.

Capot, named for a maneuver in a French card game, shuffled Coaltown to the bottom of the deck early and had him in the discards before the pair had reached the back stretch. From that point to the wire, Coaltown backers were demanding a new deal and not without reason.

In taking down the $15,000 in winner-take-all money, Capot earned himself a heap of votes as "the 3-year-old of the year" and brought a $5 mutuel to his supporters.

The Greentree ace retained his record of never having been beaten over this ancient track, although he once was disqualified. In that race he set the mark of 1:10.1 for 6 furlongs.

Might Have Broken Record

Making his first Pimlico start since he won the Preakness here in May, Capot romped the route today in 1:56 4/5. That was four-fifths of a second slower than his Preakness time, which is the track record for a mile and three-sixteenths.

Today he might have equalled or broken that record had the expected opposition materialized. He was clocked in 1:56 4/5 mile definitely in hand through the final eighth, a fifth of a second over the mark for the Special shared by Seabiscuit and Twilight Tear.

Capot, never worse than head and head with Coaltown at any stage, was clocked in .23 for the first quarter, .46 1/5 for the half, 1.10 4/5 (the track record is 1.10 1/5) for the 6 furlongs and 1.36 3/5 for the mile.

In many ways, today's race was a replica of the historic clash of Seabiscuit and War Admiral. Capot, like Seabiscuit, was the underdog in the betting and the Greentree star, like Seabiscuit, beat his rivals at his own game—early speed.

One thing is certain, Coaltown was not the Coaltown of old today. The son of Bull Lea had all the appearances of what horsemen refer to as a "knocked out horse."

Coaltown Wilts in Back Stretch

Jockey Steve Brooks must have sensed it, too, for he did not abuse Coaltown once he was assured he could not win. J. M. Gaver, trainer of Capot, said before the race that if his colt won, he would ship him to winter quarters at Aiken, S. C., and pass up his scheduled appearance in the Gold Cup.

Whatever competition there was in today's special was through the stretch the first time. Starter Eddie Blind sent them out of the gate as a team but Atkinson, as the late George Woolf did with Seabiscuit, surprised by hustling Capot into upward of a half length lead in the first furlong.

As they came by the stands the first time, Coaltown moved up on the outside and the pair dingdonged, head and head past the club house and into the turn.

Coaltown stayed abreast of Capot until half way to the back stretch and then the Greentree ace gradually drew away—a half length, a length and then daylight began to appear between them.

This was the last time Coaltown was in the same race with Capot. Atkinson wasn't satisfied, however, that he had a beaten horse behind him. He kept Capot sailing as Coaltown slowed down.

Second Upset of Coaltown

Just inside the bend at the far turn, Atkinson made one swipe with his whip. Then the race, for all purposes, was history. Capot drew out farther and farther and the calloused turf scribes shook their heads and circled his name on their programs—the winner before the turn into the stretch.

The victory was the sixth of the year in 16 starts for Capot and the tenth in 25 during his 2-year career.

It made quite a season for Capot which has found him winner of the Peakness, Belmont, Jerome Handicap and Sysonby Mile. In that last named fixture, he defeated Coaltown before being shipped here.

For Coaltown, this was his third defeat of the year in 15 outings, his 10 victories including nine topnotch handicaps and the Whirlaway Stakes.

The Special was a disappointment in more ways than one. Threatening weather here and rain at some nearby points this morning held the crowd down to 14,262 (turnstile count) and the betting total only $788,327. Maryland Jockey Club had hoped for 20,000 and a million through the tote.

On the Special $51,737 was wagered, $17,985 on Capot and $33,752 on Coaltown.

Jimmy Jones Says Coaltown's Lame

Baltimore, Oct. 28 (AP)—Trainer Jimmy Jones said tonight that Coaltown came out of the Pimlico Special with a lame right hind leg.

Jones spotted the four-year-old Calumet Farms star favoring his leg while he was being "cooled out" after the race. The lameness seemed to be in the foot.

"We'll be able to tell more about his trouble tomorrow," he added.

Maryland's Favored in Homecoming

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Having devoured the Gobblers, plastered the Hoyas and caged the Wolfpack, Maryland is a 14-point favorite to wring the necks of South Carolina's Gamecocks today.

Seeking their second victory of the season, Coach Rex Enright's Birds are expected to furnish the Terrapins with their fourth success instead.

The Southern Conference battle, slated for 2:15 at Maryland's Byrd Stadium, highlights Terrapin homecoming festivities and a capacity crowd of 19,277 will be on hand for the affair.

Even though they've lost to unbeaten Baylor, Furman, and North Carolina, the Gamecocks still command respect.

In Quarterback Passer Bo Hagan, Fullback Bishop Strickland and Sophomore Halfback Steve Wadiak, they have three of the finest backs in the conference.

For the first time this season the trio clicked as a unit two weeks ago and the result was an upset 27-13 victory over two-touchdown favored Clemson, last year's conference champs.

Such is not likely to come to pass this afternoon, however, for the Messrs. Hagan, Wadiak and Strickland will be running against one of the best defensive teams in the Nation.

Rain, Mud Fail to Halt Sprint in Last Period

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Big Al DuGoff revived a swooning George Washington football team with a spectacular 80-yard touchdown run late in the fourth quarter and the Colonials defeated Lafayette, 14-7, last night at Griffith Stadium.

Lafayette had just tied the score with a fourth quarter touchdown, and barely failed in a field goal attempt, when DuGoff shook the mud off his back. With a heavy rain pouring on him, he splashed around right end, found a clearing and somehow kept his feet for 80 yards to the goal line.

Enroute, Frank Close and Bill Sazanyi dropped a pair of charging Leopards to pave the way for the 190-pound fullback.

Four thousand fans were in on the dramatic finish which came with only six minutes to go. They sat through a constant downpour, that made the field a reflection pool, and made ball handling a precarious understaking.

Charley Gunner, GW's junior guard, suffered a leg injury in the fourth period and was taken off the field on a stretcher and rushed to the hospital where it was feared he might have a fracture. X-rays wil lbe made. Gunner broke an ankle last year in a game against Duke.

Take to Airways

Despite the slippery ball and the hazardous footing, both teams gambled with passes, and scored their first touchdowns by air.

Surprisingly, though, there were 13 fumbles and none was damaging.

For most of the first three quarters, the two teams engaged in a soccer punting duel, hoping the other team would miss, lose the ball and set up a touchdown.

Gordon Fleming, a 207-pound fullback, was Lafayette's wheelhorse, driving through the slosh for 119 yards in 35 tries.

He almost pulled the game out of the fire in the last seconds when he paced Lafayette 22 yards to GW's 26. There he broke off right tackle, burst into the clear. However, at the 16 he lost his footing and GW's Johnny Grinnell hit him. He lost the ball and time ran out.

GW broke up the early punting contest after eight minutes when Handy Andy Davis took to the air from Lafayette's 44. He passed through a rain cloud to Charlie Jones on the 25, and Jonesy slid to the 20.

On third down, Davis tossed a

Total of 46 Punts Mark Muddy Duel

George Washington and Lafayette staged one of the most amazing and prolific punting exhibitions ever seen in football last night, without doubt setting an all-time record.

The teams punted 46 times. Johnny Shullenbarger kicked 22 times for the Colonials, averaging 37 yards a boot. Winston Williams booted 24 times for the Leopards, averaging 34 yards.

Dons Whip Hornets, 24-14

Chicago, Oct. 28 (AP).—The Los Angeles Dons tonight ended the Chicago Hornets' hopes of reaching an All-America Conference playoff berth by downing the Chicago entry, 24-14, before 11,249 spectators in Soldier Field.

Sports World Mourns

Cerdan Said He'd Win Back Title—or Die

Plane Crash Takes French Fighter's Life

By Jack Hand

NEW YORK, OCT. 28 (AP).—Marcel Cerdan bubbled with the joy of living. His dancing eyes and gold-toothed smile were among the best ambassadors France ever sent to America.

It was an honest grief the sports world expressed today when it learned of Marcel's death in a plane crash in the Azores. They liked the man over here where so many foreign boxers have failed.

Here was a Frenchman who really could fight, a man who seemed to enjoy his work.

When the fight was over, Marcel could be gay, too. In the ring it was strictly business.

His last trip also was strictly business—almost a mission. The aim was to regain the world middleweight boxing championship he lost to Jake La Motta at Detroit in June.

Cerdan was gay when he boarded the plane at Orly Airfield, Paris, yesterday. Just before taking off, he telephoned his wife at Casablanca, Morocco, and said: "I promise you I'll bring back the world title."

More than a title was wrenched from the fun-loving Frenchman in the last of his 105 fights. Marcel's pride was deeply wounded that dark and rainy night when he surrendered because of a shoulder injury.

"What will the people in Paris say?"

Those were Cerdan's first words as he slumped in the ring, surrounded by Jo Longman, his manager, who also died in the crash, and Lew Burston, his American representative.

PATRIOTISM, perhaps, isn't the word. But Cerdan's deep, abiding love of his native country never was better expressed than in his post-fight comment.

Many said he never would return. But he was back in midsummer, grim and determined to regain his lost glory—for Marcel and for France.

"This is the fight of my life—I win—or I die."

Thus did Cerdan solemnly state his aims on his arrival from Paris in August for a bout that never was held.

An injury to La Motta's shoulder forced postponement of the bout, originally scheduled for September 28. Just the other day it was resigned for December 2 at Madison Square Garden. That was why Cerdan and Longman were on the plane that crashed in the Azores.

It was a shame that America never saw Cerdan at his peak. When he first attracted widespread notice in 1944 by winning the inter-Allied boxing crown, he was 28. He was 32 when he won the world championship and might have been favored to whip La Motta in the return although he was 33 on July 22.

MARCEL WAS BORN of Spanish parents at Bel-Abbes, Algeria, July 22, 1916. Because he lived for many years on a small farm near Casablanca with his wife and children, American fight writers called him the Casablanca clouter.

New York first saw him in 1946 after he had been fighting 11 years. George Abrams was his first victim by a close decision at Madison Square Garden. Cerdan had a badly wrenched back but he told nobody. He came back in 1947 to beat Harold Green at New York and Billy Walker at Montreal, but Anton Raadik had him on the floor three times in the last round at Chicago before Cerdan skinned through with a decision.

After knocking out young Lavern Roach in March of 1948, Cerdan returned to Europe, where he suffered the only loss by decision of his career to Cyrille ellanoit at Brussels. Later he reversed it.

Cerdan surprised the boxing experts by stopping Tony Zale at Jersey City September 21, 1948, to win the middleweight crown. He had given Tony a bad beating all the way before Zale collapsed at the end of the eleventh round and was unable to answer the bell for the twelfth.

Ref Changes Mind; Devitt Bows, 35-7

By Don Lief

Referee Pete English's reversed decision awarded St. John's College High a touchdown, took the wind out of Devitt Prep's sails yesterday, and outmanned Devitt went on to lose, 35-7, at the Georgetown Prep field.

Behind 13-7 in the second period, Devitt Back Tom Hunt touched a St. John's kickoff and let the ball roll into the end zone. The ball stopped rolling in the end zone. English blew his whistle and told Hunt, who was in position to down the ball for an automatic touchback, that the ball was dead.

St. John's Back Tom Clark then grabbed the ball, but English moved it upfield to the Devitt 20.

With the rival coaches, St. John's Joe Gallagher and Devitt's Robert Killen, yelling protests from the sidelines, English changed his decision and declared that the play had resulted in a St. John's score, which put St. John's ahead, 19-7.

Devitt scored first with six fast plays which moved the Destroyers 70 yards. A 56-yard pass, John Goto to Bob Scally, was good to the Cadet 5. Johnny Neumann plowed over for the touchdown. Burbach converted.

St. John's tied it up in the second period with a sustained drive, also of 70 yards. A short pass, Bob McLindon to Tom Collins, scored from the seven. End Joe Hands' kick was good.

Brother Frye contributed a 50-yard pass to Hands, to the Devitt 9, later in the quarter, and two plays later Tom Clark went around end for the tally.

Devitt's small squad kept the Cadets scoreless in the third period, but couldn't stop the final point thrusts; a 23-yard McLindon to Hands pass, Frye's 65-yard punt runback and a safety.

Coolidge Wins, 47 to 0, Over Bell

By Jules Loh

Coolidge High School scored at least once in every period and handed Bell Vocational School its fifth straight loss, 47-0, before a scant 250 spectators yesterday at the Roosevelt field.

Coolidge scored on the first play from scrimmage. Arnie Tranen went all the way from his own 31. Walter Krukowski and Dan Richardson added two more on 50 and 10-yard runs respectively to give the Colts a 19-0 first-period margin.

In the second period winners went into a 33-0 lead after Bill Horan registered two of his three touchdowns. His other score came in the third quarter on a 30 yard off-tackle sprint.

Guard Jim Austin even got into the scoring act. He plunged over for the extra point after Tannen scampered 18 yards for the final touchdown.

Coolidge was not forced to punt until late in the third period.

O'Leary's first touchdown climaxed a 73-yard drive by the Red Raiders in the first period.

After passing to Harold Weintraub for 24 yards, O'Leary broke through center to score in the third period.

O'Leary also set up the second touchdown in the first quarter when on three attempts he moved the Western team from its own 44 to the Roosevelt 3. Ted Dayharsh then bulled over center on a quarterback sneak for the 14-0 score at the end of the first quarter.

Near the end of the second period Paul Weinstein passed 19 yards to the waiting hands of Wally McGarry in the end zone for another Western touchdown. Weinstein scored himself in the final frame when he broke through left tackle from the Roosevelt 3.

Catholic Meets Mounts Here, Gallaudet at Randolph-Macon

Catholic University and Gallaudet, the two basement teams of the Mason-Dixon Conference, go after their first victories of the season this afternoon on separate fields.

C. U. engages Mount St. Mary's at 2:30 p. m. at Brookland Stadium. Gallaudet travels to Ashland, Va., to take on Randolph-Macon, 9-7 conquerer of C. U. two weeks ago.

In two other games of local interest, the Quantico Marines invade Fort Belvoir to tackle the Engineers at 2 p. m., and Howard visits Raleigh, N. C., to play Shaw University.

Mount St. Mary's, coached by former Notre Dame guard, John Law, walloped Kings College, 47-0, in its opener, but has lost four straight since then. Passer Marty Green and Runners Jim Veltri and Walt Bellardinelli are the boys depended on to pull the Mountaineers out of their nosedive.

Mount St. Mary's used the T formation. C. U., led by Alumnus John Jankowski, has ditched the T in favor of the Notre Dame box. Passer Joe Dunn calls C. U.'s signals, and he lets Bucky Ennis and Bill Holl handle the running.

Gallaudet is still sorely pressed for manpower, and once more will depend on its iron man starting backfield to play 60 minutes. Dick Amundsen, 200-pound fullback, will be Gallaudet's heavy duty man, with Guard Frank Turk trying to open up holes in the Yellow Jackets' line.

Randolph-Macon will look to the passing combination of Teddy Keller to Jack Wilson for most of its yardage.

A crowd of 10,000 servicemen is expected as Quantico risks its 4-2 record against Fort Belvoir's 2-2. Rudy Flores with 32 completions for 700 yards is the Marines' big star. The Engineers counter with hard-running George Evans and Del Hicks.

Howard has alerted its defense for the sharp passing of Shaw's Twillie Cellamy, and will look to Ernie Davis, its own passing arm, for a few touchdowns.

Little Hoyas Beaten by Wilson, 13 to 0

By Marty King

Touchdowns by Pete Haley and Tom Saunders led Wilson to a 13-0 win over Georgetown Prep yesterday at Wilson.

Leo Speros passed to Haley late in the second period for the first score. Dick Sebastian kicked the point after touchdown. Tom Saunders bucked over from the 10-yard line for the other Wilson tally.

With their backfield ace, Keith Vinsonhaler, out of action, the Little Hoyas' ground offensive could not get started. Vinsonhaler suffered a broken hand last week in the St. Alban's game.

Sullivan's Score Tops Viking Rally

By West McLean
Post Reporter

Central's Vikings used a second-quarter safety and touchdown to edge Blair, 8-6, yesterday at Central.

Blair scored in the first period on a 44-yard Statue of Liberty play with Right Half Jimmy Downs taking the fake pass from Ray Luckett and racing 44 yards down the left sideline for the six-pointer.

Central's Pantos Ruled Ineligible

Jimmy Pantos, Central High's All-Metropolitan halfback, has flunked in English and sociology and is ineligible to play for the rest of the football season.

His loss is a terrific blow to Central's chances of successfully defending its city championship. Pantos' ineligibility became effective last Monday and remains in force until the end of the present advisory, December. The interhigh championship game is set for November 25.

Central got its safety when Fred Everett intercepted a Arnie Scribner pas son his own 3 and was chased back into the end zone in the second frame. Bill Weaver and Lou Glickfield trapped him there for the two points that ultimately spelled victory.

A blocked kick led to the Central touchdown shortly afterward when Luckett attempted to kick from his own 32. Weaver and Roy Nelson broke through to smother the kick. Luckett grabbed the bouncing ball but was dropped on his 24.

Central gained 18 yards on a pass from Jimmy Sullivan to Franny Gleason. George Cozzens picked up three yards over tackle and Sullivan went over for the score on a quarterback sneak. Leathery's attempt at conversion was missed but Central led, 8-6.

Bed O' Roses Tops Pimlico Field

Marguerite Shapes Up as 6-Horse Race

Baltimore, Oct. 28 (AP).—Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Bed O'Roses will be out to bolster her standing as biggest money winner among the season's 2-year-old fillies in tomorrow's Marguerite Stakes at Pimlico.

The Marguerite carries an added value of $15,000. Bed O'Roses has won five stakes this year and earned $129,995.

Her latest triumph was a week ago in the Selima Stakes at Laurel where she beat four of her five rivals in tomorrow's race. Both tests are at a mile and a sixteenth.

Trailing Bed O'Roses, who won by an easy seven lengths, were the Ogden Phipps' entry of Striking and Busanda, King Ranch's Alondra, Walter M. Jeffords' Fas Do Do, and Mrs. Albert Sabath's Devotional.

in the Colonial line, and drove Lafayette back six yards in four downs.

Patiently, Lafayette stuck to its punting in the third quarter. Still down, 7-0, early in the last period, Lafayette staked its hope on air transport. Fleming took a wide pitchout from Quarterback Frank Downing and fired a pass which End Larry Holden grabbed and carried 19 yards to GW's 42.

Downing took things into his own hands at that point and lobbed a screen pass to Fleming who powered all the way to the Colonial 11 where Dave Shiver flagged him. A clipping penalty against GW moved Lafayette to the one, and Fleming crashed over GW's right guard to score. Dick Durstein converted to tie the score at 7-all.

Moments later Fleming was taking Lafayette 23 yards to GW's 13. There the Colonials held, and Lafayette tried a field goal from the 20. It was low.

On the next play, DuGoff turned the tide back in GW's favor with his spectacular 80-yard run, and gave the Colonials their third straight victory.

DEAR FOLKS:

Well, Capot did it, but Coaltown backers were not without their fun. One well-soaked (it didn't rain, if you know what I mean) customer sat on the grandstand steps with his head in his hands muttering. "Coaltown, Coaltown—I never did like that John L. Lewis." Coaltown ran in blinkers for the first time this year and a scribe, crumbling his tickets, growled, "They should have pulled them down over the bum's eyes." The Capot boys, however, were happy. One New York writer laughed, "I came down for the race and the football game. I parlayed the longshots—Capot today and Navy tomorrow." BILL.

CAPOT, $5.00, out, out; COALTOWN, out, out.

CAPOT and COALTOWN broke on even terms and were never more than a head apart in the long run to the first turn. CAPOT retained the rail in the run around the turn, drew clear steadily and was merely galloping as he reached the end. COALTOWN lacked the speed to outrun CAPOT to the first turn, was steadied when it became apparent he could not wrest command, then lacked a rally and was not unduly punished.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-half miles. Purse, $2500. For 3-year-olds and up; claiming. Went to post at 4:48. Off at 4:48. Start good. Won driving; place same. Winner, D. A. Rosenbaum's b. f. (4) by Sir Damion—Pharalet by Pharamond II. Trained by F. C. Dunn. Time, 2:33⅘.

South Carolina Meets Terps

pins have permitted the opposition, which includes Michigan State, an average of only 70 yards per game on the ground.

Another factor in Maryland's favor is the weather. The forecast is for cloudy and rain. This will crimp the style of Passer Hagan, whose accurate pitches brought the Gamecocks their decision over Clemson.

Offensively, Maryland has been no marvel. With no passing attack to speak of, the Terps running game was shackled last week by N. C. State which massed its defense in the middle to stymie the Old Liner running attack.

Today, however, Coach Jim Tatum thinks it will be different. Quarterback Joe Tucker has been instructed to run more sweeps and outside stuff, varying his attack by sending Halfback Mighty Mo Modzelewski through the guards and tackles.

Brooklyn Wins 4th Roller Derby Victory in Row

Brooklyn's Bombers scored their fourth straight Roller Derby victory over the Washington-Baltimore Wildcats, 15-12, last night at Uline Arena before a crowd of 2883.

For the first time in the nightly series which ends tomorrow evening, Brooklyn took the lead, five games to four. The two teams meet for the tenth game tonight at Uline's.

Bill Reynolds rallied his Wildcats in the final period, when he lapped three Brooklyn skaters to make it 12-15. However, the Bombers, in the waning seconds, stopped two potential scorers, Reynolds and Bob Lewis, to insure their victory.

6 Die in 'Mystery' Crash Of Airliner at London

London, Oct. 28 (AP).—The crash of a Superior Oil Company plane which killed four Americans and two Britons here early today is a mystery to the sole survivor, co-pilot Earl Sivage, of Los Angeles.

"I do not know what happened," the 33-year-old flier said from his hospital bed. "When we crashed the cockpit was split open and I was thrown clear."

The twin-engine plane went out of control as it roared off the London airport runway bound for Rome.

With his gasoline-soaked clothes blazing, Sivage was thrown 50 feet. He rolled in rain puddles to put out the flames.

Two officials of the oil company were among the dead. They were Robert Allen and James Lewis, 40, both of Los Angeles.

Also killed were the pilot, Capt. Joseph Jordan of San Fernando, Calif.; Andrew Cole, of Long Beach., radio operator; and Sir Hugh Weightman, 50, and W. J. Horne, about 40, British officials.

The group was en route to Cairo.

Killer Taken Into Custody

Bryson came about two hours before Elwood F. Melson, Wilmington attorney, and the Rev. Francis A. Burns, prison chaplain, could carry out their plans to surrender the pair.

Norris and Bryan were apprehended at a home in Minquadale, about four miles from Wilmington. An unidentified person notified State police he had seen Norris outside the house.

Several hours earlier, Melson and John J. Kerrigan, Wilmington Journal-Every Evening reporter and Father Burns met Norris and Bryson at a secret rendezvous.

Arrangements were made for them to surrender at 7 p. m., providing the paper would publish their charges about jail conditions. This was done.

Kerrigan quoted Bryson as saying he and the seven others had decided on the escape instead of stirring up a riot as the best means of publicizing their charges of mismanagement.

They charged the food in the prison was "bad." Bryson estimated he had spent some $700 for foods in the workhouse commissary. Norris said he had spent about $800

Still at liberty are Joseph Lankford, 25, Bellefonte, Del.; Willie Edwards, 28, Satsuma, Ala.; Edward Ernst, 25, Wilmington, and Edward J. Hardy, 23, Gloucester, Mass.

Elwood H. Wilson, workhouse warden, called charges made by Bryson and Norris "absolutely untrue."

"We have a 500-acre farm on which we produce the food we give the prisoners and it is the best," said Wilson.

Van Valin Retires

After more than forty years of Government service, Forrest D. Van Valin, employe counselor at the State Department, retired yesterday with a letter of commendation from Secretary Acheson.

Acheson praised him for his "outstanding record for which the department has deep appreciation." For the past twenty-seven years Van Valin has been at the State Department, and in recent years has handled Red Cross, Community Chest and blood bank appeals among department employes.

Van Valin, who was 70 on October 15, lives at 1904 Biltmore st. nw.

Rep. Thomas Goes on Trial November 7

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) was ordered yesterday to stand trial November 7 on payroll padding charges despite a claim that he has a nervous "reaction" and irrational fear of barbarshops and mixing with people.

Judge Alexander Holtzoff of District Court ordered the case to trial after reading reports of two physicians who agreed that Thomas is physically fit for trial and not in danger of his life.

The Congressman who once headed the House Committee on Un-American Activities was not in the court, and his attorney, William H. Collins, was denied the opportunity to cross-examine the physicians.

Thomas was indicted almost a year ago on a charge of conspiring with his secretary, Helen Campbell, to defraud the Government. He is also charged with submitting false vouchers about the employment of a woman employe of the Committee on un-American Activities.

Since then, he has been operated on for hemorrhaging stomach ulcers with a long period of convalescence.

The report was prepared by Drs. William Earl Clark and Charles Stanley White at the request of Judge Holtzoff after Thomas had asked for a delay in trial.

It details Thomas' daily habits which include breakfast at 8:30, moderate exercise, lunch at 12:30, rest for an hour, walking around the premises in New Jersey, two or three "average-size" highballs before dinner at 6:30, reading until 8:30, and three or four cigars during the day.

The report states that Thomas first noticed his stomach disorder in his youth and in recent years has had two operations for it. At one point in 1948, he weighed 180 pounds, went to a low of 135 and is now around 150.

In his case history, Drew Pearson, the columnist, comes in for a mention.

"Beginning in August, 1949, the patient underwent severe mental strain because of criticism by Drew Pearson," the report states.

Under recent changes are:

"Since the operation, the patient states he has had a marked change in personality. He has developed irritability, periods of depression occasionally with weeping, and has a phobia of mixing with people, visiting the barbershop and driving an automobile . . . He becomes more easily excited, his mouth becomes dry and he has recurrent hives, nausea, sweating . . . and headache."

As for the future, "Mr. Thomas feels that he is making progress symptomatically and that if he could only be given a few months to recuperate, that he would be better fit for trial," the report says.

Recent nervousness has driven Thomas to take "one to three sedatives at night" and a medicine for his hives, the doctors said.

Marines Held For Jury in Rape, Sodomy

Two Quantico Marines were held for grand jury action yesterday in Fairfax County Trial Justice Court on rape and sodomy charges brought by a 19-year-old District girl.

They are Pfc. Arvel A. Nichols, 21, charged with rape, and Pfc. Robert F. Ragland, 23, charged with sodomy. Both were held in $500 bond. They pleaded innocent.

The same bond for a third Marine, Pfc. Donald E. McMichen, 21, held as a material witness since the alleged offenses occurred October 21, was cut to $500.

Trial Justice Harry L. Carrico, in holding the two Marines for the grand jury, told their attorney, Roy Swayze, that he had advanced arguments "of much merit" in asking that the charges be dismissed.

The girl told the court she met the three Marines the night of October 20 in a downtown Washington night club. They later danced at a hotel and then saw a cabaret show. At about 1 a. m., she said, she accepted Ragland's offer to escort her home.

Instead, she testified, she was driven across the Highway bridge and out Shirley hwy. to a secluded area. There, she said, Nichols threatened her life, hit her on the jaw, and forced her to submit to him.

Then Ragland dragged her into some bushes, according to her testimony, and forced her to perform an indecent act. The act was repeated later in the car, she said, just before Virginia State troopers stopped the vehicle for speeding.

She said she feigned illness to get out of the car when police brought it to a halt. Police then elicited her story.

The girl testified she was a virgin at the time the events occurred. Her credibility was attacked, however, by attorney Swayze on the basis of medical testimony by Dr. Nelson Podolnick, county medical examiner.

Dr. Podolnick said his examination "showed no marks of internal violence." He added, "so far as I could tell, she was not a virgin." There no sign of any recent defloration, he said.

Freedmen's To Increase Its Charges By a Third

Date for New Rates Not Yet Announced; Hospital Head Cites Its Higher Costs

Rate changes running about a third more than at present were announced yesterday at Freedmen's Hospital.

Officials said the effective date of the new rates will be announced later and gave the public until November 8 to make any protests —in writing.

Herman A. Johnson, acting superintendent, explained the higher charges are made necessary by rising costs. The increase, he said, would be the first since 1946.

The new schedule requires full-pay patients to pay $9 a day for the present $7-a-day private room; $6.50 for the present $5 ward accommodations, and $3.25 instead of $2.50 a day for hospitalization of children under 7.

Laboratory Fee Up

It provides also that full-pay patients be charged a flat laboratory fee of $10, instead of $6 or $3 depending on the service rendered; $15 for use of the operating room and anesthesia, now $10 for major surgery, and $10 for minor surgery instead of $5.

Maternity case charges are changed to include a delivery room fee of $10 and $9 for hospitalization. At present, Freedmen's charges maternity patients a minimum $49 for seven days private room hospitalization and $35 for the same period in a ward with no discount for shorter stays.

Fixed charges in tonsillectomy cases are set at $28 for the first two days for patients seven years or older and $9 a day for each additional day, in private-room cases. The present fixed charges are $17.50 for the first two days plus $7 for each additional day.

Corresponding services on a ward-care basis are placed at $23 for two days and $6.50 for each day more, in contrast to present charges of $13.50 and $5. The old and new rates for children under 7 in tonsillectomy cases are slightly more than half the charges for adults.

Clinic Rate Increased

Outpatient rates, too, are increased. The schedule permits charges of $2 on emergency cases, an increase of 50 cents, and $2 for each clinic visit instead of the present $1.

Johnson said since 1946 the average cost to the hospital per patient has increased from $7.26 a day to $17.27.

Interested persons are invited to present their views in writing to the Surgeon General of the Public Health Service, or to Johnson at Room 102, Freedmen's Hospital, 6th and Bryant sts. nw.

Falls Church Lists Voters Eligible for School Election

A list of more than 2500 Falls Church "freeholders" or property owners, eligible to vote on the $700,000 school construction loan, was released yesterday by City Clerk Harry Wells.

Voting in the November 19 referendum is open to anyone 21 years of age or older, who owns property in the city and is a resident of Falls Church. Husbands and wives, who have joint holdings both may vote.

The freeholders list will be posted in the City Hall, the police station, and the Madison School. Persons not on it, but qualified to vote, must appear before a special meeting of the City Council, scheduled for November 9 at City Hall, at which their qualifications will be determined.

Baloney Bandit Robbed to Pay Debt, He Says

Soldier Admits Eleven Holdups; Wanted to Join Girl in Germany

A Fort Myer soldier yesterday blamed his career as the "baloney bandit" on a $77 debt he had to clear up before he could return to overseas duty and his German fiancee.

Before his career ended abruptly with his arrest Thursday night, however, the soldier had chalked up nine robberies and two larcenies for a profit of more than $900, police declared.

The "baloney bandit" was so named because most of the robberies were committed in grocery stores after the holdup man had ordered slices of baloney.

Yesterday, the soldier, Pvt. Edward Henderson, 22, was ordered held for grand jury action on two of the robbery charges by United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence, who set bond at $5000.

Decided on Robbery

The whole thing started last week, Henderson said, when his overseas orders came through but were not cleared because of the $77 he owed at the post. He had been trying to get back overseas since last May, he explained. So, he decided on the first robbery to get the cash, he added.

But after the first robbery, which netted him $135, he was afraid to pay the debt because suspicions might be aroused about where he got the money, Henderson continued. It was then that he went AWOL and continued his career of crime, spending the loot on Scotch whisky and women he declared.

Henderson was arrested Thursday night shortly after Louis Newman, 51, and Michael Wayne, 24, were robbed of $180 in cash in their Dunbar Liquor Store at 1634 1st st. nw. He was seized at 3d and Q sts. nw. Capt. Robert Murray, assistant chief of detectives, and Lieut. Otto Fuss, acting head of the robbery squad, who were cruising in the vicinity and heard a police broadcast describing the bandit. The found the cash and a switchblade knife on Henderson, they said.

List of Robberies

Henderson has admitted the following robberies and larcenies, police said:

Grocery store at 25 I st. ne., proprietor Hyman Mallach robbed of $135 October 18.
Grocery store at 1001 L st. nw., larceny of $35 October 21.
Liquor store at 81 Florida ave. ne., proprietor Samuel H. Stander robbed of $182 October 22.
Grocery at 2032 12th st. nw., Morris Goldberg, proprietor robbed of $2 October 23.
Grocery store at 2535 14th st. nw., Mrs. Vasilike Garoufes, proprietor, robbed of $60
West End Delicatessen, 2008½ M st. nw., proprietor Albert B. Steerman robbed of $110 October 23.
Rainbow Market at 520 Florida ave. nw., proprietor Benny Luner robbed of $60 October 25.
Florida Cafe at 14 Florida ave. nw., Samuel J. Greenfield, proprietor, robbed of $162 October 25.
Frozen Custard Stand, 17th and Benning rd. ne., larceny of $48 October 26.
Sunoco Service Station, 3d and Massachusetts ave. nw., proprietor John E. Shellenberger robbed of $65 October 27.

Policeman Files $50,000 Suit on Liquor Charge

A Cottage City, Md., man was named defendant yesterday in a $50,000 damage suit filed by a town police official who charged he was "falsely" and "maliciously" accused of being under the influence of alcohol while on duty.

The suit was filed in Prince Georges County Circuit Court by Cottage City Police Sergt. Albert J. Miller against Donald Wilson, 3727 38th ave., Cottage City, parts manager for a Bethesda auto firm. The police sergeant charged Wilson wrote the town commissioners accusing him of being under the influence of alcohol on August 29 "with the intention to injure and damage the reputation of your plaintiff without regard for the truth and to cause him to lose his job with the police force."

Miller was cleared of the charge September 16 following a hearing of the town commissioners. In his suit, he asked $25,000 compensatory damages, $25,000 punitive damages and "whatever other relief the cause may require."

Reward Set At $300 in Boy's Slaying

Special Police Now Checking On 'All Theories'; Child Found Oct. 9

Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett yesterday announced a reward of $300 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of 8-year-old Harrison M. Walker.

This is the maximum amount the police can offer under the law.

The child was found October 9 in Rock Creek under the Pennsylvania ave. bridge. His skull was fractured and he had been cut 17 times.

Police are "checking on all possible theories" in the slaying, Inspector Robert S. Bryant, chief of detectives, said. One possibility is that a gang of children may have killed the boy. Another is that a sex pervert was responsible.

A special squad of 20 policemen is working on the case, including park police as well as homicide squad detectives, and men of the Third and Seventh Precincts.

'Guilty,' Says Fletcher in Tax Evasion

William B. (Billie) Fletcher, 40, who police say has been Washington's No. 1 bootlegger, pleaded guilty yesterday of failing to file income-tax returns involving $13,378.

Questioned by a reporter about it later, Fletcher said:

"You can count every bootlegger in Washington. And none of them file income-tax returns.'

His attorney, M. Edward Buckley, jr., had a different view, however. Buckley said that Fletcher didn't think he had to file returns because he had dependents and believed that he could deduct his attorney's fees.

Released Under Bond

The indictment against Fletcher was returned in Baltimore but was transfered to District Court here after the defendant agreed to plead guilty. Fletcher was released under $1000 bond pending sentence.

The indictment is in two counts. It charges that Fletcher in 1945 made $3523 and in 1946 made $9855 but in neither year filed his Federal income tax form.

Meanwhile, there is pending against Fletcher a Federal tax lien assessing him for $17,427. Buckley said that efforts were being made to settle the civil matter growing out of the taxes.

Few Convictions

Police say that Fletcher has been in the illicit liquor racket here since the 1930s but his record shows that few changes were sustained in court and still fewer convictions.

However, in 1937, he was sentenced to 90 days in jail for illegal sale and possession of whisky and in 1942 paid a $100 fine on the same charges. In 1947, he is listed as paying a $200 fine for failing to file a D. C. tax return.

2 Men Fined $700 For Transporting Untaxed Liquor

Fines totaling $700 were assessed against two District men in Upper Marlboro Police Court yesterday on charges of transporting and possessing untaxed liquor.

Bernard S. Bush, 27, 5341 Hayes st., ne., was fined $200 and costs on each charge of transporting and possessing untaxed liquor. A companion, Arthur Harris, 38, 2511 High st., se., was fined $200 for transporting and $100 for possession.

The two were arrested last Wednesday by Policemen Charles Perrygo and Donald Forsht on Route 5 at Silver Hill after the officers noticed their car "zigzagging," according to testimony. In the car the officers said they found 59 gallons of alcoholic liquor.

5 Boys Confess Setting Up Road Sign for Football

Five Falls Church boys set up an impromptu ball field for themselves with the aid of a home-made "Road Closed--Police Department" sign, but had to abandon the scheme when a real policeman spotted their handiwork.

Lieut. Edward Simpson first spotted the sign about rush-hour Thursday, on Lincoln ave., Falls Church, but couldn't recall any orders to close the street for construction purposes.

Turning back, he noticed the five youngsters moving the sign. They confessed to concocting the sign themselves, because there wasn't any other nearby space for a football game, they said.

radio firms, supporting continuance of the programs.

Testimony brought persistent cross-examination from Franklin S. Pollak, Justice Department lawyer intervening privately in the radio issue.

He charged at one point that the radio programs are unconstitutional, in that they deprive those who do not like the broadcasts of their liberty to think and talk.

He cited Supreme Court cases to support his view, but conceded they were not precisely in point, and said he had found no case that was.

The hearing will continue at 10 a. m. Monday. Thomas Dowd, counsel for the radio firm, said he plans to present testimony of four more witnesses. Pollak would not say whether he plans to call witnesses himself, but added he does not expect his part in the case to prolong the hearing past Monday.

Better Things to Come

For those favoring radio, the day's testimony brought word of new and better things to come.

As first witness for Capital Transit, Giddings said the company plans eventually to install radio sets in 1500 vehicles, compared with 212 now.

To questions by Pollak, he said it was possible to project revenue running into the million-dollar levels—the radio contract gives C. T. Co. a share in advertising revenues above a guaranteed minimum payment of $6 per month per radio-equipped vehicle.

Improvements in the quality of transit radio sets were forecast by Hulbert Taft, jr., chairman of the Board of Transit Radio, Inc. He said that an electronic volume control that will automatically adjust the volume of the radio to changes in the general noise level had been developed. He said there is another control that will adjust the volume as the distance from transmitter to vehicle varies. He said these controls will be available soon.

A spokesman for Muzak, Inc., which supplies the music for Transit Radio in Washington, described the firm's efforts to develop a musical style with the widest possible appeal. Donald O'Neill, Musak program director, said:

"Melody is emphasized throughout. It is played by a salon-type orchestra. Strings predominate over woodwinds and brasses. Swing and jazz and heavy symphony are avoided. Brasses are muted. Extreme dynamic changes are eliminated. There is no bebop.

Merit Index Used

"We have a merit index to express public likes and dislikes, and numbers with a low merit index are excluded."

"Why," asked Chairman Flanagan, "do a large number of people who like music object to this (radio in transit vehicles) on the ground that it violates their private rights?"

"Music to most people is based on association," said O'Neill. "Generally people with a high musical training do not care too much for popular music."

In other phases of their case, Capital Transit attorneys F. G. Awalt, and D. A. Myse, presented:

Edward G. Doody, owner of a St. Louis market research firm, who reported "random sample" surveys his firm made of Washington riders' reactions to transit radio last month showed better than 75 percent favorable, and but 3 percent firmly opposed.

Reactions were similar in April, he reported. Between the favorable groups, and the firmly opposed, were those who did not care, did not know, or would not object if the majority wanted radio.

Safety Unimpaired

Also testifying on the surveys was Andrew Sarkady of the Doody firm. In a parallel survey of driver reactions, Doody said it was found 95.9 percent felt the radio did not interfere with safety; 88.1 percent had no personal objection, and 74.5 percent found radio made their jobs pleasanter.

Several Capital Transit employes testified radio had found almost no objectors among drivers, and that it did not decrease safety of operation. Among these witnesses were E. L. Keller, R. L. Willoughby and I. S. Nichols, driver-instructors; A. C. McCloskey, safety supervisor, and Max F. Ryan, chief clerk in the claims department.

Good Samaritan Dies in Tussle

A friend's attempt to help an intoxicated buddy homeward yesterday resulted in the death of Everett Covington, 34 of 1304 W st. nw., police reported.

Covington was attempting to show Isiaah Edward Mosby, 34, of 1319 S st. nw., the way home when a slight tussle started, a witness told police. Covington was knocked to the pavement and was pronounced dead upon arrival at Freedmen's Hospital 20 minutes later. The scene was the 1800 block of 14th st. nw.

Mosby is being held pending a coroner's report.

Bid of $100,000 Is Low of 15 for White House Job

Offer by McShain; Highest $950,000; Award Scheduled For Next Thursday

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

John McShain, Inc., of Philadelphia yesterday offered to take on the coveted $4,160,000 job of restoring the White House for a fixed fee of $100,000, the lowest bid submitted.

Bids from 15 of the Nation's largest building contractors were opened by the Public Buildings Administration in the General Services Building Auditorium, 18th and F sts. nw.

The prize reconstruction job will be done under a cost-plus-a-fixed-fee contract, and is estimated to require two years' work to put the sagging, crumbling Executive Mansion in shape for President Truman and his family.

After a bitter Senate-House fight last spring over how the White House should be rebuilt, Congress appropriated $5,400,000 to completely rebuild the interior of the residential portion, leaving intact only the outer walls and roof.

The balance between the $4,160,000 and the total congressional appropriation of $5,400,000 will be used to cover the contract fees, refurnishing, redecorating, and engineering costs.

The bids ranged from the low $100,000 to a high $950,000 submitted by the Bates and Rogers firm in Chicago.

Maj. Gen. Glen E. Edgerton, executive director of the Commission on Renovation of the Executive Mansion, said his group will meet next Thursday, November 3, at the White House to make the actual award. He said McShain, Inc., "is practically certain" of receiving the award.

He described the $100,000 bid as a "moderate price."

The McShain construction sign is familiar in the District these days. Among the company's local jobs are: the Dupont Circle underpass, the new General Accounting Building, the Bethesda clinical center and the new press plant of The Washington Post on L st, nw, between 15th and 16th sts.

PBA pointed out that unlike the ordinary cost-plus-a-fixed-fee contract, the contrator's fee on the White House job is in addition to the total construction cost and will include numerous items of project cost.

For instance, the contractor must pay sales fees, office rents, salaries and traveling expenses of company personnel and taxes and similar charges.

Recalling the Senate's hard victory over the House for a "renovated" rather than a new Executive Mansion, PBA commented:

"Briefly, the work to be done under the general contract and the underpinning of the outside walls, without removing them.

"The foundations of the walls will be carried down to deeper and firmer strata and the interior of the building will be restored without removing them.

"The foundations of the walls will be carried down to deeper and firmer strata and the interior of the building will be restored without material change in its appearance."

Other opened bids were: Charles H. Tompkins, Washington, D. C.—$285,000; George A. Fuller, Washington—$242,000; Gilbane Building Co., Providence, R. I.—$129,910; Shepherd, Wilson & Krug, Inc., New York City—$596,800; J. F. Fitzgerald Construction Co., Boston—$297,000; James King & Sons, Inc., New York City—$117,000; John W. Harris, New York City—$250,000; Manhattan Construction Co., Muskogee, Mich.—$788,800; McCloskey & Co., Philadelphia—$232,000; Merritt, Chapman & Scott Corp., New York City—$285,000; William C. Simpson Co., Los Angeles, Calif.—$392,230; Turner Construction Co., New York City—$275,000, and Vermilya Brown Co., New York City—$175,000.

Freedom Fair

Sesqui Site Approved by Park Board

The Sesquicentennial Commission yesterday cleared its last major policy hurdle by winning National Capital Park and Planning Commission approval of a central celebration site.

NCPPC voted unanimously to go along with the plan to locate the Freedom Fair buildings in Anacostia Park at the foot of East Capitol st.

The Federal planners tentatively approved the site after working out a deal whereby the Sesqui Commission would allocate funds to the District Recreation Board for establishing replacement playground facilities elsewhere.

Other Conditions

The board operates several baseball and football fields on the 144-acre Anacostia Park area on which the Freedom Fair will be built.

NCPPC also conditioned its approval by requiring that:

1. All the structures on the site must be of temporary construction, and be razed by the end of 1952.

2. The Sesqui Commission submit detailed plans showing the exact location of all buildings.

Construction is not expected to begin until next February.

At the same time NCPPC—in the final day of its three - day monthly meeting—gave the green light to construction of a permanent, 5000-seat capacity amphitheater in Rock Creek Park, near Colorado ave. and 16th st. nw. Here the Sesqui symphonic drama, being written by Paul Green, will be presented.

NCPPC Chairman William Wurster explained that his group approved a permanent amphitheater since the National Capital Park Service long has needed one.

Playground Plans

On the Recreation Board complication, Wurster said the Park Service will cooperate with the Sesqui Commission in seeing that other playground facilities are provided.

Milo Christiansen, Recreation Board superintendent, said last night he expects to put the replacement facilities on available unimproved land near the Thomas Elementary School in the 600 block of Anacostia ave. se., on the east bank of the Anacostia.

NCPPC made clear that it gave the Sesqui Commission the go-ahead sign only on the ground that the buildings will be temporary. The planners emphasized again that they intend to develop an elaborate sports area on the land.

More Decent Homes Urged By Wurster

"The greatest monument to District people would be not more public buildings but more decent homes here," Dean William W. Wurster said yesterday.

The chairman of the National Park and Planning Commission, who Thursday night lifted the curtain on the long-awaited "Comprehensive Plan for Washington," thus laid new emphasis on the need for an aggressive city-wide attack on District slums.

"I very definitely feel that more housing should be given priority over more public building in Washington," he said.

Highlighting the long-range recommendations of the master plan for the District, Wurster called for a slumless Capital with a population of 1,000,000 living in "beauty, light and air."

A top plan recommendation calls for appropriation of funds for studies "to program progressive action toward reconstruction of slum areas." It also recommends that the National Capital Housing Authority be authorized to build low-cost housing outside the District proper "to provide a reservoir of housing for residents of an active redevelopment area while reconstruction is going on."

Wurster placed heavy stress on the need for "regional participation" in carrying out future planning for the Capital.

In this connection, former NCPPC Chairman U. S. Grant 3d, now president of the American Planning and Civic Association, urged support of a Senate-passed bill which would give NCPPC such authority beyond the District line.

Wurster said the unpublished "Comprehensive Plan" would be released piecemeal, with the first section, a summary of recommendations, scheduled to go to the printers in the near future.

He said it was "most important for the community and Congress" to have an overall picture of the city's needed improvements at the earliest possible time.

Adm. McVay Dies; Headed Asiatic Fleet

Admiral Charles B. McVay, USN, retired, one-time commander in chief of the Asiatic Fleet, died yesterday at the Naval Medical Center, Bethesda. He was 81.

The admiral, in retirement since 1932, commanded the naval escort accompanying President Wilson on his return from the Peace Conference in France and in 1920 became Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance here for three years.

Born in Edgeworth, Pa., he was appointed to the Naval Academy in 1886. He rose to the grade of rear admiral in 1923 and attained an admiral in 1923 and took command of the Asiatic Fleet in 1929 with the rank of admiral.

During the Spanish-American War, Admiral McVay served aboard the Amphitrite, monitor ship, when it successfully engaged a shore battery off San Juan, Puerto Rico. On the Navy's round-the-world cruise in 1907-1909, he was navigator of the flagship Alabama.

Fleet Chief of Staff

In 1912, he was made chief of staff to the commander of the Asiatic Fleet and held this post in the period when the United States recognized the Chinese Republic.

During World War I, he commanded at different times the Saratoga, the New Jersey and the Oklahome, receiving a Distinguished Service Medal for his activities.

After the war he was made assistant superintendent of the Naval Gun Factory here, and in 1920 became commandant and superintendent. After three years as head of the Ordnance Bureau he commanded the Yangtze Patrol in China until 1925.

Appointed to the Navy General Board here in 1925, he was made budget officer of the organization. He retires in 1932 iwth the rank of admiral.

Army-Navy Club Founder

In addition to his Navy activities, Admiral McVay was one of the founders of the Army-Navy Country Club, a member of the Chevy Chase Club, the New York Yacht Club and an honorary member of the Friars Club of New York City.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Edith Reno McVay, 2131 Bancroft pl. nw.; a son, Admiral Charles B. McVay, 3d, ret., of New Orleans, and two grandsons, Charles B. McVay, 4th, who lives at the Bancroft pl. address, and James Wilder McVay, a student at Tulane University, New Orleans.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 1 p. m. at the Fort Myer Chapel and burial will be in the Arlington Cemetery.

Ashton Dovell

Ex-Speaker Of Virginia House Dies

Richmond, Va., Oct. 28 (AP). — Ashton Dovell, former Speaker of the House of Delegates, died today at Medical College Hospital. The Williamsburg attorney, aspirant for the Democratic nomination for Governor in 1941, was 64.

Mr. Dovell had been ailing for some time. He was admitted to the hospital Wednesday when he suffered an internal hemorrhage.

Mr. Dovell represented Williamsburg and the counties of James City, New Kent, Charles City and York. He was Democratic floor leader when Harry Flood Byrd was Governor, and laer Speaker.

He was closely allied with the dominant organization forces in the party for many years but later was regarded as an independent.

Although he announced his candiracy for the gubernatoral nomition that Colgate W. Darden, jr. won Mr. Dovell did not make a race for the party nod.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p. m. Sunday at Bruton Parish Episcopal Church, Williamsburg, with burial in Cedar Grove Cemetery there.

Among his survivors is his wife, the former Miss Martha Lane, of Williamsburg, whome he married shortly after he took his law degree at the University of Virginia. They had no children.

Mrs. D. B. Wills Dies; Funeral Set Monday

Mrs. Joy Davis Wills, 67, wife of Maj. Davis B. Wills, special assistant to the president of the Capital Transit Co., died Thursday in Doctors Hospital after a short illness.

A native of Henderson, Ky., Mrs. Wills came to Washington 25 years ago after the death of her first husband, Frank Lockwood, in Asheville, N. C. In Washington, she lived at 2359 Ashmead pl. nw.

Major Wills resigned from the Marine Corps in 1921 to enter business here, and has held his present position with the transit company since 1934.

Surviving besides her husband is one daughter, Mrs. Marion F. Toms of Hendersonville, N. C.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Monday at Gawler's Chapel, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw. Burial will follow in Arlington Cemetery.

John Lawrence Rivers

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—John Lawrence Rivers, 50, manager of the Copperthite Pie Co., died today.

A native of Washington, D. C., he had been a resident of Norfolk for 10 years.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Holloman-Brown funeral home Sunday at 3 p. m.

U. of Md. Students Launch 26th Homecoming Inside When Rain Washes Out Bonfire Rally

PREVIEW OF BIG NIGHT—Jean Culbert, Maryland coed, shows her Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority sisters, the gown she will wear to the Homecoming Ball tonight. They are Tex Wilson (left) and Marilyn Macchi. Comely Jean is a contestant for the Homecoming Queen title

But while plans for "sacrifices to the fire gods" and a torchlight parade through the campus folded, more than 200 doughty students gathered at the Ritchie Stadium to stage an impromptu demonstration.

They vocalized and cheered, with the band for accompaniment. And they fairly snapped their vocal chords when Gene Kinny, last year's football captain and now on the coaching staff, predicted Maryland would trounce South Carolina, starting at 2:15 p. m. today in Byrd Stadium.

Today's celebration, which some 3000 alumni are expected to attend, will begin officially at 10 a. m. with meetings of old grads.

At 11 a. m. the colorful floats of sororities and fraternities will wind along the campus, vying for prizes. Awards will also go to the best decorated sorority and fraternity houses.

Alumni will be guests at a luncheon in the dining hall. After the game, open house will be held in the clubs, with an alumni dance scheduled for 9 p. m. in the dining hall.

Music will be by Jimmy Dorsey and his orchestra. Governor Lane will present the prizes for float and house decorations.

Parties Continue Through Week

State Society Fetes Accent Halloween

By Nicha Soure

GOBLINS, spooks and dancing will be the themes of State society entertainments during Halloween "week."

The South Dakota State Society's "autumn kickoff" will be a party Sunday at the Women's City Club. The entertainment committee has promised "tricks and treats" in keeping with the Halloween spirit between the hours of 2 and 5 p. m.

Mrs. Harold O. Lovre, wife of the Representative from South Dakota, will head the list of those assisting at the tea table. With Mrs. Lovre will be Mrs. W. J. Bulow, sr.; Mrs. Carl Walker, Miss Antoinette Rudolph, Mrs. L. W. Sornson and Mrs. Walter L. Slocum.

The reception committee includes Mr. and Mrs. Robert King, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Crow, Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Clarke and Col. and Mrs. Dawes Brisbine.

THE NEW YORK STATE SOCIETY will get the Halloween spirit on Friday, November 4, at Pierce Hall. New Yorkers will arrive at 8:30 p. m. to chase the blues away with unusual games, entertainment, dancing and refreshments. Dave McWilliams will be there to furnish the music.

While it is not required, the society hopes that everyone will come in a Halloween costume and mask to add to the gayety of the occasion and prizes will be awarded for the most striking costume and mask.

WOULD YOU like to receive a prize from the hands of a Federal judge for the cleverest, most humorous or most original costume at a masquerade ball?

Mississippi's distinguished woman jurist, Mrs. Burnita Sheldon Matthews, will be on hand at the Mississippi State Society ball Saturday, November 5, at the Washington Club.

This will be only the second masquerade dance put on by the Mississippians in 54 years, according to Holden H. Rhymes, president. Prizes will be given couples as well as single contestants. The guest list will be limited to members and their guests.

Decorations in the hands of Miss Marguerite Pack will feature the Thanksgiving motif. Mrs. Albert Y. Woodward, general chairman of the masquerade, will be assisted by Miss Annie Laurie Rankin and Miss Mary Fulton.

Spanish grandees, gypsies, Turkish ladies and Indian rajahs will mingle with milkmaids, ladies-in-crinoline and page boys, all trying to guess the identities of their dancing partners before the unmasking at the witching hour.

Information as to tickets, costumes and memberships can be obtained by calling Mrs. Woodward, Woodley 0228, or Miss Susan Burress, Republic 4085.

CHARLES M. WALKER was elected president of the West Virginia State Society at a recent meeting.

Other officers include Miss A. R. Huyett, David S. Davison, Mrs. Sada C. Shinn, Howard M. Starling, James P. Moriarty, Representative E. H. Hedrick, vice presidents; Mrs. F. W. Smeltzer, recording secretary; Mrs. Robert Barrows, financial secretary; Chester E. Barrows, treasuer; Col. Heber H. Rice, historian.

Mr. Walker asked the active support of all members in a campaign to enroll as members of the society all of the estimated 13,000 West Virginians living in Washington.

THE TEXAS STATE SOCIETY square dance group will meet for the first time Friday. The get-togethers are planned for members and their friends. Information about the meeting place can be obtained from Mrs. Mastin G. White at Overlook 5758.

THE MISSOURI SOCIETY will hold its first entertainment of the season in the west ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel tonight. Dancing will begin at 10 p. m.

During the intermission, Miss Grace Lovell will lead the members in a community sing to the accompaniment of Mrs. Ralph Fuhrman. President Clarence McCune will receive guests, assisted by Mrs. Erie Jansson, reception committee chairman.

In Memoriam

HAFFER, ANNIE. In memory of our grandmother, ANNIE HAFFER, who passed away one year ago today, October 29, 1948.
So many things you did for us.
No single day goes by.
That memory fails to holds its mirror
Before our grateful eyes.
GRANDCHILDREN, WILLIAM, ROBERT AND RUTH VIRGINA.

HAFFER, ANNIE. In memory of my wife, ANNIE HAFFER, who passed away one year ago today, October 29, 1948.
Thou art gone from the earth, my Darlina;
But I know I shouldn't shed tears;
For death that has parted, will some day unite me
With the wife of my youth and my years. HUSBAND, DAN.

HAFFER, ANNIE. In memory of my mother, ANNIE HAFFER, who passed away one year ago today, October 29, 1948.
Somewhere above this troubled world,
Safe beyond all grief and care,
Our Mother rests in heavenly peace;
God grant some day we meet her there

Ask Anne About Washing Nylon Shirts

Will you tell a poor man how to wash his shirt? I bought one of these nylon affairs that need no ironing, and theoretically need be swished in suds, rinsed, and hung up. My trouble is with the cuff edges and the collar—I simply can't get them quite clean, even though I rub them with suds rather industriously. What's the answer? Don't use my name, please—my associates would ride me no end!
A. B. C.

This should get those collars and cuffs clean in a jiffy: Wet and lay them on a flat surface. Dust with a mild soap powder or flakes and brush with a soft brush. Continue brushing until clean then put the shirt in warm water and wash. There will probably be enough soap left on the cuffs and collars to wash the shirt. Rinse thoroughly—two or three times.

Rest your fears—your identity will never be divulged. And I might add, for the benefit of your potential tormentors, that we haven't even used your correct initials.

To J. G. R. and F. Y. J.: Black strap or New Orleans molasses may be purchased at some health food stores. One store which sells it can be reached by calling Columbia 2980.

We're remodeling our kitchen and are seriously considering purchasing an electric dishwasher with sink and garbage disposal unit. Because of the plumbing, the cost of the dishwasher-disposal unit will be over seven hundred dollars ($700). Several people have said the dishwasher is inefficient and not worth that much money. Sales talks assure me of nonbreakage, efficiency, and time saving, but offer no practical demonstration with dirty dishes from any type of meal. We're ready to close the remodeling bid but want to be certain before purchasing such an expensive item. Please advise as to the disadvantages, inefficiency, etc., of an electric dishwasher.
V. A. H.

Complaints of inefficiency in electric dishwashers can usually be traced to inadequate supply of hot water. Makers of electric dishwashers recommend that in homes where there is an electric dishwasher the water heater temperature should be increased to 150 degrees F. where the maximum water temperatures in home heaters is usually 130 degrees F. Also, occasionally there is inadequate hot water because the water heater is not large enough to keep the water temperature always at 150. This is especially true at times of the day when there are large amounts of hot water used for baths, etc.

When there is adequate hot water, dishwashers really get the dishes clean. Also, because much hotter water is used in them than is often used by hand washing methods, machine dish washing is a much more hygienic method.

Since there is this question in your mind, I suggest you visit or call the Electric Institute of Washington located in the Potomac Electric Power Co. Building (Metropolitan 2230), 10th and E sts. They have all the better known makes of dishwashers there and will be glad to discuss the advantages of each and dishwashers in general with you.

Also, the Potomac Electric Power Co. has a home service department with trained home economists who will come to your home and instruct you in using your dishwasher. If it should not give satisfactory service after it is installed they will find the cause so that it can be corrected.

I shortened the bottom and sleeves on a child's raincoat by turning it up and fastening it with adhesive tape. Now that I wish to let it down there is a sticky white line from the tape. Could you tell me how to remove this adhesive? The rainwater your order through the mattress department of a furniture store which sells them.

Will you please tell me how to soften confectioner's sugar that has become hard in the box, also how to soften old-fashioned brown sugar? C. A. M.

If the box of confectioner's or powdered sugar has been unopened, pound it on the table to break the sugar into lumps. Thus broken, pour it on a bread board and roll with a rolling pin to remove all lumps completely, or put it through a flour sifter. If the box has been opened, use the bread board and rolling pin.

If you are in a hurry, brown sugar can be softened by placing it in a warm oven or the top of a double boiler. Leave it only long enough to heat through and do not have the heat so high that the sugar starts to melt. When heated through, and while it is soft, use immediately or place in a glass jar.

If some of it is stored, put a section of apple or a piece of fresh bread in the jar to add moisture and keep it soft.

If you do not need to use the brown sugar right away, it can be softened by placing in an open container in the refrigerator or by placing a cut apple with the sugar in a closed container.

Before you take your next bath, Petunia, put a couple of generous spoonfuls of any powdered detergent in the tub, before you turn on the water. There'll be no ring at all. Mothers, take a note!

Can you advise me where and what kind of a mattress should be purchased for a Murphy bed? The regulation mattresses (74-inch) are too long. We prefer one that would border on the firm, rather than soft, mattress.
A. V. F.

You could use either a latex foam rubber, felt or hair filled mattress on your Murphy bed. Mattresses in all of these types can be purchased soft, medium or firm. Since regulation-sized mattresses are 74 inches long, if you want a shorter one it will be necessary to have it made to order. To do this, place

Society Attends Parties, Orchid Show, Cotillion

CZECHOSLOVAKIA celebrated her national independence day yesterday at a party given at the embassy from 5 to 7 o'clock. In the receiving line were the Ambassador, Vladimir Outrata and the Military and Air Attache, Lieut. Col. Oto Biheler, and Mme. Biheler. Due to a slight illness, Madame Outrata was unable to attend.

Cocktails were passed and a light buffet supper was served. Flowers decorating the embassy were in the national colors of white, red and blue.

The Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia, Dr. Vladimir Clementis, who is here for United Nations meetings, was among the guests. Others were the Ambassador of the Argentine, Jeronimo Remorino, the Ambassador of Italy and Signora Tarchiani, the Ambassador of Mexico and Senora de la Colina, the Ambassador of Belgium, Baron Silvercruys; Madame Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador; the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Bruggmann,

Also, the Soviet Charge d'Affaires, Vladimir Bazykin; the Charge d'Affaires of Bulgaria, Peter Voutov; the Minister of Great Britain, Sir Derick Hoyer Millar; the Commercial Counselor of Australia and Mrs. Garside; the Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Gordon Gray; and former Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph Davies.

THE FIRST of the Friday Cotillions took place last evening at the Sulgrave Club with a round of cocktail parties and dinners preceding.

Mr. and Mrs. James McSherry Wimsatt and Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Brand 3d were among those entertaining at dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Douglas had a few friends in for cocktails and Gallatin de Knox was host at a champagne party before the dance. Miss Anita Haskell and Austin Bealle were others giving cocktail parties beforehand.

ORCHIDS by the hundreds—in various hues and shapes—were on display at the American Security & Trust Co. Building for a preview of the second annual orchid exhibit given by the National Capital Orchid Society last night.

A thousand guests were asked for the preview, about 200 for a buffet supper given by bank officials with the president, Daniel W. Bell and Mrs. Bell in the receiving line. Mrs. Bell's gown was dark blue lace over taffeta. Her daughter, Kathleen, just back from Europe, wore an emerald green taffeta frock with full skirt and a wide cuffed neckline.

THE NETHERLANDS AMBASSADOR and Mme. van Kleffens were hosts at dinner last evening in honor of Dr. G. J. van Heuven Goedhart, acting chairman of the Netherlands delegation to the United Nations, and Baron van Pallandt, member of the Netherlands United Nations delegation.

MISS BARBARA WARD, a visitor here last week with Mrs. Gardner Cowles, has returned to be with Mr. and Mrs. John Duncan Miller who entertained at dinner for her last evening.

Miss Ward is assistant economic editor of the London Economist. Mr. Miller is head of the London Times Washington bureau.

The Canadian Ambassador and Mrs. Hume Wrong were among guests at the dinner. Others were the president of the International Bank, Eugene Black, and Mrs. Black, and Joseph Alsop.

MRS. GEORGE M. KROUGH, wife of Colnel Krough, entertained at luncheon yesterday at her quarters at Fort Belvoir, in honor of Lady Cantlie, wife of Lieut. Gen. Sir Neal Cantlie, Surgeon General of the British Army. During her stay in Washington Lady Cantlie is the guest of Mrs. Raymond W. Bliss, wife of the Surgeon General USA, at the Army Medical Center.

General Cantlie and Major General Bliss are on a tour of installations of a medico-military nature in Mexico, Canada and the United States.

MR. AND MRS. HOLLIS IMES entertained at tea yesterday at the Arts Club for Dr. Meade Bolton MacBryde.

Among the guests, all close friends of Dr. MacBryde, were the Rev. and Mrs. J. Manly Cobb, the Rev. and Mrs. H. H. Clement.

JAMES E. BROWN, former First Secretary at the American Embassy in Uruguay, and Mrs. Brown, were honored last evening at a dinner party given by Jorge Barreiro, First Secretary of Uruguay. The dinner was at the Shoreham Hotel, and guests included the Charge d'Affaires of Costa Rica, Jorge Hazera; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Oakley, Mr. and Mrs. John Ohmans, the Chief of the Military Mission of Uruguay, Gen. Alberto Bianchi, and Senora de Bianchi.

Mrs. R. W. Imbrie Visiting in New York

Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie is in New York as the guest of Mrs. Mary Seaman Naiden before going to Massachusetts and Rhode Island to visit.

Mrs. Imbrie attended the dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria last evening in celebration of the twenty-sixth anniversary of the proclamation of the Turkish Republic.

The late Major Imbrie was first representative of the Department of State in Ankara and Mrs. Imbrie did relief work in Turkey following the First World War. She is an authority on the early history of the Turkish Republic.

Soroptimist President Asks Education on U. N.

By Genevieve Reynolds

MRS. GERTRUDE HUITT, president, the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs, last night urged more educational programs to acquaint the public with procedures and programs of the United Nations.

She made her plea when she appeared as guest of honor at a cocktail party and buffet supper given by the Soroptimist Club of Washington at the Willard Hotel.

"The trouble with the world today is the trouble with the people," she declared, "nations reflect the individuals within them. If people can't get along together, nations can't. People and nations can work out their differences if sufficient understanding efforts are made."

A native of East St. Louis, Ill., Mrs. Huitt came here from New York where she attended a Soroptimist conference, and ceremonies at the United Nations. Today she will leave for Williamsburg, Va., to attend the fall conference of the South Atlantic Region, American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs. Accompanying her will be 18 representatives of the local club—Mrs. Edith Jarvis, Miss Nelia Turner, regional delegates; Miss Ella Werner, regional director; Miss Mary Judd, president; Mrs. Zada Daniels, Mrs. Mary Catherine Lewis, Miss Mary Bourke, Mrs. Betty Jones, Miss Erma Buechele, Miss Catherine Crook, Miss Beulah Hall, Miss Mary Elizabeth Mersheimer, Mrs. Marie Rogers, Miss Olivia Nicoll, Miss Mary Agnes Sweeney, Miss Daisy Reed, Miss Helene Philibert and Miss Estelle Philibert.

Candles of Friendship

"LIGHTING candles of friendship throughout the world is the way to bring light to troubled nations," asserted Mrs. Huitt.

Stressing the need of advancing the economic status of women throughout the world, she also cautioned against advocating them for jobs just because they are women.

"I hope the time will come when women will be treated as persons, not as bones and hanks of hair," said the Soroptimist head.

Shortly before coming to Washington, Mrs. Huitt talked with Dr. Dora Pappara of Athens. Dr. Pappara, who has 20 years medical experience, came to the United States a few days ago to study psychiatry and mental health at the University of Pennsylvania. She is the first woman to receive the Soroptimist Club's international fellowship.

According to Mrs. Huitt 14 new Soroptimist Clubs have been organized in foreign countries within the past three months. Twenty nations are in the international federation. Those in satellite countries such as Hungary, Romania and Poland are not allowed to operate. Four Soroptimist Clubs, however, were revived in Italy this month.

Featured artist at the Soroptimist dinner last night was Barrington Sharma, well known New York baritone. His accompanist was Mrs. Jewell Downs.

Prizes for Bond Sales

OUTSTANDING women volunteers of the Savings Bonds Opportunity Drive will be honored Wednesday at a prize-award ceremony and gala stage show. The thank-you event, sponsored by the Women's Section, D. C. Savings Bonds Division, will be held at the Mayflower Hotel.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury John S. Graham and Thomas J. Groom, chairman of the D. C. Savings Bonds Division, will be principal speakers.

Mrs. Lindsay P. Rawley, chairman of the Women's Section, will award more than 30 prizes to District women who rolled up big bond sales during the drive. Grand prize is a week's vacation in Bermuda. But there are dozens of others for lucky ones.

During the Opportunity Drive, Mrs. Rawley led the Woman's Section to more than double its quota of one-million-dollar Series E Bonds.

Super Saleswoman Mrs. Rawley is credited by the Treasury Department with being instrumental in the sale of savings bonds exceeding 17 million dollars since she became a volunteer during the war. Since November, 1948, she has been chairman of the Women's Section. Last year she organized the Bond-a-Month League during the Security Loan Campaign. To stimulate competition among her workers she put on the contest. It was so successful that the project was repeated this year.

Highlights of the entertainment will be a program by the National Press Club Chorus of 40 voices and Hawaiian dances by Miss Beverly Farrington, daughter of the Hawaiian Delegate and Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington. The chorus will be under direction of Dr. Clyde M. Huber, with Mrs. Gertrude Smallwood Mockbee as accompanist.

And there'll be more music by Dolores DiMinni Breeskin, former singing star in "The Student Prince," "Merry Widow" and other Schubert productions plus Hawaiian Guitarist Bob Knight, and a local barber shop quartet.

Mrs. Truman Honor Guest

HOW would you like to sample wassail from Norway, Denmark, India or New Zealand? It can be done when the Capital Division, Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, holds its colorful international fete, Saturday, November 12, at the Shoreham Hotel. Mrs. Truman will be guest of honor at the 2 to 6 p. m. party.

Perhaps there will be a story, too, along with the holiday drink. Dispensing the beverages will be diplomatic wives from 14 foreign countries, who can give the origin and tradition of their native wassil bowl. Then there will be exhibits plus a colorful stage show depicting the festival customs of the countries represented. Ushers will be young people from the participating embassies and legations.

In addition to the entertainment, unusual Christmas presents, handicraft, flowers, homemade cakes, candies and other foods will be sold.

Purpose of the fete is to raise money for the organization's scholarships for rural American girls and to aid the program of the Associated Country Women of the World.

Ranking diplomatic wives, whose rural women's organizations are members of the ACWW and expected to attend the benefit, are Mme. Morgenstierne, wife of the Norwegian Ambassador; Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador; Mrs. Makin, wife of the Australian Ambassador; Mrs. Wrong, wife of the Canadian Ambassador; Mme. de Kauffmann, wife of the Danish Ambassador; Mme. van Kleffens, wife of the Netherlands Ambassador; Lady Franks, wife of the British Ambassador; Mme. Boheman, wife of the Swedish Ambassador; Mrs. Corea, wife of the Ambassador from Ceylon; Lady Berendsen, wife of the New Zealand Ambassador; Mme. Pandit, the Ambassador from India; Mme. Bruggmann, wife of the Swiss Minister; Mme. Jutila, wife of the Finnish Minister, and Mrs. Nunan, wife of the Irish Minister.

General chairman of the fete, which is open to the public, will be Mrs. Louis H. Renfrow. Mrs. Arthur Vennell, 4000 Cathedral ave., is in charge of advance ticket sales.

Mrs. Anderson to Speak

MRS. EUGENIE ANDERSON, the United States' first woman Ambassador, will be guest of honor and speaker at the Women's National Press Club's luncheon, Tuesday, November 1, 12:30 p. m. at the Mayflower Hotel. It will be her first speech in Washington since being appointed Ambassador to Denmark.

Judges, Students to Be Honored

NEW WOMEN law students at George Washington, American, Columbus and National Universities will share honors with a group of women judges. Occasion will be a tea given by the combined chapters of Phi Delta Delta International Legal Sorority, Sunday, October 30, 4 to 6 p. m. at the Washington Club.

Honor guests will be Judge Edith Cockrill, Judge Nadine Lane Gallagher, Judge Lucy Howorth, Judge Annabelle Matthews, Judge Marion Harron, Col. Mary-Agnes Brown, Miss Louisa Wilson, Mrs. Vashti Burr Whittington, past national president of Phi Delta Delta; and Mrs. Grace M. Stewart, administrative assistant to the U. S. Attorney General.

General chairman of the tea is Miss Rachel Hanes. Assisting will be Mrs. Marjorie Hansen, Miss Dorothy Jackson, Miss Josephine Bush, Miss Esther Crane and Mrs. Cecilia M. Kaiser.

ON TODAY'S CALENDAR . . .

Harriet M. Lothrop Society, CHILDREN OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, will hold a meeting and costume Halloween party, 2 p. m., at the home of Mrs. James W. Butler, District State Chairman of Approved Schools. Cohostesses with Mrs. Butler will be her granddaughter, Miss Jimmy Lane. Ford E. Young 3d, junior society president, will stress the need of filling "dime cards" to guarantee the continued scholarship of Bobby Henry. Bobby is a CAR-adopted boy at Tamassee DAR Approved School . . . Arlington Branch, AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF UNIVERSITY WOMEN, will hold its annual rummage sale at 1129 N. Highland . . . The JAYNCEES-AUXILIARY OF THE WASHINGTON JUNIOR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE will hold a membership tea, 3 to 5 p. m., at the Washington Club. Honor guests will be the wives of all members of the Junior Chamber. Mrs. Paul Hawkins, president, of the auxiliary, and Mrs. Robert Tomb, director of membership, are in charge of arrangements . . . The WOMAN'S AUXILIARY OF ST. MICHAEL'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH, Arlington, will hold a Christmas bazaar in the Guild Hall . . . For reservations telephone Mrs. W. M. Southworth, Emerson 6727.

Kids Warned Of Fire Peril On Halloween

As the Washington's area's younger citizens did their last-minute shopping for costumes, masks, pumpkins and other appropriate Halloween funmakers, District Fire Marshal R. C. Roberts had a word of warning for them yesterday.

He warned that papier-mache jack-o'-lanterns with candles in them, which are on sale in local stores, can turn the fun of Halloween into tragedy in a few minutes.

Mass of Flames

A test was made of one of the lanterns with a candle about four inches long. After burning for 55 minutes, the flame ignited the candle wax at he bottom of the lantern and in a few moments the entire lantern was a mass of flames.

The marshal also warned against using inflammable decorations and costumes if candles are to be lighted in celebrations, particularly in public places.

It it's a Halloween party your child wants to attend this weekend—and the police prefer him to do that to ripping off gates or chalking windows—there are almost 100 to pick from.

All seven of the Metropolitan Police Boys' Clubs will be running clubhouse athletic and novelty competitions, continuing eliminations started last night. The clubs will sponsor football games all day today and Monday afternoon.

"Black Cat" Parade

In Silver Spring, service, businessmen's and veterans' groups are sponsoring for the second year a "Black Cat" parade on Monday in which 2000 children in two age groups are expected to participate.

Following the parade, those in the ninth grade and older group will be guests at a party in the Silver Spring Armory, while the younger paraders will be entertained at the Silver Spring Intermediate School.

In Greenbelt, city fathers will supervise a "trick or treat" contest Sunday and on Monday night will arrange a soaping contest on store windows.

Throughout Greater Washington, Halloween will be greeted with social activities. Today's scheduled events are:

Fort Myer Women's Club Fort Myer, Halloween hop, square dancing to music by Case's orchestra, 9:30 p. m.

Bolling Air Force Base, party for children of Air Force personnel, 4 p. m., Officers Club.

Riverside Rink, roller skating party, 8 p. m. Costume prizes.

Chevy Chase Community Building, "horror hop" for teen-agers, 8:30 p. m.; play center parade, 9:30 a. m.

Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department—Dance, 9 to 12 p. m., Silver Spring Armory.

Sunday Programs

Four Widows Call Engel Their Husband

Chicago, Oct. 28 (AP).—The first week of the Criminal Court production of "I Married An Engel" ended abruptly today after four widows testified Sigmund (Sam) ... I was their husband.

... on a charge of running a confidence game was recessed until Monday. The 74-year-old Engel then claimed as his "only real wife" Mrs. Pauline Langton Engel, 39. He is at liberty under bond.

As court adjourned, Engel kissed her gloved hand, murmuring "Come honey, Baby Darling."

"No, it's Buttercup," she cooed.

Engel told newsmen he will have 25 character witnesses when his defense opens next week. In addition, he says, Arthur will be there. Arthur is the twin brother Sam blames for all his troubles.

Of the several widows who testified against him, Engel claimed, "I never saw them before in my life." One of them, he confided "looks like a bale of hay."

"I hope you do the same things over the weekend as I do," Mrs. Langton-Engel tossed saucily over her mink-draped shoulder.

Court Continues Hearing in Auto Death Case

Woodrow Wilson, 36, of 1268 Oates st. ne., received a continued hearing until next ...

Mr. Mann

... Wednesday yesterday when arraigned in Municipal Court on a charge of negligent homicide.

The charge grew out of fatal injuries suffered by Earl Mann, 49, of 1222 12th st. nw., a retired Army sergeant, who died in Emergency Hospital Thursday. Mann was hit by Wilson's car at the corner of 11th and N sts. nw., October 12.

Wilson, a porter for Eastern Airlines, was released in $500 bond. Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, coroner, set an inquest for Tuesday at 11:30 a. m.

CARE Is Ordered To Leave Poland

Warsaw, Poland, Oct. 28. (AP)—Care—A United States agency for foreign relief—has been told to leave Poland by December 1, a CARE official said today.

(Earlier a dispatch from Geneva, Switzerland, said the Polish government had ordered the international committee of the Red Cross to close its Warsaw offices. A Red spokesman in Geneva said his organization was told the order was a general measure against all international organizations. The Red Cross delegation is still in Warsaw.)

Drunkenness Declared Rife In Aleutians

An Interior Department survey group said yesterday that natives in the Aleutian Islands and some other parts of Alaska are drinking themselves to death.

It said that by contrast the Pribilof islands, north of the Aleutians, have no destitute families, no neglected welfare cases and no crime or liquor problem "with the exception of home brew."

There is absolutely no basis, it said, for charges that Pribilof natives—custodians of the Government-owned fur-seal herds that summer on the islands—are "held in slavery, bondage or peonage."

Charges Heard by Senators

Statements that the Pribilof islanders are held in "peonage" have been made in recent months by various individuals and groups. Miss Fredericka Martin, a former Alaskan resident now living in New York City, gave testimony to that effect before the Senate Interior Committee.

The report by the Interior Department survey group said the Pribilof inhabitants are better off than any other Alaskan natives, with the possible exception of those at Metlakatla. However, it added:

"Along the Aleutian chain the natives are on the decline through disease and impoverishment, much of it brought on by the unbridled and excessive use of liquor."

For the entire territory, the report said, "the most deplorable conditions among the natives exists in those communities and villages where liquor is available.

Places Responsibility

"This places upon those communities and their governing officials a great responsibility in controlling the sale of liquor and the enforcement of laws that will prevent the unfortunate conditions that result from the excessive use of liquor."

The survey group included Dr. Mark A. Dawber, New York City, executive secretary of the Home Missions Council; Dr. L. T. Oldroyd, extension director for the University of Alaska; Albert M. Day, director of the Fish and Wildlife Service, and Indian Commissioner John R. Nichols.

The report said:

"We are forced to the conclusion that much of the criticism of the administration of the Pribilof Islands by the Fish and Wildlife Service is unjust, unwarranted and without foundation in fact.

"There is no necessity for policemen or jails. No one draws unemployment compensation, because all able-bodied men are working."

Battle Feels Vote Changes May Not Win

There is a "distinct possibility" proposed suffrage amendments to the Virginia Constitution will be defeated, State Senator John S. Battle, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, said in Arlington last night.

Virginia voters are "just about divided" on the proposal, on which they will vote November 8, Battle told a reporter.

He attributed opposition to the amendments, which would repeal the poll tax and make other voting law changes, to "widespread misunderstandings and misinterpretations" of their contents.

Urges Nonpartisan Action

Battle, who has said he supports the amendments with certain reservations, was guest at a reception given by the women's division of the Arlington Democratic Campaign Committee at the Ashton Heights Clubhouse, 4th and Irving sts. More than 500 persons attended.

The Charlottesville Senator, in an informal discussion, reiterated his desire to keep the constitutional amendment question "out of politics and on a completely nonpartisan basis."

Battle predicted that "even some of my strongest supporters in the gubernatorial campaign will vote against the amendments, although I will vote for them."

11 Others Are Honored

Also honored at the reception, with the Senator and his wife, were Basil DeLashmutt, candidate for reelection to the Arlington County Board, and Democratic nominees to the House of Delegates, J. Maynard Magruder and George Damm, both of Arlington. Their wives also were in the receiving line.

Asked about their stand on the suffrage amendments, Damm said he is definitely supporting them, while Magruder declined to comment.

3 Women Indorsed For Judgeships Here

Three Washington women attorneys have been indorsed by the Women's Bar Association of the District for the three Municipal Court judgeship vacancies created by the recent bill, it was announced yesterday.

Those indorsed are: Olive Gelger Faircloth, a special assistant corporation counsel; Elizabeth Cox who maintains offices in the Southern bldg., and Irene Kennedy who has offices in the Mayflower office bldg.

Liens Claim $40,000 Of Klan Chief's Estate

Atlanta, Oct. 28 (AP).—The United States Bureau of Internal Revenue today slapped tax liens of $40,000 against the estate of Dr. Samuel Green, former imperial wizard of the Association of Georgia Klans.

Internal Revenue Collector Marion Allen filed the liens against the estate for income taxes claimed due over a five-year period.

The suits named Mrs. Virginia Green, the doctor's widow and executrix, individually as owing $5800 in back income tax for 1948.

Women, Tired of '20 Fashions, Ask Glamorous Halloween Masks

New York (U.P.).—Women are making themselves look so spooky in everyday life that they are demanding glamorous false faces for Halloween, Frank Rose, couturier to ghosts, said today.

The men hope to scare the living daylights out of the girls Monday night with masks that make them look like monsters, but the girls want to be beautiful for that one night, at least, he said.

Rose runs a magic shop which specializes in 48 different styles of spine-chilling masks. He said he was in a dilemma when the new feminine facial fad was introduced, featuring gobs of eye-shadow, white powder, no rouge and a fringe of boop-boop-a-doop spit curls.

The everyday fashion was becoming so like the Halloween mask styles that he was afraid women wouldn't want to disguise themselves any further.

But the unexpected happened, as it sometimes does, where females are concerned. They started clamoring for masks to make them look the way they did before the 1920 styles in faces and figures came back this fall.

Rose put his once-popular hag and Grewsome Barroom Bertha masks on a shelf until this beauty parlor tempest blows over. He started selling hundreds of rubber masks of sultry dames with hair piled on top of the head and lots of rouge and mascara.

The men have kept right on demanding Frankenstein faces, as they have done ever since masks of Adolf Hitler became passe as grotesque appeal.

"We used to sell a lot of Josef Stalin and John L. Lewis faces, too," Rose said. "We called the Lewis mask 'Old King Coal.'"

The kids still are pretty consistent in their false face demands, he said. Most of them seem to want to be little devils, pumpkins, wise old owls or pirates, he said.

"But with the grownups it's a mystery," Rose added. "I can't figure out why women want to scare people with beauty while men want to look gosh awful."

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT Court for the District of Columbia. Congress Development Corporation, Plaintiff, vs. Lottie Gamble, et al, Defendants. Civil Action No. 3524-49. Order of publication. The object of this suit is to obtain a declaratory judgment declaring the following described ancient graveyard to have been abandoned and to establish plaintiff's marketable title thereto. The ancient graveyard is the same land or property now described and shown on the plat of the office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber 127, at folio 40, and is known as Lots 9, 10 and 11 in Square 5916, and Lot 36 in Square 5917. This property contains approximately ten and one-fourth (10¼) acres, of which one (1) acre, herein more particularly described by metes and bounds, is known as the cemetery or graveyard. The said graveyard, by metes and bounds, is described as follows: "Beginning for the same at a point on a South line of said Lot Nine (9) in said Square Fifty-nine hundred sixteen (5916), said point being distant West 3.40 feet from the most easterly line of said lot and running thence North 7° 33' 40" East 56.10 feet to a corner of said graveyard; thence North 84° 40' 30" East 247.79 feet; thence North 5° 26' 20" West 66 feet; thence North 84° 33' 40" East 112.20 feet; thence South 5° 26' 20" East 207.90 feet to the South line of said Lot 11 (eleven) in said Square Fifty-nine hundred sixteen (5916); thence North 82° 11' 20" West 382.80 feet to the place of beginning, containing 1.00214 acres." On motion of the complainant, it is this 26th day of October, 1949. Ordered that the defendants, Lottie Gamble, Ruth Johnson, Clara Bradley, Margie E. Taliferro, Herbert R. Pleasant, Alice Pleasant, William R. Pleasant, Georgia Pleasant, Dister Pleasant Johnson, Albert R. Pleasant, Fannie Howard, Bertha H. Battle, Lawrence Howard, Ellsworth Beverly, Elizabeth Beverly and Mary R. Color TV Decision Put Over to 1950

By The Associated Press

The hopes of some segments of the radio industry for Government decision on color television operations by the end of 1949 got a setback yesterday.

The Federal Communications Commission threw the entire color television question over into next year, indicating that there will be no action on proposed authorization of general color operations for months.

The commission issued a revised schedule for the color hearings that have now gone on for five weeks, without any end in sight.

February Hearings Set

The time-table disclosed that it will still be hearing testimony on the matter next February.

Meanwhile, no new station permits are being authorized or considered. FCC froze the television situation Oct. 1, 1948, by suspending the processing of applications then to generally review operations. With the freeze, 124 station authorizations were outstanding, of which 82 are now on the air.

Although the hearings have a long time to go, FCC ordered that a comparative demonstration of rival color systems offered by the Radio Corporation of America and Columbia Broadcasting System go forward on schedule the week of Nov. 14.

RCA had asked a postponement to January to permit further tests of its apparatus and to let Color Television, Inc., of San Francisco, sponsoring a third plan, take part. CBS had opposed the delay, offering to fly its equipment to the West for a separate comparative showing there if necessary.

Schedule of Hearings

Two more weeks of direct testimony, to be suspended Nov. 11.

The comparative RCA-CBS demonstration here the week of Nov. 14.

A general recess in the proceedings then until Feb. 6, which will cancel a proposed trip to San Francisco Nov. 28 to view the CTI system.

A separate showing for CTI here Feb. 6.

A three-way comparative demonstration for RCA, CBS and CTI here the week of Feb. 8.

Resumption of testimony Feb. 13.

Agriculture Orchestra Plays Well

Rain did not keep a large audience from enjoying the second concert by the rejuvenated Department of Agriculture Symphony Orchestra.

Last night in Thomas Jefferson Memorial Auditorium, the orchestra, composed of nearly 90 members, sounded as if it were busting its seams. Their tone could easily fill a hall twice the size of the Jefferson auditorium; their programs are good enough to attract twice as many people as can be seated there.

Frederick Fall, the conductor, is not content to play anything less than the most exacting music. He opened his program with the first three movements of Anton Bruckner's Fourth symphony. He was wise to limit the orchestra to the first three movements, for these alone consume 45 minutes.

Bruckner had much of beauty to say in his symphonies. His difficulty was that, having said it, he could not find enough treatment of his good material to maintain interest. His symphonies rise and fall with each statement of the lyrical and exalted themes which dot them without binding them together.

They are particularly demanding of any orchestra in requiring much long sustained playing from winds, and the utmost precision from the strings. The Agriculture Orchestra has tone of which they can be proud. Their general playing discipline is good. And they often rise to exciting climaxes.

In Warner's Prelude to Die Meistersinger, they were, for the most part, equal to the heavy task. Fall maintains a fine "going" tempo throughout the work. The woodwinds ran away a bit in their first ensemble spot but things were restored without mishap.

The orchestra still needs that polish and perfection of attacks and synchronized phrasing that marks the professional band. Short of this, they have done wonders in the time at their disposal.

James Hendrick came over from ECA to be the evening's soloist, singing Samuel Barber's haunting setting of Dover Beach. He understands the score thoroughly. Its accompaniment, designed for string quartet, was played, not too well, by a larger group of instruments.

Barber, not yet 40, wrote the piece in the early 1930's. It is difficult to see how it "derives its musical mood from his experience as a soldier in the second World War" as claimed in the program notes. Tsk!

New Virginia Power Plant In Operation

Winchester, Va., Oct. 28.—The new $7,500,000 Northern Virginia Power Company's plant of the Potomac Edison Co. system, 2 miles north of Riverton, near Front Royal, was dedicated and put into operation today with 300 guests present, and Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia as principal speaker.

The plant will have a maximum capacity of 40,000 kilowatts, officials said. This not only will serve 20,000 customers in Winchester, Berryville, Strasburg, Front Royal, Luray, Shenandoah, Madison and surrounding areas, but about half of the power will be available as surplus to go into the general system.

College Girl Gets Honor for Fire Heroism

Pittsburgh, Oct. 28 (AP).—A college girl who saved several persons from death in a burning sorority house was one of 24 persons awarded bronze medals today by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission.

She was Merilyn C. Hiller, Waterport, N. Y. When a fire broke out November 21, 1948, in the so-Miss Hiller, '1, gave the alarm and guided several of the 23 other occupents to safety.

Miss Hiller was burned severely. Three persons died in the fire.

Six of the heroes lost their lives. Pensions totaling $3,120 a year were granted in five cases and a $300 disability payment was made in another. Awards totaling $6,750 were made is 18 cases for educational and other purposes.

Among the outstanding cases was that of three Pennsylvania anthracite coal miners who died in an effort to rescue a fellow worker at Girardville, Pa., last May 4.

They were Raymond Ey, 38, Girardville, and Joseph Wowak, 33, and William J. Kelley, sr., both of Shenandoah, Pa. They went down nearly 500 feet into a smoke-filled mine searching for William T. O'Brien, a fire boss. They reached him, but all were overcome and suffocated.

Talk on John Dewey

Dr. Walter Hager, president of Wilson Teachers College, will speak on "The Impact of John Dewey on American Thinking" at a meeting of the Washington Ethical Society at 11:15 a. m. Sunday at the AVC Club, 1751 New Hampshire av., nw. This is the first in a series of lectures on "Moulders of Modern Thought."

Year's Term Causes Man To Collapse

A Hyattsville, Md. man, sentenced to a year in prison for assault, got a temporary reprieve yesterday when he collapsed of a heart attack after hearing sentence pronounced in Prince Georges County Circuit Court.

James C. Rust, 57, 5721 39th ave., was stricken in the courtroom corridor as he was being led away by Sheriff T. Ward Martin after he was sentenced to a year in the Maryland House of Correction following his plea of guilty to a charge of assaulting his estranged wife, Mrs. Elsa Rust, 51, on August 6.

Judges John B. Gray, jr., and J. Dudley Digges, who had pronounced the sentence a few minutes earlier, ordered the sentence stricken from the record pending an examination of the defendant by a physician to be appointed by the court.

Rust was then scheduled to appear in court next Friday for resentencing if his condition permits.

Rust was accused of attacking his wife in the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Huber, 6210 41st ave., Hyattsville. Mrs. Rust testified that her husband fred at her with a .22-caliber rifle and that the bullet grazed her ear when he came to the Huber home "in an effort to effect a reconciliation."

'Gold' Nugget Just Brass, Geologist Says

Fairbanks, Alaska, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—Evidence indicating the Fishwheel "Gold Strike" may be a hoax mounted today as a geologist labeled one of the first-found nuggets ordinary brass.

Tests by Geologist Richard Ragle of the niversity of Alaska revealed also that two other nuggets of the original find were pocket-worn, or smoothed down from being carried in a poke for several months.

At least six men in Anchorage charged the nuggets may have been "salted" by persons who stood to make money out of a gold rush.

But some gold-seekers still were at Fishwheel, not yet discouraged.

Ragle said two nuggets looked as if they came from entirely different sources.

Good Hard Rain Doesn't Clean Up Things One Bit

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—A hard rain doesn't purify the outdoor air, four General Electric scientists reported today.

After a ran, the air is just as full as ever of mold spores that come from decaying animal and vegetable matter, they told the American Public Health Association.

These molds each year spoil millions of dollars worth of foods said Matthew Luckiesh, A. H. Taylor, Thomas Knowles and E. T. Leppelmeir of the Lighting Research Laboratory, Cleveland.

Air samplings in Cleveland showed from 20 to 112 spores in each 10 cubic feet of air.

Their report said ultraviolet lamps, if strong enough, can kill many of the spores in the air.

Paper Box Houses

Some children have very elaborate doll houses equipped with electric lights and all sorts of up-to-date gadgets. But it is questionable that they have any more fun than do the kids who make their own.

Though they won't last too long, doll houses made from sturdy cardboard boxes can be most satisfactory. The boxes in which canned goods are delivered to grocery stores are easily obtained without cost.

It is best to let children work out their own ideas while they are building their doll's homes, but there's no harm in a few suggestions or in a helping hand now and then. A two-story house can be constructed by fastening one box on top of another or by fitting a smaller one into the main one.

Connecting doors can be cut through and the bird's-eye view of the establishment, which the youngster has, makes the household play a lot of fun. Furniture from match boxes and other small cardboard boxes is easily made. Samples of wallpaper can be pasted to walls. Drapes from small pieces of cretonne give a finished touch to the house.

My Constant Love

My love for you is constant as . . . The stars of silver bright . . . And just as fervent in the day . . . As in the dreamy night . . . It never struggles in the rain . . . Or wanders in the snow . . . Nor is it one to change its course . . . Wherever winds may blow . . . My love is everlasting as . . . The hills where shepherds sleep . . . And like a sanctuary, it . . . Is spiritual and deep . . . Because your song is in my heart . . . And when you say you care . . . Your words become the echo of . . . The answer to my prayer . . . And all the world may melt away . . . Beyond a mist of blue . . . But there will never be an end . . . To my great love for you.

There Are Times When $150,000 Is Not a Lot of Money

There has been so much heated discussion of Transit Radio, pro and con, that it might be well to take another look at the economics of the situation.

Capital Transit hauls approximately 350 million passengers per year. If it expands its Transit Radio broadcasts to the fullest, and if sponsors buy as much time as is available, the traction company stands to profit as much as $150,000 per year.

That's tops—and far more than is now being realized, with only 213 vehicles equipped to received the broadcasts.

Apply that $150,000 to 350 million passengers and you'll find that each passenger's fare can be reduced about one twenty-fifth of a cent.

Applying the extra revenue in another way—to higher wages for employes—you've got to split it among almost 5000 Capital Transit wage-earners.

It would give each person on the payroll an average annual increase of $30, or an hourly rate increase of a penny and a half.

If present Transit Radio installations are not expanded, and more commercials are not sold, then revenues would be proportionately smaller, as would benefits to individual passengers and/or employes.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I can't understand why you liked last week's Capitol stage show. I thought it stunk. Jay Marshall's comedy and magic routine was corny. Where did they dig him up?

And by the way—don't you think it's about time the Capitol management realized this is a big town and cut out the organ interlude?

T. B.

Dear T. B.:

You're entitled to your opinion, even if you are all wet.

Jay Marshall happens to be recognized as one of the slickest magicians in the business today. He had 55 weeks of top bookings last year—doubling for a few weeks between a club date and a Broadway show.

All I know about his brand of comedy patter is that it made me guffaw. I wish I could do as much for my audience.

As for the organ interlude, I think it's one of the bright features that makes the Capitol show worthwhile. If community singing is "hick town," I must be a Grade-A hick.

SLIGHT DIFFERENCE

Gretchen Hood of 1226 Fairmont st. nw. says that Jay Aitch's comparison of "sight" and "vision" reminds her of her father's comment about an aspiring singer of some years ago. Said Pop:

"I wouldn't exactly call her voice heavenly, but it is certainly is unearthly."

MISCELLANY

"Hooray for my Washington Post carrier boy, T. Moore," says Satisfied Subscriber Mrs. Louis L. Poats of Bowie, Md. . . . "Have you noticed that the green coats are back?" asks Maj. G. W. Edgerly of 3908 McKinley st. nw. "My wife and I counted 22 on one bus ride downtown yesterday" . . . There'll be lots of neighborhood activity around the old home town this weekend. Mrs. LeRoy Hafer of 3411 Varnum st., Brentwood, Md., says one of the highlights will be the square dance sponsored by the Trinity Ladies' Aid tonight (Trinity Lutheran School, 38th and Longfellow sts., Hyattsville, Md., starting at 7:30) . . . Mrs. Earl Gideon of 4013 South 19th st., Arlington, Va., counters with a suggestion that you visit the Peyton Randolph P.-T.A. Carnival (South 13th and Quincy sts., from 1 to 10 p. m.). They even have a baby-sitting service available for those who need it . . . That'll keep you busy until tomorrow, when J. F. Graff of 1423 R st. nw. suggests that you might like to join Attorney General J. Howard McGrath and Mary Jane Hayes (Miss Washington) at the Municipal Stadium in Alexandria, Va., at 7:30 p. m. There'll be a football doubleheader for the benefit of the Trinidad Boys' Club . . . Aubrey Taylor of 5135 MacArthur blvd. nw. says that if you have any pep left by Monday you ought to join the fun at the Palisades Field House, Dana pl. and Sherrier pl. (No. 20 Cabin John streetcar or D-4 MacArthur blvd. bus). From 3:30 to 5 p. m. there'll be a Children's Party, with games and movies, and from 7 to 9 p. m. a wiener roast, dance and more movies . . . Bernie Gilbert of 10515 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, Md., wants to know why his favorite (that's us) newspaper recently referred to "25 cycle-direct current" on Capitol Hill. As an electrical engineer of long standing Bernie doesn't recall any direct current with alternating characteristics—but maybe this current has been on the Hill for so long that it's just plumb gotten itself all confused.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Five beautiful, healthy kittens with pretty faces; month and a half old. Will deliver." (Union 1421.)

"Beautiful, very playful kitten; housebroken. Will deliver." (Michigan 1339.)

"Clean, healthy young male hamster; also cage and exercise wheel." (Dupont 5813.)

"Three-month-old female pup; likes children, very playful." (North 3234.)

"Brown and white terrier-type pup, housebroken, about 8 months old, fine pet." (Ordway 3035.)

PERSONAL NOTES

Helen Lubbock, 220 Prospect st., Chevy Chase, Md.: You're welcome; glad we found 'em good homes.

G. R. Simcox, 262 N. Barton st., Arlington, Va.: The realtor says he means what the ad says; if a non-veteran purchaser is "qualified," the realtor will take a second trust large enough to swing the deal with no down payment. In these cases "qualified" means you've got to have a whopping big income and an absolutely clean credit record.

GET THE POINT?

Nate Leiderman of 1508 41st st. se. has a problem, despite the fact that his paycheck runs into five figures. The problem is: How to get the paymaster to move the decimal point one or two places to the right.

WHAT, ALREADY?

Let's face it, Summer is definitely over.

"This is the way we pay our bills"

"An hour every month—and all our household bills are paid and in the mail. In a few minutes—at any time—my husband and I know just where our money goes. We have a "receipt" for every bill we pay. When we budget we know what we are doing. No wonder we are so enthusiastic about the convenience of a Burke & Herbert checking account."

Ask us about the various types of checking services. You will find a type suited to your needs. All are convenient and economical.

Consult Ray W. Plasterer, one of Washington's leading Trichologists

OVER 125,000 successful treatments have taught us that there is not the slightest doubt that we can save your hair and improve the present condition of your scalp, if we accept you for treatment. Don't wait until it is too late, correct that scalp disorder now—hair fall, dandruff, excessive oiliness, and thinning hair are nature's warning of impending baldness. Our treatments are pleasant, relaxing and stimulating. More Washingtonians take our modern scientific treatments than any other. There is no charge for examination and consultation, given in private. No down payment is required. No sticky, unpleasant medications are used.

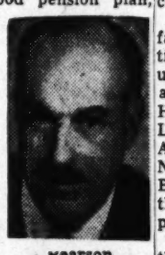
Steel Firms Divided on Pensions

By Drew Pearson

The major steel companies are divided over contributory or non-contributory pension plans. Inland Steel has a good pension plan, while Jones & Laughlin and Bethlehem favor a plan without labor contributions, because:



Pearson

Only 10 percent of workers continue in their employ until they reach 65. Leaving before that age under a worker-contribution plan, they take their contributions with them, complicating bookkeeping. But when they do not contribute, the amount set aside for them by the company stays in the fund, cuts company contributions over the years.

The giant of the industry, U. S. Steel, which sets the competitive pace, has held out against a company-contributed pension plan chiefly on principle. It asserts labor should contribute at least something. Directors of U. S. Steel include heads of other companies—Walter Gifford of American Tel. & Tel.; Sewell Avery of Montgomery Ward and U. S. Gypsum, James Black of Pacific Gas & Electric—which might be affected by any pension precedent set for the steel industry.

Presidential advisers have discussed with Truman the idea of invoking the Taft-Hartley Act to end the steel strike, but he is opposed because:

United Steelworkers already have suspended a strike for 77 days at his request, practically the equivalent to the 80-day suspension possible under the Taft-Hartley Act. If the President now invoked T-H, it is feared labor might refuse to obey the injunction. And if half a million men defied their Government, the Nation would face not only a breakdown of democracy but reverberating ammunition would be handed to Moscow for use in every country in the world.

Furthermore, the presidential fact-finding board's recommendations have been accepted by the union, though rejected by management. That is why other White House friends, including Mayor Lawrence of Pittsburgh, Jack Arvey of Chicago and Democratic National Committee Chairman Boyle have urged Truman to put the bee squarely on the steel companies.

Phil Murray, testifying before the board, invited steel executives to appear before Congress with him and urge passage of a better old-age pension bill. They refused. Despite this, if Congress had remained in session and tackled the entire problem of old-age pensions for all old people, not merely those who belong to unions, a pattern might have been worked out for the Nation

Though U. S. Steel refused to go for noncontributory pensions now, it was the same U. S. Steel which gave a noncontributory welfare fund to John L. Lewis and the coal miners in 1947. This precedent given to Lewis sets a goal which Phil Murray and other union leaders now have to equal.

At the Pentagon

The Navy isn't very sore at Admiral Denfeld's removal as No. 1 gob even though he went all out for it before Congress. Other admirals felt his blast was too late, that he had played footsie with the Army and Air Force in the privacy of the Joint Chiefs of Staff . . . Navy lobbyists pulled wires to get Admiral Blandy appointed as Chief of Naval Operations . . . Admiral Sherman isn't popular with his co-admirals. They figure he was the first to drill a hole in the dike that led to unification. Sherman was appointed by Secretary Forrestal to sit down with General Norstad of the Air Force and work out unification. Result was the milk-and-water unification bill of 1947, now considerably strengthened . . . Sherman was top planner on Admiral Nimitz's staff in the Pacific, is a brilliant strategist, fought for airplane carriers when other admirals were still fighting for battleships . . . Despite the need for economy and the full coverage given the armed services row by the press associations, the Navy sent small newspapers voluminous verbatim transcripts of every word the admirals said about the Air Force . . . Yet the public relations offices of Army, Navy and Air Forces are supposed to be consolidated . . . Tito will pay off the United States for helping Yugoslavia win a seat on the Security Council—by a Yugoslav peace treaty with the Royalist Greek government.

The Lyon's Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—The City of Denver is ready to issue its new municipal bonds, and each must bear the signatures of the city auditor and the mayor. The auditor signed all the bonds and told Mayor Quigg Newton that it had taken him seven days to do the job . . . Mayor Newton decided that he could not afford seven days spent in writing his name. He learned that the Federal Reserve in New York has a machine where 28 simultaneous signatures can be made with one stroke of a pen. After the necessary arrangemments were made, Mayor Newton flew to New York, used the simultaneous signature machine and finished the job in a few hours.

Tyrone Power and his bride, Linda Christian, returned to N. Y. this week after 17 months in Europe. He saw American cigarettes on the Stork Club tables and said what a rare sight this would be in Europe. "Cigarettes are the modern currency in Europe," he said. "To them, Fort Knox must be in Virginia—where tobacco grows" . . . In London, the actor gave his bride a bust made by Jacob Epstein. At one of the sittings Mrs. Power noticed the sculptor's face go pale, and saw the reason—the clay was disintegrating and the statute's face was sliding away. "Don't look," said Epstein. "This is the second time it's ever happened to me" . . . Power also discovered a Shapespeare recording made years ago by his father, Tryone Power, sr. He'll make a recording for the other side, as a collector's item.

Power said that when he last was in N. Y., during a heat wave, he telephoned the manager of the hotel and said: "Please send me up two fans" . . . The manager quickly obliged, and sent up two fans—two youngsters, complete with autograph books.
